Chest Drive At 28 Pct. in First Report Of Workers

Initial Pledges Total $1,137,867, Nearly 3 Times '49 Opening Sum

First report on this year's Greater Washington Community Chest drive yesterday showed initial subscriptions of $1,137,867 — almost three times last year's opening total and 28.5 percent of the 1950 goal.

Phillip Pratt, one of the 250,000 men, women and children receiving Community Chest aid in the area, grinned broadly as campaign workers proudly reported pledges and collections.

Nine-year-old Phillip was an honor guest at the report luncheon, first of a series, at the Hotel Washington. Standing with the aid of stubby, lightweight crutches, the handsome lad was presented to the 400 campaign workers as an example of the persons aided by Chest funds.

Victim of Bone Disease

Mrs. William Abell, member of the board of the Christ Child Fresh Air Farm for Convalescent Children, described how Philip came to the farm in March, 1947, afflicted with a bone disease (Leggi Perthes disease) which required long periods of rest off his feet.

In addition, Philip was the victim of a broken home—all of his brothers and sisters are in foster homes—and when he "gets back on his feet" about Christmas and can throw his crutches away, he, too, will enter a foster home, Mrs. Abell explained.

Chairman Frank J. Luchs, still driving for all-out effort toward the $3,991,719 goal, urged the workers to go back to their jobs and add 70,000 new contributors to the Chest drive and obtain higher pledges from old contributors.

"Do it for Philip Pratt . . . Do it for Philip's sake," he urged his aides.

A Red Feather "Oscar" was awarded by Chairman Luchs to Rear Admiral Alfred M. Pride.

Carrier Pigeon Dies at 32; Was 2-War Veteran

Fort Monmouth, N. J., Oct. 31.—Kaiser, the oldest carrier pigeon in the world, died tonight at the age of 32.

And the veteran of two armies and two World Wars is heading for a final resting place in the famed Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C.

Army spokesmen said the Smithsonian plans to mount and display the pigeon that was a Signal Corps mascot for so long.

Kaiser, whose advanced age corresponds to a human 160 years old, began his career in World War I with the German army.

American doughboys picked Kaiser out of a front line trench in the Meuse-Arzonne offensive of 1918 and he was subsequently pressed into service with the United States Services of Supply.

During World War II, the Army used Kaiser to help train other carrier pigeons.

When Kaiser slumped at the bottom of his cage tonight in the office of Otto Meyer, chief of the Signal Corps pigeon breeding and training center, he still wore the aluminum leg band with the seal of the German Imperial Crown which Kaiser Wilhelm's army put on him in World War I.

District Seeks 75,000 Income Tax Evaders

Employers Ordered To Give City Same Pay Data Reported to U. S.

The District yesterday opened a drive on evaders of District income taxes by notifying employers they must file returns by February 15, 1950, listing District residents who received $1000 or more in compensation during 1949.

Assessor Edward A. Dent issued the order under authority granted by the District Revenue Act of 1947. Although the law has been on the books for two years it had not previously been invoked.

C. A. Beard, jr., city administrator of income and franchise taxes, said his office had no idea how many persons have been dodging the tax. Unofficially, they have been estimated at 75,000.

Subject to the tax are District residents domiciled here or who maintain a home here for seven months during the year, Beard said.

If they also are domiciled in a State and subject to a tax there they may deduct the amount of the tax from what is owed the District. In any event, they must file a return, Beard declared.

Information filed by employers will provide the District with "a more efficient method" than that now used to check tax returns, Beard pointed out. At present the District compares its returns with those filed with the Federal Government.

The form employers will fill out will be almost a duplicate of that required by the Federal Government. Beard said employers will be able to make the returns simply by adding a carbon while preparing Federal papers.

The employer will be asked to supply the name, address, marital status and salary, wages, fees, commissions, bonuses and all other compensation paid to each employe earning more than $1000 during the year.

Labor Board Complains To High Court

Not Getting Fair Break From Fifth Circuit Bench, NLRB Charges

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The National Labor Relations Board has complained to the Supreme Court that it isn't getting a fair break from the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals which covers six Southern States.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman this week filed a brief on NLRB's behalf in appealing five labor cases.

In the unusual action, Perlman spoke of a "pattern of denial" of the NLRB's rights and added that the "inordinately large number" of labor cases before the Southern Circuit "bodes ill" for those now in lower courts.

Perlman offered a table to show that NLRB has had a tougher time in the Fifth Circuit (Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas) than in any of the other nine. Of 15 cases in the past two years only three were enforced in full, five were set aside, six modified and one sent back to the lower court.

During the same period all other circuits together enforced orders in 38 of 59 cases, Perlman said. Under the law, the labor board must go to the courts for enforcement orders.

The five cases which the Supreme Court now is asked to review are not of the type that ordinarily would be taken to the high bench, Perlman said, but he added they are "appropriate vehicles for bringing to this court's attention the special seriousness of the board's enforcement problems in the court below."

This is not the first time the labor board has tangled with the Fifth Circuit Court, but it represents a new high in action by the Federal Government against what are considered the anti-labor views of that appeals bench.

The chief judge of the Fifth Circuit is Joseph C. Hutcheson, jr., of Houston, Tex., famous for his dislike for the NLRB. He has ex-

Negro Gets $3000 for Bias After Losing Job in New York

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—The first case to reach a hearing before New York State's 4-year-old Commission against Discrimination ended today with a $3000 payment to a Negro who claimed he lost his job because of his race.

The payment was made by a construction firm, the George H. Flinn Corp., which also agreed to revise its employment practices.

Lester Block, attorney for the company, said economic and business reasons, rather than racial bias, caused the dismissal of the employe, Walter Tannis.

Block added, however, that the company would rather make the $3000 settlement than stand the cost of defending itself at the hearing.

Three members of the anti-bias commission had been designated to hold a hearing on Tannis' complaint after conciliation failed. All other cases brought to the body's attention have either been settled by conciliation or dropped for lack of evidence.

The company did not agree to rehire Tannis, explaining that the job on which he formerly worked has been completed. It promised, however, to treat without prejudice any future job application he might make.

Tannis' complaint, filed October 6, 1948, said he had been fired by the company three times. The $3000 award represented back pay.

Economic Unity Asked For Europe

Hoffman Requests ECA Nations for Plan of Integration By Early in 1950

By Russell Hill

Paris, Oct. 31 (NYHT).—The 18 European countries taking part in the Marshall Plan were asked today by Paul G. Hoffman, economic cooperation administrator, to draw up by early next year a program for economic integration.

Hoffman gave emphasis to his appeal by saying that President Truman had "reaffirmed to me just before I left Washington" that "the immediate goal is a solidly based prosperity for an economically unified Western Europe."

At a meeting this afternoon, cabinet ministers of nine of the countries immediately started drawing up a list of subjects to be studied in connection with the program. The list will be submitted Wednesday to the Council of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation.

The reaction to Hoffman's statement, which was delivered this morning at a full meeting of the council, was generally favorable. It had been suggested that he would upbraid his listeners for having failed to move quickly toward economic unity. As it turned out, the tone of his message was: you've done a great job, gentlemen, but there's much more to be done, and quickly.

Two major tasks face the European recovery program, Hoffman said—to balance Europe's dollar accounts, and to build a "more dynamic, expanding economy." This, he said "means nothing less than an integration of the Western European economy."

The substance of such integration, Hoffman reported, would be "the formation of a single large market within which quantitative restrictions on the movement of goods, monetary barriers to the flow of payments and, eventually, all tariffs are permanently swept away."

Creation of this unified market is essential to a "rapid growth in productivity," Hoffman went on. Without it, he warned, there could be hardly a hope that the European countries could balance their dollar accounts and keep them balanced.

Hoffman suggested five "fundamental requirements" in the program he said should be prepared. They were: coordination of national fiscal and monetary policies; a means for adjusting exchange rates as an alternative to currency controls; a method for cushioning economies against the initial effects of exchange rate adjustments, and the abolition of "conflicting commercial policies and practices."

Stettinius Dies at 49, Victim of Heart Attack; Book Reveals Roosevelt Pledges to Stalin

Removal of U.S. Troops In Europe Promised

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

President Roosevelt assured Marshal Stalin early in 1945 that American troops would not stay in Europe more than two years after the war.

The story is told for the first time in the late Edward R. Stettinius' book about the Yalta conference, "Roosevelt and the Russians," to be published Thursday by Doubleday & Co.

The discussion about American occupation troops took place on the second day of the Yalta meeting, when Allied troops were driving deep into Germany from east and west, and victory was in sight.

Stalin Opposed to France

Roosevelt, Stalin and Prime Minister Winston Churchill were debating whether to give France an occupation zone in Germany. Churchill favoring and Stalin opposing it.

"At this point," Stettinius wrote, "Stalin asked the President to express an opinion as to how long the United States would be willing to keep occupation forces in Germany.

"The President replied: 'I can get the people and Congress to cooperate fully for the peace but not to keep an army in Europe for a long time. Two years would be the limit.'"

This assurance to Stalin was not mentioned in former Secretary James F. Byrnes' book "Speaking

Ex-Secretary of State Famed in Lend-Lease

Edward R. Stettinius, wartime Lend-Lease Administrator and Secretary of State, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack at 49.

A maid found him unconscious in bed at breakfast-time at the home of his sister, Mrs. Juan T. Trippe, at Greenwich, Conn. The medical examiner said Mr. Stettinius had died of a bloodclot and hardening of the arteries.

The former Secretary had been suffering from heart trouble since last Spring. He had hoped to appear as a character witness at the recent trial of Alger Hiss, but had been too ill to testify.

President Truman promptly telegraphed his condolences to the Stettinius family, and messages poured in upon the Trippe home from many of the former Secretary's colleagues in business and official life.

In Washington, Stettinius was remembered more vividly for his work as Lend-Lease Administrator than for his troubled seven months as Secretary of State.

He was one of the rich young men who joined the Government in the spring of 1940, when the Nazi armies were overrunning most of Western Europe. A personal appeal from President Roosevelt led him to give up his $100,-

Two Courses Studied in Denfeld Case

Naming Sherman Now, Or Someone Else as Stopgap Considered

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Top Government officials last night were considering two alternative courses in filling the key job as Chief of Naval Operations:

(1) Immediate appointment of Vice Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, 54-year-old Mediterranean commander.

(2) Or the naming of a "stopgap" holder of the ranking Navy post, who might better knit the Navy together during the current controversy, with Sherman probably coming in later.

Sherman, a drafter of the service unification program who did not testify along with most other naval chiefs in the recent congressional protests against Department of Defense war policies and current procedures, is due to arrive here this morning.

It has been widely reported that he is slated to succeed Admiral Louis Denfeld as Chief of Naval Operations, ordered relieved of his post.

Speaking in a 60-decibel voice, a Washington engineer yesterday assured the Public Utilities Commission that radio programs as played in Washington streetcars and buses make no measurable increase in the noise levels.

The engineer, Frank H. McIntosh, described a decibel as the smallest increase in sound perceptible to the human ear, and said he was generating about 60 of them himself, at a point half a foot from his mouth. He testified that actual recent tests in four Capital Transit vehicles showed no change was made in the decibel level when the radios were turned on. The decibels varied from 54 to 60 in three vehicles, and hit 70 in one on a rainy day.

Border Push Laid to Tito By Hungary

Budapest, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—The Hungarian government charged today that a platoon of Yugoslav troops attempted an invasion into Hungary last Thursday night but was driven off by gunfire without casualties.

The Foreign Ministry said that between 30 and 40 Yugoslav soldiers crossed the border to cut a protective barbed wire fence on the Hungarian side. They were driven off when Hungarian forces opened fire, the ministry said.

(Yugoslavia Saturday night issued a communique saying that Hungarian forces fired automatic weapons and tossed hand grenades toward Yugoslavia in an eight-hour barrage along a 220-yard front. It said there were no Yugoslav casualties. It did not mention the alleged border crossing.)

"Tito (Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia) and his gang want to stimulate the impression that an attack from the other side of the border threatens Yugoslavia and that, therefore, he needs a sizable army," the Hungarian statement said.

"Such incidents would spur American imperialists to give more ample aid to their hard-pressed servant, Tito, who begs with bent back and bared head for the help of American capitalism."

The statement said the incident occurred near Gyuruspuszta, Hungary, which is across the border from Dolni Miholjac, Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia's earlier statement said the incident occurred near Dolni Miholjac, which is about 130 miles northwest of Belgrade.

CIO Taking Steps to Get Rid of Reds

Committee Prepares Report on Measures Aimed at Expulsion

Cleveland, Oct. 31 (AP).—The CIO tonight set up part of the machinery by which some of its left-wing unions may be thrown out.

The constitution committee prepared a report to the convention recommending amendments:

1. Empowering the CIO executive board by a two thirds vote to forbid any Communist or Fascist from serving on the board or to remove any such person now in office.

2. Giving the board further power by a similar vote to lift the charter of any affiliate whose "policies and activities . . . are consistently directed toward the achievement of the program or the purposes of the Communist Party, any Fascist organization, or other totalitarian movement" rather than those of the CIO.

The important question of throwing out unions controlled by Communist sympathizers is expected to hit the convention floor by Wednesday.

The constitution committee report came out only a few hours after President Philip Murray had given a firm pledge in his keynote speech to "cleanse" the CIO of Communist influences.

Only the leaders of some left-wing unions remained in their seats as the rest of the more than 600 delegates stood and cheered their president. None of them would comment immediately on Murray's speech.

Murray's statement to the convention's opening session—far his strongest to date on the subject—left little doubt that at least three and possibly 12 unions whose leaders are Communist sympathizers will be thrown out of the CIO before the week is over.

There was no question of the right-wing majority's power to eliminate its opposition. A roll-call showed only 71 of the 623 delegates at the first session representing 11 of the left-wing unions.

Two top Government officials—President Truman by letter and Secretary of State Acheson in person—also took slaps at communism.

Murray said there is "no decent way" of reconciling differences be-

U. S. Demands Czechoslovakia Recall 2 Officials Immediately

The United States demanded yesterday that Communist Czechoslovakia recall immediately two Czech officials now in this country.

They are Dr. Ervin Munk, consul general at New York, and Jan Horvath, housekeeper of the Czech embassy here.

The action was in apparent reprisal for the recent ousting of two American attaches from the embassy at Prague. However, in announcing the order, the State Department declined to give any explanation except that the two are both "persona non grata."

That means they are personally unacceptable to this government.

The Czech Ambassador, Vladimir Outrata, asked for an appointment with Undersecretary of State James E. Webb, presumably as a result of the action.

Horvath, although listed officially as an embassy housekeeper, was said by diplomatic authorities "to be something more than a housekeeper." These authorities indicated he is suspected of being a representative of the Czech Communist secret police. Records show he has been attached to the embassy since 1946.

Consul General Ervin Munk came to Washington in March, 1948, a few weeks after Communists took control of the Czech government. He was previously

Pension Paid By Company Is Obtained For 80,000

Union to Contribute Half of Other Fund For Social Benefits Under Compromise

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The CIO Steelworkers last night agreed to a peace formula with Bethlehem, the Nation's No. 2 steel producer.

The agreement, first to be made by a major basic steel company, indicated that the 31-day industry-wide strike of 500,000 steel workers would be quickly settled.

The formula, a compromise between the management and union positions, calls for company-financed $100 a month pensions (including Social Security) and employer-employe-financed social insurance.

The industry was full of reports last night that other steel makers—especially Republic, Jones & Laughlin, Youngstown Sheet and Tube—were ready to settle with the union on similar terms.

Fairless Renews Offer

United States Steel, by far the largest of the companies, which has been leading the fight for contributory pensions and social insurance, announced last night that its officers would study the Bethlehem settlement. Benjamin F. Fairless, president, said:

"We renew our earlier proposal to sit down with the Steelworkers Union in an endeavor to negotiate a mutually satisfactory program of insurance and pensions for our employes."

Bethlehem's action was the first time that a major steel company had taken a new step in the field of labor relations without first waiting its cue from the gigantic U. S. Steel.

Announcement of the end of the strike against Bethlehem—involving 80,000 employes, including 20,000 in Maryland—was made in Cleveland, where the CIO is holding its eleventh annual convention.

The announcement came a few minutes after 7.35 p. m., when Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the Steelworkers, signed the agreement with Bethlehem Vice President Joseph Larken.

Immediately after the peace announcement from Cleveland, Cyrus S. Ching, Federal Conciliator, canceled his scheduled conciliation talks with Republic, Jones & Laughlin, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, which were to be held here today.

Ching explained that he had

Truman Vetoes Auto Pay Bill For War Veterans

President Truman yesterday vetoed a bill authorizing federal payments up to $1600 on the cost of automobiles for certain handicapped veterans of World War I and II.

Under the present law, the Government supplies autos to World War II veterans who lost a leg.

The measure disapproved by Mr. Truman would have made government gifts of automobiles to veterans of both the last two wars who lost a hand or leg or were blinded in the service.

Mr. Truman said it would have provided motorcars to a veteran who has suffered the loss of a hand and who may be rated as 60 to 70 percent disabled "although his mobility may be impaired only slightly, if at all."

"At the same time, a much larger number of veterans rated as high as 100 percent disabled, but without the specific disabilities covered by this proposal, will not receive automobiles," the President said in a statement.

Bethlehem Pact Described by Union

Cleveland, Oct. 31 (AP).—Here is the text of "highlights of agreement between the United Steelworkers of America and Bethlehem Steel" released by the steelworkers:

PENSIONS

1. Completely paid for by the company.

2. Provides $100 minimum pension a month after 25 years at age 65 or over, including Social Security.

Qualification for pension begins after 15 years of service (up to 25 years) and with minimum of $4 a month for each year of service.

3. Formula for figuring pensions is: Total of ages for last 10 years of service, divided by 120 months. Then 1 percent of this amount is multiplied by the number of years of service. If this amounts to more than the minimum the employe gets the benefit.

Average Raised

4. Average pensions under Bethlehem's present plan is around $46 a month. The new agreement will increase this average to about 70 percent. The new average, including Social Security, will be around $100 a month.

5. Under the present plan, the company exercised the right to cancel a pension at its own discretion. Under the new agreement this right is revoked.

6. The new agreement, bases on the last 10 years of service, allows for adjustment to new and higher wage levels. Official records show that, on the average, the last 10 years are always the highest wages.

Retirement Not Arbitrary

7. The company has never arbitrarily enforced compulsory retirement. There is no provision in the new agreement for arbitrary retirement at a specified age. (Company records as of April 30, 1948, show that there were 2500 workers in steel mills and fabricating works past 65 years; 733 past the age of 70; 146 past the age of 75).

8. The present seniority provisions of the contract between Bethlehem and the union govern pension qualifications; that is, the pension is not calculated on the number of hours worked in a year.

9. Under the present plan, when a man is unable to work after 15 years of service he may get a pension but the amount is purely discretionary and is never increased later. Under the new agreement when a man is retired for disability he will get at least $50 a month and the benefit of the formula if that works out more than $50 a month. Further, when he reaches age 65 he will be raised to an amount equal to $4 a month multiplied by the years of service up to $100 unless he is already getting more.

Base of Computation

10. There is a marked improvement in figuring pensions. For instance, the company has taken the last 120 months as the wage base, but has included all lost time. for example:

If a man made $200 a month and worked 84 months (in the last 10 years, instead of 120 months) he would receive a total of $16,800. This divided by 120 months equals $140 a month. It is on this basis that the present pension plan is figured.

Under the new agreement, instead of dividing the total of $16,800 by 120 months, the amount will now be divided by 96 months; that is, the new agreement eliminates all absences of more than 12 months. Thus the new base to calculate the pension would be $175 a month, or an increase of 25 percent in pensions now to be paid to him.

SOCIAL INSURANCE

The final details of the social insurance plan have not yet been worked out. It is sbject to precise determination on the basis of data now being compiled by the company, but both the company and the union agree that:

1. The present plan is solely paid for by the employes and provides a maximum of $1500 in life insurance and $12 a week for sickness. Close to 99 percent of the employes participate.

2. The present plan is to be terminated and a joint contribution of 2 1/2 cents an hour each is to be paid by the company and the employes.

3. The new plan will provide a minumum of $2100 in life insurance which will run as high as $4500, with an average of $3000.

An average paid-up life insurance policy at retirement or between $1250 and $1500.

Sick Pay Provided

$26 a week for sickness for 26 weeks.

A Blue Cross contract or its equivalent for employes, wives and dependent children up to 19 years of age, with hospitalization up to 70 days.

4. Life insurance is calculated on the basis of 1750 multiplied by the standard hourly earnings.

5. There are in existence additional plans such as Blue Cross and Blue Shield which the employes arranged in addition to the existing welfare plan. In order to protect these employes, the union has arranged that the company will make payroll deductions for benefits, other than those provided for in the new plan, if the union agrees.

6. For those who have Blue Cross or Blue Shield, or their equivalent, the new plan will represent a reduction in cost.

Appeals Court Rebukes NLRB For Bringing Up Hotel Case

The United States Court of Appeals, in a 2-to-1 decision, yesterday slapped at the National Labor Relations Board for bringing before it a local hotel case, a dispute the court called "about as significant as a street-corner brawl."

The case involved the Parkside Hotel, 1336 I st. nw., and the Hotel Service Workers, Local 80, AFL. In 1946 the union claimed to represent six bellhops and maids (only one of whom is now at the hotel).

The Appeals Court majority, Judges Prettyman and Miller, declared:

"Ordinarily these minor disputes are soluble by reasonable conciliatory efforts. No evidence of any such attempts on the part of the board's representatives appears in this record. . . . Clearly, this minor controversy was inserted in some administrative procedural slot and, solely by reflection of the importance of the processes through which it was put was magnified to noticeable size. . . ."

The decision yesterday was the result of a rehearing in the case. The Appeals Court thus again refused to force the hotel to bargain with the union.

In his majority opinion, Judge Prettyman declared the court insists that if the NLRB wants to bring such "insignificant" cases it "must present reasonably recent and accurate information upon which the court may act."

Chief Appeals Court Judge Stephens, who in the original opinion had agreed with his colleagues, this time dissented, declaring there was "substantial evidence" to support the NLRB's findings of unfair labor practices on the hotel's part.

Moreover, Stephens said, "the fact that the industrial unit is small is, in my view, not a proper basis for refusing to enforce the order of the board" because workers in a small industrial unit "may be even more in need" of board help than those in a large unit.

tween Communists and anti-Communists because the roots of communism "are deep and they are fundamental."

President Truman assailed "two disparate groups, joined only by their selfish and destructive purposes."

One group he described as "selfish interests who, in their blind shortsightedness, do not realize that, in the long run, reaction is a far more expensive formula than progress." This group, he said, is fighting a losing "rear guard action."

The other group, said Mr. Truman, gives "lip service to many of our progressive measures, but that is only a tactic in their efforts to destroy the things we believe in." Labor's fate under this group, he added, would be so bad that "even the Taft-Hartley Act would seem beneficent by comparison."

Hails "Point Four" Plan

Acheson told the convention that President Truman's "point four" program offers the "have-not" peoples of the world more than the "spurious promises" of Communism.

He said the Truman plan, named after the fourth point of foreign policy in the President's message to Congress last January, offers such people "a way to improve their material welfare and at the same time live as free men."

The Communist program, he added, offers them "food and material comforts, if only they will accept slavery to the state in return."

State to Seize Arnold Bus Lines Tonight

Barring an eleventh-hour settlement of wage differences between drivers and the Arnold bus lines, operation of the utility will be taken over by the State of Virginia tonight at midnight.

William C. Seibert, counsel for the Virginia State Corporation Commission, said last night he would go to Arlington today to prepare for State seizure of the lines unless a settlement is reached by the scheduled deadline.

A union official reported last night there was no likelihood of a settlement.

Seizure is authorized under Virginia's public utilities labor relations law, which permits the Governor to order the State to take over whenever a utility strike constitutes "a serious threat to public health, safety and welfare."

Labor Board Complains

pressed his opinions both on and off the bench.

A recent issue of the American Bar Association's Journal contains a biography of the judge. It quotes from a 1946 Hutcheson lecture:

"Undeterred, indeed unaffected by the arrogance and the tyrannical impatience of control exhibited by the board (the NLRB) as a litigant, its threatening attitude of 'If you persist in disagreeing with me, I'll tell the Supreme Court and bring its wrath down on you,' our court kept on the even tenor of its way. It never bowed the knee to Baal (figuratively speaking, a false god); it never departed from the true tenor of the law as it saw it."

The judge no doubt will consider this week's action by the Justice Department on the NLRB's behalf an effort to bring the Supreme Court's "wrath" down on his bench. And that it clearly appears to be.

Bethlehem Settles With CIO Strikers

called off the conference with the three big steel companies in order to give them an opportunity "to consider their present positions . . . in the light of the Bethlehem settlement."

The director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service expressed the hope that the settlement will lead to industrial peace in the steel industry, generally, at a very early date.

Ching also said: "The settlement . . . demonstrated that in a free industrial society employers and unions, using voluntary procedures and avoiding the necessity of the Government employing coercive measures, can settle their own disputes, however wide the differences between them.

The Bethlehem contract provides, in line with the recommendations of the President's fact-finding board, $100-a-month pensions for all employes with 25 years' service at the age of 65 or over. The $100-amonth pension is to include Federal Social Security payments. As in the CIO Auto Workers agreement with Ford, the pension plan provides for reductions in company payments as the Federal payments increase.

In brief, the pension plan provides:

A minimum pension of $100 for all employes 65 years of age with 25 or more years' service with the company.

A minimum of $97 for all employes 65 years of age with 23 years' service.

A minimum of $80 for all employes 65 years of age with 20 years.

A minimum of $60 for all employes 65 years of age with 15 years' service.

All these pensions would include Government Social Security.

There was no immediate announcement as to the cost of the pension plan to Bethlehem, but it was estimated by Murray to be up to 10 cents an hour for each worker.

The social insurance program—providing death, sickness, accident and hospitalization benefits—will cost 5 cents an hour, with company and employes each contributing 2½ cents an hour.

Bethlehem has maintained a company-financed $50-a-month pension system for the last 20 years. Employes have been contributing $2 a month—around 1¼ cents an hour—to a social insurance program.

The new contract with Bethlehem runs to December 31, 1951, with a wage reopening clause effective December 31, 1950. The social insurance plan begins January 1, 1950; the pension plan will go into operation following a joint actuarial study. The union cannot strike over pensions for five years.

Murray disclosed that peace overtures between Bethlehem and the CIO Steelworkers were made last week in New York at meetings attended by Murray Datimer, the union's insurance consultant. Murray himself was in Cleveland attending CIO executive committee meetings most of last week, but he flew to New York Thursday to attend a political rally. While in New York he was in contact with Ching, who publicly announced he was concentrating on U. S. Steel, although secretly he was helping bring about the Bethlehem settlement.

Bethlehem's board of directors okayed the agreement in New York. On Sunday similar approval came from the Steelworkers' negotiating committee, meeting in Cleveland. The contract is subject to ratification by the company's stockholders.

Murray declared he felt the agreement to be "a vindication" of the union's position that there is a social responsibility in industry to take care of the aged and their families.

"I sincerely hope," Murray said, "that this will bring about a settlement with the rest of industry. The solid front has been broken."

In reply to questions, Murray said: "Nobody in the Government had anything to do with this deal."

Officials of Bethlehem, which produces 18 percent of the Nation's steel, announced it would resume operations within a few days at its plants in Sparrows Point, Md.; Bethlehem, Johnstown, Steelton, Lebanon, Williamsport, Pottstown, Pa.; Lackawanna, N. Y.; Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Last summer, the CIO Steelworkers opened negotiations with the steel companies, asking a 30-cent-an-hour "package", including a 12½-cent wage increase plus 6.27 cent-an-hour "package," including for pensions. A White House fact-finding committee urged the union to withdraw the wage hike request, and recommended that the companies pay 6 cents an hour in pensions and 4 cents in social insurance.

Dewey Backs Dulles, Mum on Own Goal

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

New York, Oct. 31. — What is Gov. Thomas E. Dewey running for?

Next to what the shouting is all about, that's the biggest unanswered question in New York's unique Senate race.

Dewey is campaigning for John Foster Dulles, his Senate appointee, even more lustily than he himself twice ran for President.

He's the "prosecutor" again on the stump, slugging the Truman Administration and former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman with equal abandon in down-to-earth language.

Dewey Denies Lehman's Charge

Lehman, who says he has both Dulles and Dewey to beat in this strange contest, flatly charges Dewey "is planning to seek the Republican nomination (for President) once again."

Gov. Dewey denounces that as "so much garbage." He assures friends he is campaigning for one purpose only, and that is to get his friend and former foreign policy advisor, Senator Dulles, elected to the Senate.

Will he run for a third term as Governor next year? The Dewey people always leave that question open. They say his present "inclination" is to go back into the private practice of law.

If he goes back into the law business, the betting here is that he will enter Dulles' own international law firm of Sullivan and Cromwell.

But He's Still Young

Dewey frequently has denied he will seek the presidential nomination in 1952. His associates dismiss as "foolish" the very thought that the Republican Party would again nominate a twice-defeated candidate. But the conversation somehow gets around to the fact he is still a young man, only 47.

The Governor may not know himself whether he will run for Governor again. A lot could hinge on the outcome of the present Senate race. If his man wins, he certainly will be under State organization pressure to run.

Charles Hawkins, chairman of the Rockland County Republican Committee, introduced Dewey this way:

"I hope he wil run again for Governor next year. Perhaps I shouldn't say this, but I'm going to say it anyway. I hope further that he is a candidate for President of the United States in 1952 and that we Republicans will not be so complacent in his behalf as we were the last time."

Responded Dewey: "I don't share any of Charley's aspirations politicaly."

Dulles Was Reluctant

A significant fact is that Dewey talked Dulles into making the Senate race. Dulles yielded reluctantly when it got down to a personal basis request. His original intention was to step out at the end of his one-year Senate appointment and some think he once had that undersanding with Dewey.

Democratic critics like to wisecrack that Dewey "can't lose" in this race. If Dulles wins, the Dewey organization will have had the perfect organization build-up to run the Governor for reelection again in 1950. If Dulles loses, they say, Governor Dewey will be his new law partner.

Certainly Governor Dewey has left nothing undone or unsaid to get Dulles elected to the Senate. Abandoning the "high plane" stuff that got him nowhere in the 1948 campaign, the Governor scoots around the state making speeches reminiscent of the one bright spot in Dewey's 1948 fight—his Oregon pummeling of Harold E. Stassen. When he isn't pounding Lehman and the "Fair Deal," he praises Dulles as "by all odds the most towering figure in foreign affairs." Tracing Dulles' role under five successive Democratic secretaries of State, he calls him the "sole surviving thread" of continuity in our foreign policy and "the only man in the world whom the Russians are afraid of."

Supported by Vandenberg

Sometimes Dewey and Dulles forget to mention the bi-partisan foreign policy role of convalescent Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.). But Vandenberg came through with a letter saying Dulles' election "will be a very great stimulus to the hopes of America for a dependable peace."

Lehman cracks back that he didn't know Dulles was "America's secret weapon." Lately the Democratic Senate nominee has taken to attacking Dulles' pre-war foreign policy record and calling him "something less than the indispensable man."

More and more, Lehman tangles directly with Dewey, calling him "my other opponent." He tells the voters Governor Dewey "will stop at nothing" to achieve the Presidency, and asserts:

"I am campaigning not only against Mr. Dulles, but against Governor Dewey and his whole powerful machine. . . . There can be little doubt that his (Dewey's) political fortunes are deeply involved in this senatorial contest."

Warns of Communist Move

Dewey, like Dulles, keeps repeating that the Communists will swing their American Labor Party votes to Lehman in an effort to stop Dulles.

Using language New Yorkers can understand, Dewey calls the Truman administration "the worst slot machine of all" from which "you get less" than you put in.

"God knows they need some brains and competence in Washington," he told audiences upstate.

Lehman hit back hopping mad when Dewey early this month called for a union of Democrats and Republicans alike in a "Holy Crusade" to elect Dulles.

Said Lehman: "No matter how much he may deny it, the use of the term 'Holy Crusade' was a thinly disguised call to all the latent forces of bigotry and prejudice in American life.

Counter-charges of Religious Issue

"No matter how much he may deny it, as Governor of this great State, he was peddling the wares of Gerald L. K. Smith."

Dewey retorted that not he but former Governor Lehman was injecting "the religious issue and a great many other things into this campaign."

He charged Lehman with "running out" on Dulles' challenge to a man-to-man debate on the "bigotry" accusations.

"By now refusing the debate which he himself proposed, Mr. Dulles's opponent has run away from his own words," said Dewey.

Merrill Heads Drive to Save Ailing School

Natchez, Miss., Oct. 31 (AP)—Vice Admiral Aaron Stanton (Tip) Merrill came out of retirement tonight to steer Jefferson Military College to financial security.

The 59-year-old veteran of World Wars I and II accepted the chairmanship of the endowment committee of the little prep school, which "is presently desperately in need of funds" after rejecting a 50-million-dollar white supremacy endowment.

Merrill, who commanded the famed Task Force 39 in the Pacific, also agreed to become superintendent of the college if enough money can be raised to put it upon an adequate financial basis.

The college trustees last week turned down the offer of millionaire George W. Armstrong, sr., for an endowment worth a potential 50 million dollars on condition that the 147-year-old school at nearby Washington, Miss., advocate white supremacy.

The college has received pledges of more than $5400 during the last few days, ranging from $100 to $5000.

NEARLY THIRD—Mrs. Florence Bateman, in charge of decorations, points out the 28.5 percent mark reached by the first Chest report. It was the first time more than a million dollars was reported at an opening meeting.

Truman Aid Called Lehman 'Desperation'

New York, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Word that President Truman will speak Saturday in behalf of the Democratic candidacy of Herbert H. Lehman for the Senate drew jibes from the New York Republican camp today.

William L. Pfeiffer, chairman of the New York Republican State committee, backing Senator John Foster Dulles, said it "emphasizes the desperation of the Lehman management."

Arizona Youth Saved From Mountain Ledge

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Wally Lundbohm, 20, was rescued from a ledge 1000 feet above the head of Pima Canyon north of here today.

The youth, stranded on the 6-foot-wide, 20-foot long ledge high in the Catalina Mountains since yesterday afternoon, was hauled 800 feet up the sheer precipice after a volunteer mountain climber succeeded in getting a rope to him.

B'nai B'rith Sends $100 To Jefferson College

A contribution of $100 was wired to debt-ridden Jefferson Military College on Sunday by Argo Lodge No. 413, B'nai B'rith, Harry C. Wechsler of 2480 16th st. nw., lodge president, announced yesterday.

The contribution was accompanied by a telegram reading: "In grateful appreciation of your magnificent demonstration of democratic principles, we are wiring you $100 herewith for application toward college indebtedness.

"May this small contribution be the first spontaneous acknowledgment of our Nation's gratitude for your courageous resistance to temptation so that you may promptly receive adequate financial support from all true Americans which your splendid institution deserves."

Mrs. Marjory Hendricks, Red Cross executive during World War II, will speak on Junior Red Cross activities at 9 a. m. today at Taft Junior High School.

Truman Signs Farm Price Support Act

President Truman yesterday signed long-range farm legislation which permits the Government to support prices of most farm products at or near wartime levels.

The measure — passed by the present Democratic Congress—replaces most major provisions of the so-called Aiken law enacted by the Republican 80th Congress. The GOP law permitted somewhat lower supports for major crops.

The new law gives the Secretary of Agriculture authority to support virtually every farm product at 90 percent of parity if he thinks that is advisable. Mr. Truman and Secretary of Agriculture Brannan have indicated they favor 90 percent supports, as a general rule, to keep agriculture prosperous.

Except for the first year—1950—the department also has discretionary authority to drop farm price guarantees below 90 percent of parity, but only within limits fixed by legislation.

There was no statement from Mr. Truman in connection with the signing.

Jury Indicts Two In Steel Gray Market Case

By the United Press

A Federal grand jury yesterday indicted Mayor William O. Voisine of Ecorse, Mich., and Edward C. Sauve of the Wayne Sheet Steel Co., Detroit, on charges of perjury before a House committee.

The two were charged with making false statements in the investigation of the steel gray market in June 1948.

Voisine was described by Sauve in the hearings as "an expediter" for the Wayne Co.

The indictment alleges both men testified that steel purchasers did not pay any more than prices listed on the invoices for steel.

These statements, it charged, were false.

Voisine and Sauve will be arranged in District Court here.

The report meeting followed a parade of nearly 200 representatives of Chest-supported agencies from McPherson sq. down 15th st. to the hotel. The Army Air Force Band and the Marine Corps Drum and Bugle unit, plus a police motorcycle escort ... accompanied the placard-bearing marchers. Similar parades will be held at later report luncheons.

The most dramatic exhibit in the parade consisted of a sedan bearing two wax—but lifelike—figures—with a sign reading, "This could happen to you," followed by a Garfield Hospital ambulance bannered, "The hospitals must be ready."

Today the Women's Club and Residential Unit will hold a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel at 12:30 p. m. Speakers will include Helen E. Hoskison, New Yorker magazine cartoonist, and Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post.

An innovation in this year's campaign—designation of 150 large firms as "bellwethers"—resulted in 84 carrying out the assigned mission of completing the drive by the first report luncheon.

The firms, in the past, have often been among the last to report, and this year's program was an attempt at spurring early reports. The companies who completed their drive were:

Rings Ring No Bell With Veep, Widow

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 31 (U.P.)—Vice President Alben W. Barkley and his bride-to-be went shopping for a wedding ring today, but didn't buy one.

The "Veep" and Mrs. Carleton S. Hadley, 38-year-old attractive widow, said they couldn't find a ring they liked.

Mrs. Hadley announced last night that they will be married November 18, thereby delighting President Truman, the political world and the hosts of friends and admirers.

They called Mr. Truman before the announcement and asked him to attend the ceremony, but it appeared that he probably wouldn't be able to make it.

However, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that Mr. Truman, pressed with important affairs of state November 18, might get to St. Louis if the nuptials were scheduled early enough and the weather were right for a fast flying trip.

The courtly Veep and his fiancee had late breakfast at his hotel and then set out on a leisurely shopping trip, followed by admiring throngs.

But they didn't find a suitable ring and turned to plain window-shopping. Then they gave followers the slip and disappeared. Barkley goes back to Washington Tuesday.

Court Upholds Opera Star in Paternity Case

New York, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—The appellate division of the State Supreme Court unanimously reversed today a lower court ruling that Metropolitan Opera Tenor Ferruccio Tagliavini is the father of the 2-year-old daughter of Mary Phillips, 28, a comely divorcee.

"The charge is so easy to make and so difficult to defend," the five-man court's ruling said.

Mason Reported Gaining Health

Commissioner Guy Mason is convalescing satisfactorily from an illness which has kept him at home for about a month.

Mason's physician, Dr. Paul F. Dickens, said yesterday afternoon, following a morning visit to Mason, that the Commissioner "is getting better, he's convalescing very well, and he's gaining weight."

"I believe he ought to have a month's vacation before returning to his office," Dr. Dickens added.

CAB Revokes Permit Of Airline for Crash

A Civil Aeronautics Board safety examiner yesterday tentatively revoked the operating certificate of Strato Freight, Inc., whose plane crashed off Puerto Rico with a loss of 53 lives June 7.

The order will be effective November 8 unless exceptions are taken by November 7.

The examiner, Albert Ruppar, found on the basis of a public hearing that Strato freight's twin-engine C-46 was overloaded 2400 pounds when it took off at San Juan and crash landed on the water with 81 persons abroad.

Burgman's Insane Acts Told by Wife

Mrs. Herbert J. Burgman testified yesterday that her husband showed signs of insanity when he allegedly broadcast for the wartime German government.

Mrs. Burgman, white-haired and speaking with a heavy German accent, said the accused traitor locked himself in the bathroom, had a "deadly" fear of the Gestapo, and searched for explosives in their living room ceiling lamp.

Burgman, 53-year-old Minnesota native, sat with his head down and eyes averted as she testified.

Son to Add Evidence

This afternoon, when the case resumes before Judge Alexander Holtzoff in District Court, Burgman's son, Thomas, is due to add evidence that the defendant was insane.

Mrs. Burgman said she was convinced her husband had a "mental illness" and that she had to leave him for 18 months when he began "accusing even me of duplicity."

She testified that he closed her in a room and forbade her to write or receive letters. His great fear was of the Gestapo, she said.

"Wasn't everyone in Germany afraid of the Gestapo?" asked Judge Holtzoff.

"Oh, yes," she replied.

Pounded On Table

She said that at first he had a "general" fear but that it centered later on the Gestapo. At times, she said, he "pounded on the table with the precision of an alarm clock."

"He screamed, 'They are the most brutal beasts in the world'," she said. The reference apparently was to the Nazis.

Mrs. Burgman said that in 1938 her husband spent three months in a mental hospital and was released as "unwell." He would not return in fear the physicians would "blow his brains out with red lights," she testified.

Hiss' Second Perjury Trial Set for Nov. 17

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Federal Judge William Bondy today set November 17 for the start of the second purjury trial of Alger Hiss, one-time high State Department official.

The trial date was fixed by Judge Bondy after a hearing on a show cause order obtained by Hiss' new attorney, Claude B. Cross of Boston. Cross sought a November 22 trial date on the ground that he needed this additional time to prepare his case.

Hiss' first trial ended in a hung jury last July. He is charged with lying when he denied passing secret State Department documents to Whittaker Chambers, confessed one-time courier for a pre-war Red spy ring.

Judge Bondy said three judges would be available on November 17. Later, Murphy told newsmen the judges were Henry W. Goddard, Sylvester J. Ryan and Gregory Noonan. The latter will be sworn in tomorrow as a new Federal judge for the Southern District of New York.

Federal Judge Samuel H. Kaufman presided at the first trial.

Spaniard's Feast Is Chiefly Alfalfa

Cordoba, Spain, Oct. 31 (AP). — At 71, Miquel Ruberte claimed a gastronomical record today.

On a bet during a fiesta, said reports from nearby Lucena, he consumed 17 pounds of green alfalfa, three pounds of uncooked corn, six quarts of wine, two shots of whiskey.

London, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Britain will withdraw its garrison troops from Greece soon because of the improved military situation in that country, Foreign Undersecretary Christopher Mayhew told the House of Commons today.

Mayhew said recent victories by the Greek army would enable the withdrawal "as soon as practicable." It was estimated that the move would involve about 3000 men, although no official figures were disclosed.

Mayhew warned, however, that the threat to Greece's independence has not yet passed. He denied that the withdrawal was forced by "economic reasons," and said the cost of maintaining troops there had been comparatively small.

He added that the withdrawal would not affect the British naval, military and police missions now functioning in Greece.

"Neither does it indicate a lessening interest in the security and well-being of the Greek people which continue to be matters of grave concern to His Majesty's government," Mayhew said.

Greek Rebel Refuge Plan Offered U. N.

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 31 (U.P.). Australia put before the United Nations today a unique plan to set up a U. N. haven for Greek guerillas now taking refuge in nearby Communist countries.

The unprotected area would be outside Greece — perhaps on an island. It would serve as a staging area for guerilla refugees wishing eventually to filter back into normal civil life in Greece or—in the case of the "hard core of irreconcilables"—to emigrate away from the zone of conflict.

The unique blueprint was explained to the General Assembly's main political committee by Australian Delegate Norman J. O. Makin.

The thinking behind the Australian plan was that the dispute between Greece and her northern neighbors cannot be solved until the future of the 12,000 or more guerillas in Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria is settled.

Greece feels that they are a constant menace, that they might at any moment cross the border and foment civil war in Greece.

Meanwhile, Russian proposals to recommend a general amnesty for Greek guerillas and holding of new elections were rejected in a hard-hitting 16-page speech by British Delegate Hector McNeil.

3 Italians Quit Cabinet, Reds Act for Strike

Rome, Oct. 31 (AP).—Italy's anti-Communist Socalists walked out of Premier Alcide de Gasperi's cabinet tonight just as his government was facing a Communist-led general strike.

The resignation of the three Socialist cabinet members who form part of the de Gasperi coalition apparently was not connected with the eight-hour strike, but it may force the resignation of the gavernment.

The Communist-directed General Confederation of Labor had ordered its five million workers to stage a walkout protesting the death of two farmhands in clashes with police yesterday.

Premier de Gasperi declared he would try to persuade the Socialist ministers to stay in the government with his Christian Democrats.

Under traditional parliamentary procedure de Gasperi, faced with resignation of three of his ministers, would present resignation of his entire cabinet to the Italian President. Thus a cabinet crisis would be precipitated.

The leader of the right-wing Socialist Party (PSLI), Giuseppe Saragat, stepped out of the vice premiership and the Ministry of Merchant Marine. With Saragat went the Minister of Industry and Commerce, Ivan Matteo Lombordo, and the "Marshall Plan" Minister, Roberto Tremelloni.

In a 1500-word communique the party executive declared the ministers left the government in order to facilitate a merger of all of Italy's anti-Communist forces. The ministers themselves indicated they resigned because continued participation made it impossible to unify Italy's Socialists into a single bloc.

Recently Czechcoslovakia demanded that two American attaches—Isaac Patch and John G. Heyn—leave Prague within 24 hours. No such time limit was put on the departure of the two Czechs from this country. The United States took the position at the time of the Czech action that 24 hours' notice was unreasonable.

Czechoslovakia also jailed a United States Embassy clerk, Samuel Meryn, on espionage charges. Meryn lacked the diplomatic status which protected the attaches. He has been in jail since October 21.

5 Sessions On European Defense Held

London, Oct. 31 (AP).—The process of putting life and force into the 12-nation Atlantic Pact began today.

At the first of five regional meetings, defense ministers of Britain, Denmark and Norway issued instructions for the active planning of a unified defense of northern Europe.

Tuesday their chiefs of staff meet again to carry forward plans for the first link of a defense line stretching from North America across Europe to the Mediterranean.

Similar meetings of the other four regions set up by foreign ministers of the Atlantic Pact nations in a Washington conference last August are to be held soon.

N. E. Halaby, 35-year-old director of the Office of Foreign Military Affairs under the U. S. Secretary of Defense, is first chairman of the board.

Tito Calls Upon Army Reservists

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Oct. 31 (AP).—Marshall Tito, bolstering his defense, has called back to duty a number of reserve officers, technicians and specialists. This is not a general mobilization of reserves, but the move emphasizes Yugoslavia's general preparedness against possible attempts by the Moscow-led Cominform to overthrow the Tito regime.

In addition, the regular autumn call-up of recruits has begun, and one can find lines of marching teen-agers along Yugoslav roads, headed for their two years of compulsory military training.

Tito has declared his army must be on the alert and must strive to maintain the highest degree of efficiency. He has charged Russia and her obedient satellites with pressing their troops on Yugoslavia's borders in an attempt to make the independent-minded Yugoslavs "lose our nerves."

Yugoslavs have been stirred to the height of indignation over the latest charge that Hungarian troops laid down an eight-hour barrage of shells and grenades into Yugoslavia last week. No casualties were reported, but the Yugoslavs officially called it a "warmongering provocation."

Blandy Named To North Atlantic Planning Group

The Defense Department disclosed yesterday that Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, Atlantic Fleet commander, has been designated United States representative of the North Atlantic ocean regional planning group.

The group is one of five set up by the North Atlantic treaty nations to plan military defenses. It comprises Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Iceland, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Britain and the United States.

At its first meeting in the Navy Building here, the group took up organization matters and policies and procedures to be followed. Blandy was elected chairman.

Britain Needs More Help, Says Expert

New York, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—One of Great Bitain's top financial experts hinted today Britain may seek an "increase of overseas lending" from the United States.

Sir Sydney Caine, minister for financial affairs and head of the United Kingdom Treasury, told the National Foreign Trade Convention his country faces a "long pull" to increase earnings enough to replace "special temporary aids which we have been getting.

"We must hope, therefore, that some contribution to the filling of the gap will also be found in an increase of overseas lending by this country.

"A real effort at international cooperation, involving private initiative as well as government action, will be needed to make important progress in this field," he said.

Caine devoted only a brief part of his 2500-word address to anticipated new help from the United States. He spoke on "prospects of trade between sterling and dollar areas."

Mexican Closes Western Union With Pension Suit

Mexico City, Oct. 31 (AP).—All Western Union's cable and telegraph equipment in Mexico is attached by a pensioner who wishes his pension paid in advance.

Demetrio P. Cacoulides, former Western Union manager at Tampico, filed a claim for $32,000 to cover the time insurance companies expect him to live.

Western Union closed here June 15 when the government nationalized international telegraph and cable business. The company gave severance pay or paid lump sum pensions. Cacoulides rejected them.

Soviet, West Act Against Use of Veto

El Caudillo Dines Out

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

DESSERT—Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain's chief of state, serves himself some dessert at a banquet at Coimbra University during his recent visit to Portugal

Lake Success, Oct. 31 (AP).—Russia and the Western Powers announced today they are going to consult in advance of major Security Council decisions in hopes of reducing the number of vetoes. But it was clear the big powers still disagreed on one question which already has resulted in 22 Soviet vetoes.

The United States, Britain, Russia, France and China disclosed they had agreed last Friday to set up machinery for conferring with each other in an effort to avoid exercising the veto power.

By Alphabetical Turns

The five permanent members decided to take turns alphabetically in holding themselves responsible for calling the premeeting conferences. The responsibility will be rotated on a monthly basis.

It also was agreed that a five-power conference may be called on the request of any permanent council member.

While the big-power announcement was being made, Britain was telling the General Assembly's special political committee she still flatly rejects a Russian proposal on the question of admitting new members to the 59-nation world organization. On this issue alone Russia has cast 22 of her 41 vetoes to upset majority decisions.

Denounces "Horse Trade"

British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan said his government could countenance no "horse trade" with the Soviet Union for the blanket admission of applicant countries variously supported by Russia and the West. Russia has said it would vote to admit eight nations supported by the West—Italy, Ireland, Portugal, Finland, Hashemite Jordan, Austria, Ceylon and Nepal—provided the Western powers agree to admit simultaneously five countries backed by Moscow. These are Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and Outer Mongolia. In its "bargain" proposal, Russia did not agree to vote in favor of the Republic of (South) Korea, a ninth applicant with Western approval.

When East-West debate on the Greek-Balkan conflict was resumed today, the Assembly's 59-nation political committee called on Communist-dominated Albania to see that no more attacks are made from Albania against United Nations observers in Greece.

Spain Offers War Aid for U. S. Funds

Madrid, Oct. 31 (AP).—Spain has offered the Atlantic powers a guarantee of active aid in any war with Russia in exchange for American financial assistance, it was reliably reported today.

Trustworthy diplomatic sources here and in Lisbon said the Spanish offer was made in two private meetings which Generalissimo Franco had with Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar of Portugal during his recent visit to that country.

No communique was issued after the meetings, however, and it has been impossible to obtain official confirmation of the report. The diplomatic informants said the Spanish guarantees offered by Franco would be contained in a military alliance with Portugal, already a member of the North Atlantic Pact. Such an alliance would promise the Portuguese the aid of Spain if they should be drawn into a war with Russia because of their Atlantic Pact membership.

It is not known whether such an alliance actually was signed, or whether Franco merely made the offer pending the receipt of reaction from the United States.

Diplomatic informants here say, however, the generalissimo's offer was a move in his drive to obtain American credits for vitally needed raw materials and supplies.

Commons Votes Measure Ending Veto by Lords

London, Oct. 31 (NYHT).—The Labor government's bill to curb the veto power of the House of Lords was debated and approved finally by the House of Commons for the third time.

The measure, passed on its second reading tonight by a vote of 333 to 196, will again be sent along to an unfriendly House of Lords which twice has exercised its right of veto and rejected it.

Under the bill, the Lords may delay legislation pased by Commons for a period of only one year instead of two. The bill now has been referred to the Lords for the last time. What the peers do will make no difference. The measure will become law sometime in December.

Immediate purpose of the legislation is to insure that the government's measure to nationalize the iron and steel industry finally becomes law sometime next spring, before the government's term of office expires in July. With their veto power pruned, the Lords will not be able to hold up the nationalization measure longer than that.

Portugal, Spain Set To Hold War Games

Customs Men Talk Over Rule Changes

British and Canadian customs experts began a week of technical discussions with American officials yesterday, with the aim of cutting out unnecessary red tape in the custom procedures of all three countries.

The visiting officials conceded that their customs procedures, too, were cumbersome and out-of-date in many respects, and could be improved. But the main subject matter of the conference is American customs rules which, in the eyes of foreign exporters, are a big obstacle to the sale of dollar-earning goods here.

Edward H. Foley, jr., Undersecretary of the Treasury, and Frank Dow, commissioner of customs, welcomed the visiting officials to this country. Those who came from Britain were Edmund Smith and R. Ashford of the Treasury and J. A. E. Smart of the Board of Trade.

The Canadians sent Hubert Kemp of the Department of Trade; Andrew Brown and Norman Sharkey of the customs service, and W. Plumptre of the Department of External Affairs. After a preliminary meeting at the Treasury in the morning, the officials got down to business in the afternoon at the offices of the customs bureau, 1512 H st. nw.

American officials confirmed yesterday that they would have similar discussions in coming weeks and months with representatives of other nations that are troubled by American customs regulations.

Export Controls Lifted From 165 Commodities

The Commerce Department, continuing its program of liberalizing trading controls, yesterday removed about 165 commodity classifications from export licensing requirements.

The decontrol action means that the commodities, all nonstrategic and in ample domestic supply, may be shipped abroad without prior permission from the department. They include such items as leather and hides, oilcake, dried and condensed milk, textiles, and wood products.

In opposite action, the Commerce Department imposed export controls on nine classifications of refined oils, mostly aviation types "highly important to the national security."

Heuss Hits East German Red Control

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, Oct. 31 (NYHT).—Federal President Theodore Heuss of Western Germany directly challenged today the authority of the new East German regime and declared that only his government had the right to speak for all Germans "including the millions who must be silent in the East."

These words were greeted with a roar of applause by 80,000 spectators who turned out to honor the scholarly white-haired president on his first state visit to this Western outpost behind the Iron Curtain. His visit was widely hailed as a symbol of solidarity between the western sectors of Berlin and West Germany.

The climax of his busy day were ceremonies at the City Hall awarding him the freedom of the city.

In his speech to the mass meeting, President Heuss pledged support for Berlin's leadership in the struggle to win all of Germany for Western democracy.

"I am asked what I am doing in Berlin," he said. "I am standing here because Berlin belongs to the West . . . I am standing here as a speaker for the millions of Germans who must be silent in the East. I stand here to proclaim for the Germans in the East and for all Germans the principles to which we adhere: civil freedom and national unity, Christian ideas and a regard for social welfare. This is the meaning of this hour."

Colonel Ross Milton, deputy commander of the Military Air Transport Service for Operation, will discuss the Berlin airlift at the Exchange Club luncheon at noon today at the Hotel Burlington.

Colombia Liberals

Party Vows Not to Accept Poll Results

Bogota, Oct. 31 (AP).—Colombia's Liberal Party declared tonight it will not recognize the results of the presidential election November 27, even if it is held. The Liberals claim a swelling wave of political violence proves the Conservative government cannot guarantee a free election.

Dario Echandia, the Liberal candidate for the presidency, ratified the decision, declaring that "not only suspension of the policy of violence against Liberals, which is condoned by the authorities, but also removal of its effects" are necessary prerequisites to a free ballot.

With only four weeks left before the voting, Echandia said, the situation cannot be remedied in time.

Reports of political violence continued. The town of Arauca was reported looted and set afire.

Press dispatches, which the government of Conservative President Mariano Ospina Erez said it was unable to confirm, declared 36 persons were slain.

The party press of both factions reported many other incidents of political bloodshed today, the major one being a liberal organ declaration that more than 100 were slain by Conservatives in the department of Santander Norte yesterday.

If the reports by the party press are accurate, more than 500 persons have been slain in the last fortnight.

Berlin Called Advance Post Of Democracy

Mineral Wells, Texas, Oct. 31 (AP).—The State Department's German policy chief today forecast the development of Berlin as "an advance outpost of democracy" in Communist-run Eastern Europe.

In a sweeping review of German policy Henry A. Byroade also discussed the possibility of further revision of the Allied program for dismantling German industrial plants.

If it is shown that mistakes have been made in working out the program, he said, he would expect the Western powers to "rectify them." German political leaders have made an issue of demands for a scaling down of the list of plants to be removed from Germany.

Byroade recently took office as director of German and Austrian affairs in the State Department. His speech, before the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, was his first public statement on German policy since he took office.

He pictured Western Germany as being still in a transition stage from Nazism to democracy and said bluntly that the Western powers have not "eradicated Naziism and created a democratic society."

"But I believe that our regime in Germany," he continued, "has excluded Nazi activists from vantage points of influence and has laid the groundwork for a democratic state. We enter today upon a new phase of our political task in Germany. We can combat the anti-democratic forces only by democracy in action. Suppression is futile, and we cannot impose a new faith by duress as the Soviet authorities have sought to do in the east. If it comes it must come of German striving and determination."

"We shall not be forced from Berlin," Byroade declared, "and we shall endeavor to make that war-ravaged city an advance post of democracy in eastern Europe.

"We shall procede with our program in the west, with the door always open for Soviet participation in the common effort to resolve the German problem. But we shall never purchase Soviet cooperation at the cost of principles we consider vital to the peace and comity of Europe and of the democratic world."

In discussing the plant dismantling problem, Broade recalled that the Allies had outlawed war industries with a high war potentialindustries with a hgh war potential to an output sufficient only for peacetime needs.

"Our dismantling program, so widely misunderstood," he said, "was methodically calculated to strip Germany of her war industry and of that surplus of productive capacity which was created by the Nazis as auxiliary to their war machine and which is in no wise essential to a peaceful economy. . . .

"It may be argued that the calculations underlying the program were in error. If further study should indicate that mistakes have been made, I would expect the three governments concerned to rectify them. In fact, the original agreements (among the Western Powers) concerning prohibited and restricted industries have already been revised on two occasions."

THE COAL INDUSTRY IS . . .

Fighting for the Right to Serve You

The public wants and needs a steady, dependable supply of coal.

We want to provide it . . . must provide it if we are to stay in business.

And we must provide coal at a reasonable price—a price that is competitive with other fuels.

We are being prevented from doing so by a labor monopoly that dictates when and how much the miners can work. These repeated restrictions on working time determine when and how much coal you can obtain and increase the price you must pay for it.

The present strike was preceded by a succession of 'memorial periods,' 'spontaneous' work stoppages, vacations, 'stabilizing periods of inaction,' 3-day weeks and no-day weeks. It is an intolerable situation . . . It is unnecessary . . . It is unreasonable . . . It does not make sense.

So far this year union-dictated strikes have cost the miners 60 days of lost work—an average of more than $900 per man in lost wages.

Highest Rates of Pay Go to Coal Miners

Coal miners know that under the expired contract their wages were higher than in any other major industry. They know that their pension and welfare benefits were far greater; that their hours of actual work were shorter.

In the first 6 months of 1949 . . .

The bituminous coal miners' average *hourly earnings in the first six months of 1949 were $1.94 . . . as compared with $1.39, national average for all manufacturing.

Their average *weekly earnings in the first six months of 1949 were $70.94 as compared with $54.65 for all manufacturing.

The average *annual earnings of full-time employees in the bituminous coal mines in 1948 were $3,387 as compared with $2,809 for all industry.

The coal industry has invested hundreds of millions of dollars in up-to-date machinery and facilities to make mines safer, make work easier and more productive and improve the quality of coal. These investments have also made possible a reduction in man-hours required to produce a ton of coal, but . . .

Demands of the Labor Monopoly Take All These Savings

Labor savings through the use of machine power have not been enough to offset rising wages. Over the years all the benefits have gone to meet the union's demands with the result that consumers have had to pay more and more for the coal they use.

Enforced increases in the cost of coal are only one of the evils of this labor monopoly. More serious is the whittling away of the individual freedoms, personal liberties and the right of free choice.

Here indeed, is the real danger for it strikes at the heart of our way of life.

Isn't it time to stop this mad race for power and plunder by this labor monopoly?

You must provide the answer. For only the American people can check the arrogant power of union dictatorship. If enough of us believe that it's time to call a halt and will make our voices heard, the situation can be corrected.

We have laws to protect people against business monopolies. We should have the same protection against union monopolies. We can have it if enough of us decide . . . IT'S TIME TO CALL A HALT!

Navy Fleet Leaves For Arctic Workout

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 31 (AP).—More than 100 ships, a number of which are making possibly their last cruises, sailed today from Norfolk and other East Coast ports to participate in cold weather and antisubmarine exercises in the Far North. Many of these ships are slated to be deactivated under the Navy's economy program.

Under the command of Vice Admiral D. B. Duncan, USN, the Second Task Fleet will test men and material in sub-Arctic waters. Not war maneuvers, but exercises designed to give the maximum amount of training to the 45,000 officers and men involved, the cold weather tests will last for about three weeks.

The fleet will steam up through Davis Straits, between Greenland and Labrador, where extremely low temperatures are anticipated. The maneuvers will give training to antisubmarine warfare, large-scale carrier air strikes, aid reconnaissance, and simulated atom bomb attack on the fleet by lend-lease planes.

Reds' Charge Against Ward Doubted Here

By The Associated Press.

The State Department voiced skepticism yesterday about the charges that Chinese Communists have placed against Consul General Angus Ward and four members of his staff at Mukden, Manchuria.

They are being held for trial by a "people's court" on charges that they beat a former Chinese employe of the consultate, the department has been informed.

Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said: "It is difficult to understand how this incident could have occurred, since Ward and the entire consulate staff have been under strong guard ever since the Communists seized the city last November.

"Communist guards have been on duty both inside and outside the two residential compounds and the consulate general office," he added.

Meanwhile, a report is being awaited from Consul General O. Edmund Clubb at Peiping.

Ward and 4 of Staff Held in Mukden Jail

Hongkong, Oct. 31 (AP). — The Communist radio said today that Angus Ward, American consul in Mukden, had not been released but still is held in jail with four consular employes pending trial before a Communist "people's court" on charges of beating a Chinese employe.

The Peiping broadcast cleared up an impression that Ward had been released after being held for several days.

The Communists said Ward and the other employes, two of them Americans, "put on an overbearing air and refused to admit what they had done" when summoned to a public security bureau after the alleged assault, and that they were being "detained."

British Navy Frees Ships From Chinese

Hongkong, Oct. 31 (AP).—British warships have caused the Nationalist Chinese navy to release one British merchant vessel and have escorted three others to safe arrival in Communist territory, the government of this colony disclosed today.

The Nationalists have been blockading the Communist coast since last June.

Today's official Hongkong government announcement said the British warships had no intention of forcing the blockade, but were there to protect the rights of British merchant ships outside Chinese territorial waters.

It said the merchant ships Louise Moller, 2600 tons, and the Tsinan, 2994 tons, had successfully reached Shanghai after being escorted to the Yangtze River mouth by the Destroyer Alacrity and the Frigate Mounts Bay. It said the Alacrity and the Destroyer Concord also met the 250-ton merchant ship Wosang and "remained in company" until Chinese territorial waters were reached.

Denfeld Successor Studied

might be given the Denfeld assignment, temporarily. The thought was that the problem of reinstilling discipline and unity throughout the Navy after this fall's blowoff might better be handled by one known to agree with the dominant Navy concept, at least for the moment.

Sherman is definitely understood to be the choice of Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. President Truman, it is understood, has not yet finally passed on the appointment.

Sherman is still the odds-on bet, but whether it'll be an immediate assignment or whether someone—possibly a top-ranking retired officer—might be called in temporarily—was the subject of discussion in defense circles last night.

There was talk of Fleet Almiral Chester Nimitz, Admiral Richard Conolly or Admiral William H. P. Blandy for such an interim post. Whether the latter would take it is another question.

Sherman's views on the current dispute are not well known. Nimitz, Conolly and Blandy testified in support of the Navy's dissent to the official strategic concept, but the former did not appear in person and the latter two did not get into "personalities."

Sherman was called back from his Mediterranean flagship, and flew from Beirut, Lebanon, to New York by commercial aircraft, in civilian clothes. He was due to arrive on a Pan American Clipper this morning.

There are reports that Sherman will oppose his immediate appointment, on the ground that too many in the Navy would consider him a committed "yes-man." One suggestion last night was that Blandy or someone else be named Chief of Naval Operations with Sherman as vice chief, until the latter had satisfied both his superiors and subordinates that he was working both for unification and the best interests of the Navy.

Meanwhile, there was no clear indication of whether Denfeld would accetp another job or retire. One consideration was that his assignment to another Navy job in his present rank might force the demotion of another officer. Denfeld is said to be dead set against this.

After the retirement of Admiral Thomas C. Kincaid next spring, the Navy will be allowed only four four-starred admirals. Should Vice Admiral Sherman come in, and Denfeld remain on the active list, there would be an excess of full admirals.

It would mean that Blandy, Conolly, or, more likely, that, Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Pacific Fleet commander—the junior of the three—would be in line for reduction to vice admiral. There have been suggestions that Radford, leader of the Navy revolt against current Pentagon policies, might also be "purged." But Denfeld is hardly likely to force his reduction.

There is an additional "four-star" post as head of the military advisers' unit at the United Nations. It is suggested that Conolly, who is due for reassignment, be given this spot and Denfeld be assigned to London. But it is now the Army's turn for the senior U. N. post with its boost in rank. Some top officials, moreover, were of the opinion that President Truman might be able to authorize another four-star post with the Western European military command for Denfeld if he so desired.

The best bet, however, was that Denfeld would retire—even though it means cutting his pay in half for the next few years.

Meanwhile, four members of the House Armed Services Committee joined in a blistering statement accusing Secretaries Johnson and Matthews of "broken pledges and smearing tactics" in removing Denfeld.

They said they would combine in a movement to curb Johnson's powers next winter. The members were: Representatives Lansdale Sasscer (D., Md.), F. Edward Hebert (D., La.), Leslie C. Arends (R., Ill.) and W. Sterling Coles (R., N. Y.).

The four Congressmen declared statements of the Defense and Navy Secretaries that Denfeld's removal was based on the ground he was not qualified for his job "take the prize for outright quackery and injustice."

"Statements that his removal is not a reprisal would be laughable were the situation not so tragic," they said. "How obvious it is that had Admiral Denfeld's testimony been satisfactory to Secretaries Johnson and Matthews, there would never have been the slightest suggestion that his qualifications were inadequate."

Book by Stettinius To Describe Yalta

Frankly" or in Robert E. Sherwood's "Roosevelt and Hopkins," until now the most authoritative sources for the story of the Yalta conference.

Clew to Soviet Policy Seen

Stettinius himself regarded the President's assurance as a possible clew to Soviet policy since Yalta. He wrote in his book that it "may have influenced" the policy-makers in Moscow.

"Whatever the reason," Stettinius commented, "shortly after the Yalta conference had closed the Soviet Union began to hedge on some of its agreements; they impeded the formation of a German control commission; they failed to live up to the 'Declaration on Liberated Europe' as applied to Romania; and they greatly impeded execution of the Polish agreement."

Before many months, President Truman and Secretary Byrnes were warning that American troops would stay in Europe as long as necessary. And Soviet pressure on Western Europe reached its peak in 1947, just when President Roosevelt's two-year time-limit expired.

That Day Stalin Yielded

The Stettinius book does not say whether Stalin made any reply to Roosevelt's remark. But on the same day the Soviet leader suddenly gave up his objection to letting France have an occupation zone in Germany.

The next day, February 6, 1945, Churchill hinted that France might have to take over occupation duties when the Americans withdrew.

"The Prime Minister observed," says the new book, "that he felt the future importance of France had been greatly enhanced by the limitation the President had placed on the previous day on the length of time during which American forces might remain in Europe. Great Britain alone, he added, would not be strong enough to guard the western approaches to the Channel.

"The President immediately pointed out that he had spoken purely on the basis of present conditions. American public opinion, he felt, would be willing to support an international organization along the lines proposed at Dumbarton Oaks. This, of course, might change their attitude in regard to the question of maintaining troops in Europe."

Back-tracking Suggested

This passage suggests that the President himself felt he had to back-track somewhat from his assurance to Stalin of the day before.

Stettinius, who attended the conference as Secretary of State, explained the President's assurance in the following passage, written, of course, in the light of the past four years of history:

"Although this (the Roosevelt assurance about troop withdrawals) may now sound astonishing, it must be remembered that there was already a ground swell of public opinion demanding that our forces be returned home as soon as the war was over.

"Furthermore, it is reasonable to assume that, had Russian-American relations remained at the high-water mark reached at Yalta, public opinion would not have favored American troops being stationed in Europe for too long a time after the close of the war.

"It was the deterioration in Soviet-American relations after Yalta that rapidly changed American opinion on this question."

Based on His Own Notes

The Stettinius book is based on his own notes, on access to official documents and on conversations with President Truman. The book earnestly argues that the Yalta conference was not a "sell-out" to Russia.

"It is not Yalta that is the trouble with the world today," Stettinius wrote in a foreword, "but subsequent failures to adhere to the policies Yalta stood for and to carry out agreements that were reached there."

Dealing with the secret Far Eastern agreement made at Yalta, Stettinius wrote that it was entirely the product of the military leaders' advice to President Roosevelt.

"It must never be forgotten," he wrote, "that, while the Crimea Conference was taking place, President Roosevelt had just been told by his military advisers that the surrender of Japan might not occur until 1947, and some predicted even later. The President was told that without Russia it might cost a million casualties to conquer Japan. . . . He did not approve the agreement from any desire to appease Stalin and the Soviet Union."

In view of Stettinius' death, the publishers in New York gave permission yesterday to quote from the book in advance of Thursday's publication date.

Korean Army Set for War

Tokyo, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Sihn Sung Mo, South Korean defense minister, here to see General Douglas MacArthur, said today that his army was ready and waiting to invade Communist-controlled North Korea, but that it had been restrained by American officials.

At the same time President Syngman Rhee said in Korea that his government would not much longer tolerate a divided Korea "and if we have to settle this thing by war, we will do all the fighting needed."

Rhee spoke to officers and men of the visiting United States Seventh Task Fleet, aboard the flagship St. Paul. He described Korea as a "living body cut in half."

Referring to the readiness of his troops to drive into North Korea, Sihn expressed confidence that they could wrest control from the Communists.

000-a-year job as chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corp., which he had attained at the age of 37.

His father, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., had taken the same road to Washington in the World War of 1914-1918, and had become an effective public official as Assistant Secretary of War.

Young Stettinius was pitched at once into the work of supplying the Allies and of gearing American production for war. He served for a year as commissioner for industrial materials under the old Council of National Defense, and then as director of priorities in the Office of Production Management. He was genial and informal in his ways, but soon won a reputation as a man of action.

When the Lend-Lease Act was passed in 1941, after bitter controversy in Congress and in the country, President Roosevelt decided to set up a new agency to handle the vast work of supplying the hard-pressed Allies. His appointment of Stettinius as administrator was popular on Capitol Hill.

Congressmen trusted Stettinius as a man who had "met a payroll." They had confidence in him as a businessman who would know how to manage a multi-billion-dollar enterprise. They found him frank, ingratiating and helpful in all his appearances before them.

Stettinius attracted able men to Washington in his lend-lease days. Under his direction the new agency had a driving energy, a sense of spirit and purpose, which few of the wartime agencies could surpass.

Perhaps for this reason, the President appointed him Undersecretary of State in 1943, to the surprise of official Washington and the country, when Sumner Welles resigned.

Mr. Stettinius was not at home in high diplomacy as he had been in his lend-lease pob. His chair as Undersecretary was hardly warm when Secretary Cordell Hull flew off to Moscow for a Foreign Ministers' conference, leaving the inexperienced Stettinius as Acting Secretary.

Old-line officials at the department were suspicious of him as an outsider brought into a post that had usually gone to career officers of the Foreign Service. Their suspicions were confirmed when Mr. Stettinius promptly put through a drastic reorganization of the department.

He not only shuffled the organization charts, but he tried to apply business methods in the old State Department Building on Pennsylvania ave.

Mr. Stettinius ran into more trouble when President Roosevelt appointed him Secretary of State on December 1, 1944, after Secretary Hull resigned. In the field of policy he promptly tangled with Prime Minister Churchill of Britain over Italy and Greece, and Churchill had to protest sharply to the President.

In the field of organization, Stettinius stirred criticism in Congress by appointing Nelson Rockefeller and Archibald MacLeish among his new Assistant Secretaries.

Apart from organizational matters, he devoted most of his time to the formation of the United Nations. He was chairman of the Dumbarton Oaks Conference of 1944, where the major powers drew the first blueprint of the United Nations Charter.

President Truman at once asked his friend James F. Byrnes to be Secretary of State, but Byrnes declined until after the San Francisco Conference. So Mr. Stettinius was the chief American delegate there, and was the storm center of many crises, notably over the admission of Argentine to the United Nations. After leaving office he served for a year as American representative on the Security Council of the United Nations.

Back in private life, he became rector of the University of Virginia, which he had attended as an undergraduate.

Funeral services will take place Wednesday at 10 a. m. at St. James' Episcopal Church in New York. In addition to his wife, the former Virginia Gordon Wallace, and his sister, Mrs. Trippe, Mr. Stettinius leaves three sons, Edward R., Wallace and Joseph, and another sister, Mrs. John B. Marsh.

U. S. Standard Code On Building Sought

American building officials, in four-day conference here, yesterday moved toward adoption of a standardized building code to be made available to cities throughout the nation.

The code, result of four years' work by manufacturers, architects, and building officials, will be presented at a meeting Wednesday of the Building Officials' Conference of America, Inc., and the Building Officials' Foundation at the Wardman Park Hotel.

A. J. Benline, superintendent of New York City's Department of Housing and Building, explained to 150 persons at yesterday's meeting in the Wardman Park that the standardized code will overcome "highly inadequate" features of many codes now in use.

It will be based no "performance" of structures rather than on set "specifications," as most codes are now, Benline said.

He predicted unanimous acceptance of the standarized code by building inspectors, commissioners and superintendents gathering here.

Norbert Brown, public relations counsel for the builders' organizations, said the new code will dispel the public's feeling that "obsolete building codes" are the "handiwork" of building officials, who are merely assigned to "administer" them.

John Weinhart, vice president of the Detroit Associations of Home Builders, made "a frank bid for closer cooperation between architects, home builders and building officals" through improved public relations.

Charles E. Bacon, building commissioner of Indianapolis, urged a concentrated educational campaign to produce "elimination of air pollution by smoke."

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, the District's engineer commissioner, welcomed the group yesterday morning. John W. Oehmann, of Washington, past president of the Building Officials Conference, is chairman.

Ex-Slave, 105

One Man Left In Accursed Town Dies

Oliver, Ga., Oct. 31 (AP).—The lone survivor of Jacksonboro—the accursed town that was—is dead.

Out of that once damned, now desolate region on Beaver Creek came word today that Richard Bryant, 105-year-old former slave, had died Friday night.

He was the only man alive who saw the terrible curse of a little hunchbacked itinerant minister, Lorenzo Dow, come true.

The once bustling town disappeared house by house, store by store, until but one house remained—the house specifically spared by Dow.

Moved Five Miles Away

When Bryant was three years old, the white residents gave up in despair at the freaks of fire, water and wind and moved lock, stock and barrel 5 miles away to found another town, Sylvania.

Jacksonboro, half way between Augusta and Savannah, was founded in 1794. It flourished as a coach stop and county seat. It was a rough, tough town in a rough, tough time.

In 1830 Dow drifted down from the hills and called upon the people to repent. They laughed. They pelted him with eggs. They would not let him preach.

The little minister lived in torment. Finally, Seaborn Goodall gave him sanctuary in his home. But a mob drove him out of town.

Jeered at by Mob

Dow paused on a bridge at the outskirts. He turned on his tormentors. He removed his shoes and shook the dusk of Jacksonboro from his feet.

Then he swore that God would bring swift vengeance, the same that overtook Sodom and Gomorrah. The mob laughed and jeered.

Fires broke out, windstorms tore off roofs, the placid creek rose and swept away homes in flash floods.

Time and disaster removed all traces of the town, but the Goodall place still stands.

Here Bryant was born into slavery. He was a young man when Sherman marched through, burning houses along his route. But the Goodall home was spared.

Friday night, when old "Uncle" Richard died, by the light of a flickering kerosene lamp, they say there was an awful rustling in the trees. And an old hound howled.

Vishinsky Seeks Interview With Acheson Nov. 7

Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia has asked for an interview with Secretary Acheson in Washington on November 7.

This is the anniversary of what the Russians call the "Great October Revolution," the date in 1917 when the Soviet regime seized power. The Soviet Embassy here is giving its usual reception to mark the occasion, and Vishinsky plans to be on the receiving line.

Because of the date, officials here were inclined to believe the Soviet explanation that Vishinsky's call at the State Department would be solely a "courtesy visit." When V. M. Molotov was Foreign Minister in 1946 he also came to Washington for the Embassy party, visited the State Department and, for good measure, paid a courtesy call on President Truman.

Vishinsky has been at Lake Success, N. Y., heading the Soviet delegation at the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Transit Radio Sweet and Low, Engineer Claims at Hearing

of its hearings on transit radio, also heard Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, declare that repeated exposures of some individuals to things they dislike may become a contributing factor to such complaints as high blood pressure or gastric ulcers. He emphasized he was speaking in general terms and had not examined any persons protesting the transit radio. He emphasized, too, that likes and dislikes, even strong likes and dislikes, are normal possessions of normal human beings.

The expert engineering and medical testimony was produced by opposing lawyers—McIntosh was presented by Thomas N. Dowd, counsel for Washington Transit Radio, Inc., which set up the radio system by contract with Capital Transit; and Dr. Overholser was presented by Franklin S. Pollak, Justice Department attorney intervening privately in the PUC case.

A feature of the hearing was denial by PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan of a number of motions by Pollak to introduce certain documents, and to strike out of the record preceding evidence.

Pollak sought to present the rates charged by Transit Radio for advertising. He said they had a bearing on the point made by advocates of the radio setup that it would have a beneficial effect on revenues of Capital Transit. When his move was rejected, he asked that all prior testimony about revenue be stricken, and this, too, was denied.

Flanagan, after his rulings, explained that the PUC felt the matter of revenue was incidental to the installation of transit radio facilities. He said detailed information about the background of operations of the radio firms was not relevant to the hearing.

McIntosh also presented testimony to reconcile the fact that people hear the transit radio with his figures showing that the radios do not increase the noise level. "The ability of the mind to pick out the sounds a person wants to hear is one of our faculties," he said.

McIntosh said, too, that the power output of sound has to be doubled to make it go up three decibels—"a very fortunate thing, otherwise we'd all be going crazy every time someone tooted a horn or slammed a book on a table."

When Overholser took the stand, Pollak cited reasons given by objectors to the transit radio for their feeling — "too much noise and confusion; less enjoyable for those who like to read, converse, think, or rest; resent being forced to listen."

"What is the medical effect," asked Pollak "on all or some of the persons who give these answers?"

Overholser replied: "As to any individual, it's difficult to say. But as for certain persons with violent likes or dislikes, if one of them is subjected to this, it may have a frustrating, annoying effect which may produce nervous symptoms. I'm speaking generally."

Overholser said it was generally recognized that complaints like high blood pressure and gastric ulcers are caused by nervous strain, as distinguished form physical strain. He added that "we're recognizing more and more that many physical complaints may have a substantial emotional element in them.

"People vary in their reaction to music. Some are almost obtuse. Others are jumpy. We can shut our eyes, but we can't very well shut our ears, except by mechanical means. Some people take violent objection to certain types of music.

"The ability to shut off one's attention varies considerably. Some persons become so absorbed in reading a book that they can become quite oblivious of what's going on around them. They are the minority, usually those who are quite scholarly."

Ben Strouse, president of Transit Radio and general manager of WWDC, disclosed in his testimony that Civilian Defense officials had been very favorably impressed with the potential use of transit radio in emergency. He said he had conferred a few weeks ago on this question with Col. Barnet Beers, and with Col. R. S. Stanford, head and communications officer, respectively, for the civil defense liaison committee of the Department of Defense.

He said they had cited among possible uses for transit radio: (1) instructions to head for the outskirts (3) conversion of radio-equipped buses into emergency ambulances for disaster aid, (4) panic control of passengers.

Detailed testimony about the programs over transit radio was given by Norman Reed, program director of WWDC.

The hearing will resume at 10 a. m. today for probably the final session.

New Federal Salary Table

By Jerry Kluttz

This is the new and official Federal salary table as prepared by the General Accounting Office. The table is self-explanatory.

It covers all of the Federal and District government employes whose salaries are fixed by the new Classification Act.

Under it, any employe can determine what his paycheck will be under the new pay-reclassification act that raised the salaries of the 885,000 classified workers an average of $140.50 annually. The new law is now in effect. Paychecks under it will appear for the first time the latter part of November.

Court Acquits Two on Fake Money Charge

When is counterfeit money not counterfeit money?

Why, when it doesn't look like real money, of course.

That is what a District Court jury decided yesterday in acquitting two men of possessing counterfeit money. The men they turned loose were David (Sleepy) McDowell, jr., 24, of 1618 8th st. nw., and Clarence A. (Buster) Jackson, 39, 737 Howard rd. se.

McDowell and Jackson had been charged with having four $10 silver certificates (photostatic reproductions of the real thing) in their possession last July.

Assistant United States Attorney Arthur F. McLaughlin contended Jackson and McDowell meant to distribute these bills in the heat of one or more crap games.

But, the court was told, the bills were made by a 15-year-old boy, an office boy for a national association at the time. They were black and white copies of the $10 bill, with the seal and numeral marked in blue on stiff paper.

Defense Attorney Rey K. Nelson said the bills were not even good enough to fol most people. He said it wouldn't be possible to show an intent to violate the law with bills like this.

After feeling of the bills, the jury agreed. "Not guilty," they said.

Flower Week Distributions to Clubs Begins Here

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la, should also be appreciated in the fall.

That is the thesis of National Flower Week, which began yesterday with distribution of flowers to garden clubs by local florists.

National Flower Week has been with us for about four years, and is a reminder to seek better enjoyment and better use of flowers, be they home or gren-house grown.

Bill Preserves Historic Sites

Sites, buildings and objects of national significance will be preserved under terms of a bill creating a National Trust for Historic Preservation in the United States, just signed by President Truman.

The trust will be organized by the National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings, according to General U. S. Grant, III, who announced signing of the bill. The trust, said Gen. Grant, will encourage preservation "on every level, national, regional, State and local."

Wealthy Virginian Beat Her, Wife Charges

A soft-eyed blonde yesterday accused her wealthy Virginia husband of beating her up and then forcing her to fly here from Argentina without her infant child.

She is Mrs. Helen Arleene Yerkes Wickes, 24, of Providence, R. I. The husband, Robert Boal Wickes, 47, is listed as having residences in Mount Vernon, Va.; New York City and Buenos Aires.

Mrs. Wickes has asked the District Court to award her custody of their 2-year-old daughter, Judy Alicia, and $2000 per month temporary alimony.

Wickes, a member of the District Bar who was served with his wife's suit while he was in the Supreme Court library, contests the right of the court to try the case here, and points out that the child is in Argentina.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut reserved judgment until November 10 on whether his court will decide the case, but commented:

"Why should she be compelled to go to Argentina—6000 miles away—to a foreign court to recover her own child? Both these people are American citizens and this seems to be a question that should be heard in an American court."

Mrs. Wickes told reporters she met her now graying husband on a train when he introduced himself to her. There was a whirlwind courtship, a $2500 engagement ring, and a marriage in two months. Following this, she said, they honeymooned in Bermuda, travelled and decided to settle down in Argentina.

Court papers filed through her attorneys, John A. Croghan and Marion West, state that Wickes has a $50,000-a-year income. He has $500,000 deposited in the Riggs National Bank here, is beneficiary of a large trust fund and is the principal stockholder in a large Venezuelan oil corporation, according to the papers.

In Argentina, she states, he has a yacht and racing sloop, three automobiles, and a large hacienda equipped with swimming pool and numerous servants.

According to her suit, on February 2 in Buenos Aires, Wickes attacked her and otherwise "mistreated and abused" her. And two days later, the suit says, he "physically" forced her to board a plane for America without her child. She says she was given her plane ticket and $40.

Mrs. Wickes, who has been a stenographer, said she is penniless, but plans to keep the child in her parents' home in Rhode Island.

Vote Change Plan In Virginia Flayed

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 31 (AP).—Walter Johnson of Heathsville, Virginia's Republican nominee for Governor subject to the November 8 general election, today struck out against the proposed Campbell amendments to the State Constitution, which would change voting regulations, as a disclosure of "machine philosophy."

"Under this proposal the General Assembly would be given power which it never ought to have," he said in a radio speech.

"It would be given power to require annual registration of voters four months before either a primary or general election; power to levy a head tax and require that it be paid as a condition precedent to getting any license of any kind; and power to institute a system of examining the people to determine whether or not they have the intelligence to vote."

Although declaring himself in favor of a poll tax repeal, he termed the amendments "something that would heap . . . indignity on the free people of this commonwealth."

Johnson said it is the duty of state citizens to vote their best judgment in the gubernatorial election and not follow statements which he attributes to his Democratic opponent, State Sen. John S. Battle, that they are "morally obliged" to vote for the Democratic nominee if they voted in the Democratic primary.

Annual Registration Held Not Part of Plan

Richmond, Va., Oct. 31 (AP).—A Republican member of the Campbell Commission which recommended suffrage amendments to be voted on in the November 8 election emphasized today the amendments in no way contemplate annual registration.

Federal Judge John Paul of Harrisonburg in a letter to the Richmond Times-Dispatch said the amendments provide "that persons who are registered shall 'renew such registration annually in such manner as may be provided by law.'

"This does not involve going through the formality of registering annually," he said, "but means only that a current registration shall be renewed each year in such manner as the legislative may provide."

He recalled the suffrage commission "recommended the manner in which this renewal of registration should be accomplished" in any one of three ways:

"(1) By the mere act of voting in the preceding year, (2) by the payment of personal property taxes in the preceding year or (3) by applying to the registration board in writing for a renewal of registration."

Judge Paul said none of these required the voter to go through the formality of registering each year.

"Of course," he said, "no one can at this time give a guarantee as to whether the General Assembly might adopt this plan for renewal of registration and, for that reason, it is particularly desirable that the incoming Governor should make known whether he will recommend the adoption of this plan by the General Assembly, or something substantially like it."

Battle Cites Reasons For Poll Tax Change

Richmond, Va., Oct. 31 (AP).—John S. Battle, Democratic candidate for Governor of Virginia, tonight gave his reasons for supporting the proposed suffrage amendments to the State constitution, and said he believed they should be adopted.

In a four-page statement he said: "It is certain that the poll tax, as a prerequisite to voting in the election of all Federal officers will be prohibited by Congress.

"If we fail to adopt the proposed amendments, we will have one set of laws and one set of qualified voters in Federal elections, and different laws and different voters in State elections. This will be an impossible situation and will lead to endless confusion and to dangerous consequences."

Thomas Recovering From Leg Surgery

New York, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Radio news commentator Lowell Thomas tonight was reported recovering nicely from surgery on the leg which he injured recently while returning from a visit to the Dalai Lama in Tibet.

Lowell Thomas, jr., substituting on his father's regular Columbia Broadcasting System program, said the operation was performed Saturday because the compound fracture of the right leg was not mending properly. He said his father would be back on the air Tuesday.

Mate Kills Violinist and Her Mother

John Harding Mrs. Harding
Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

Toledo, Ohio, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—A meek, 67-year-old businessman beat his wife and mother-in-law to death with a claw hammer today because his wife taunted him with her unfaithfulness and told him she "needed younger men."

John A. Harding, owner of a small manufacturing business, said he also was outraged because his music-teacher wife, Mildred, 46, turned their home into a "grand central" station of pupils.

"I had to kill somebody," he said.

Harding said he broke out in a "cold sweat" thinking about it as he lay in bed last night. He arose and bludeoned to death Mrs. Harding, his third wife, and her mother, Mrs. Fred Thompson, 70.

Then he drove to Detroit and told his daughter what he had done. She notified police who arrested Harding on a charge of first degree murder. The blood of the two women was still on his hands when he went to his daughter's home.

"It's been hell for 12 years," Harding asserted. He said his wife told him she had been unfaithful for two years.

"She told me about it," he said. "She told me she needed younger men and the only reason she stayed around was to have a home."

The wife, a violinist, was one of Toledo's best-known musicians and operated a school with four other teachers. She had converted five rooms of the 10-room house into music studios.

Harding was a retired auto parts manufacturer of moderate means. He had been under a doctor's care several weeks for a nervous condition.

This One's Changing a Lot of Minds

MOST people have a habit of setting their sights on cars of a certain "price level"—and making a choice on the basis of what they can afford to buy.

Then, on the scene, came this stunning beauty—and in a few short weeks turned a whale of a lot of decisions in a brand-new direction.

Why not—folks figured—get really fresh style lines and that stout bumper-guard grille that can take any normal impact yet won't "lock horns" with cars ahead?

Why not get good, substantial roadweight and a lot more interior room when they come in a car that's shorter in bumper-to-bumper length for easier parking, garaging and handling in traffic?

And why, the shrewd shoppers asked, take anything less than this straight-eight thriller when it wears a price tag that any new-car buyer can reach, and actually costs less than many sixes?

Truth is, this spanking-new Buick SPECIAL turns a searching light on every car in its price range—on many above and below too—and looks the better for it every day.

Better in its advanced styling and amazing interior roominess and traffic-handy size.

And certainly far better in the lift and life of its valve-in-head Fireball power—the level-going steadiness of its buoyant Buick ride—the silken luxury of Dynaflow Drive, optional here at modest extra cost.

So why not set your sights on this beauty of a buy and let the facts of hard-pan shopping comparison open your eyes to a new opportunity?

Your Buick dealer will gladly let you sample its sparkling action on the road—and give you the news on how quickly delivery can be made. Go see him—and get your name on the dotted line.

TEN-STRIKE!
Only Buick SPECIAL has all these Features!
TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE • MORE ROOM FOR THE MONEY • DYNAFLOW DRIVE optional at extra cost • JET-LINE STYLING • NON-LOCKING BUMPER-GUARD GRILLES • HIGH-PRESSURE FIREBALL STRAIGHT-EIGHT ENGINE • COIL SPRINGING ALL AROUND • LOW-PRESSURE TIRES ON SAFETY-RIDE RIMS • GREATER VISIBILITY FORE AND AFT • SELF-LOCKING LUGGAGE LIDS • STEADY-RIDING TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE • THREE SMART MODELS WITH BODY BY FISHER

Second Lady

A great many Americans have followed Vice President Barkley's inescapably public courtship with sympathy and support. The Vice President left the world in very little doubt about either his ardor or its object and perhaps was guilty of bringing to bear upon Mrs. Hadley the pressure of a mounting and expectant public opinion. In the kind of campaign in which he was engaged, however, this must be reckoned fair enough. In the light of her capitulation, Mrs. Hadley must certainly forgive it. She can be sure of sharing in the great esteem and very warm affection that the whole Nation feels for the Veep.

Trade-Killing Customs

In an article appearing in the Sunday Washington Post, Ferdinand Kuhn reports that the Treasury has already made considerable progress in clearing what he aptly calls the "jungle of American customs procedures." The Treasury has summoned customs collectors from all parts of the country to a conference next month to discuss ways and means of further easing requirements. In many cases, however, the practices complained of are required by law and cannot be changed by administrative action. Consequently, the Treasury intends to press for legislative changes that would enable it to reform its practices along the lines of the Geneva Tariff Convention of 1947 and the charter of the International Trade Organization (not yet ratified by the Senate).

Treasury officials think that foreign exporters are disposed to exaggerate the difficulty of conforming with our customs regulations because of ignorance. Accordingly the department is preparing a booklet for their use, setting forth the main procedural requirements and the purpose behind them. It is hoped by such means to overcome purely psychological barriers to trade based on fear of the unknown and stories, sometimes fictional, of the highhanded methods and manners of American customs officials. However, there are many vexatious barriers, and they are itemized in a current ECA report. The sincerity of our professed desire to expand world trade by a general lowering of barriers to imports will be subjected to an acid test, therefore, when proposals for legislative changes permitting modification of customs procedures are presented to Congress at the next session.

Disparaging The Atom

It appears to be becoming rather fashionable nowadays to deprecate the atomic bomb as a lethal instrument. You would think, to hear some of the fellows talk about it, that an atomic explosion is not really much more dangerous than an ordinary Fourth of July firecracker or Roman candle. The vogue was initiated earlier this month by Comdr. Eugene Tatom of the Navy when he testified before the House Armed Services Committee in the course of the naval bombardment of the Air Force. Commander Tatom, you will remember, said you could stand nonchalantly at one end of a Washington Airport runway with no more protection than your ordinary clothes and remain there unscathed while an atomic bomb went off at the other end. Why anyone would want to do this we cannot say.

Just this week, the Deputy Surgeon General of the Army, Maj. Gen. George E. Armstrong told the International Congress of Military Medicine in Mexico City that the death-dealing radiation effects of an atomic blast last only a matter of minutes in a bombed area. You could have walked right over from one end of Commander Tatom's runway to the other and peered into the bomb crater without any fear of radiation effects. The only trouble, according to General Armstrong, is that you wouldn't have been able to walk. Radiation or no radiation, explosive force or no explosive force, you would have suffered flash burns. You would suffer flash burns, the way General Armstrong figures it, if you were twice the length of a Washington Airport runway away from an atom bomb explosion.

At the same Mexico City conference, Maj. Albert J. Bauer of the Army Surgeon General's office said that everyone within half a mile of an atomic blast would be as dead as if he had been hit on the head with an old-fashioned TNT blockbuster, but that those between half a mile and a mile and a half away from the explosion would run no more than a 50-50 risk of being killed. With four miles between you and the bomb, he said, you scarcely have to worry. All these people, of course, were talking about ordinary atomic bombs. Nobody seems to have any statistics yet on the potentialities of the projected superbomb.

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr.

Edward R. Stettinius, jr., must have been the most amiable Secretary of State, as he was the second youngest, in American history. He exuded charm. Nor did he restrict his friendliness to those in a position to do him favors. If he were ever guilty of an impoliteness, it was due to some pressure or other which put him, especially when he was in high authority, in a state of stress or bewilderment. Presence joined with personality in producing this excess of urbanity. Handsome and well-groomed, "Ed" was the man of distinction, crowned with a poll of prematurely white hair. His ability to make friends with his buoyant, even boyish, good nature had less art than artlessness. It was sad to hear two years ago of such a sunny person brought low with a cancerous condition which gave him much pain and suffering.

Mr. Stettinius' shortened life reads like a fabulous success story in business and Government. It was really a charmed life. Born to riches as the son of a Morgan partner, he found himself in one position after another, till at 37 the escalator landed him at the chairmanship of the board of U. S. Steel. He had little predilection for business, and no aptitude for it. His heart's desire was human relations, and, although he liked to sit on top of Big Steel, the position was too impersonal for him. However, he had one moment of keen pleasure there; that was when he signed the first labor contract between Big Steel and the CIO's steelworkers. As a mixer he had done well in industrial relations, and this capped his business career.

Edward Stettinius, as a big business rebel from "unbridled capitalism," welcomed the New Deal. At heart a meliorist, he thought the Government had a place as umpire in the industrial struggle and as champion of the underdog; and his sympathy with Mr. Roosevelt drew him in 1939 to Washington. However, the New Deal then was rapidly giving place to war preparedness, and Mr. Stettinius had a succession of posts having to do with industrial mobilization. In all of them he listened to expert counsel. When war came, he was shifted to the administration of lend-lease, and here he had as capable a group as has ever been assembled. That was a tribute to him. Mr. Stettinius guided the operations with aplomb, and a measure of his success was the debacle that occurred under the regime of his successor, Mr. Crowley.

Mr. Stettinius was one of Harry L. Hopkins' proteges in Government. And why he went to the State Department as Undersecretary in 1943 is explicable in the close contact he had established with Mr. Hopkins. But it wasn't this friendship that accounted altogether for his elevation to the Secretaryship of State in 1944. Mr. Roosevelt, irked by the flashes of independence he had felt in Mr. Hull, was determined to be wholly his own Secretary of State. He wanted somebody at State who could execute his designs through the intermediation of Mr. Hopkins, and the pliable and ornamental Mr. Stettinius was ideal for this purpose.

In retrospect the appointment looks almost frivolous. Within half a year Mr. Roosevelt died, leaving Mr. Stettinius not only substantively Secretary of State, but heir-apparent to the Presidency. Mr. Stettinius, untrained and inexperienced, bore his burden and enjoyed his eminence with his habitual bonhomie in which, however, there began to creep a sense of destiny. He surrounded himself with the best qualified counselors—or, rather, they surrounded him. They stayed at his side even in the intimate seances of the Big Five at the San Francisco Conference. However, it was a great experience for Mr. Stettinius, full of history, the limelight, and the chance to show hospitality. After it he gave place to Mr. Byrnes, and left the State Department with an imprint upon some of its methods of handling its multitudinous tasks, and with the affection of many associates.

Single Market

It has been said that if Moscow had been financing the Marshall Plan, the results so far would have been hailed as a stupendous success. And, surely, the credit side of the account is impressive. Runaway inflation has been stopped, production has been hoisted above prewar levels, and the political institutions of western Europe have been strengthened against the erosion of communism and Moscow-inspired conspiracy. But what the United States sought was, to quote Secretary Marshall, a "working economy" for Europe, and in this respect there has been retrogression, not progress. Mr. Marshall used the singular word advisedly, because economic integration in Europe would coincide with enlightened self-interest, and the lack of it would be fraught with danger for America and instability and poverty for Europe. In unity there is strength, and strength in western Europe is a shield and buckler for the United States, as well as the only way that Europe can relieve itself of dependence upon American aid.

To be sure, an integrated Europe was impossible of achievement while the Europeans felt insecure. Integration means division of function. But, when security is in question, no country will, say, let its watches be made by a neighbor, lest it lose in the process a precision instrument industry necessary to its military security. That this has been understood in the United States is shown by the leadership that this country has undertaken in the one-for-all and all-for-one Atlantic Pact. The Pact, as Gen. J. Lawton Collins has just implied, makes Europe's borders our borders. That is to say that defense rather than liberation is the American objective in case of attack. This is the background for Mr. Hoffman's plea to the Organization of European Economic Cooperation in Paris yesterday for a single market in Europe. Hitherto Mr. Hoffman, a production man by instinct, has harped on production, but expanding production requires a wide market, and separatist markets in Europe only make for high cost economies which will hold back living standards, and keep Europe depressed.

The American people will applaud the new campaign that the ECA administrator has undertaken. They want the redemption of promises to demobilize the bristling tariff and currency barriers in Europe which are on the record. To make sure they are realized, future Marshall allocations, the maintenance of which Europeans take for granted with an almost maddening complacency, should hinge upon performance.

Matthews' Reasons

Secretary Johnson has made a logical answer to the charges of various Congressmen that the firing of Admiral Denfeld amounted to making him "walk the plank" and was a "reprisal" for his testimony before the House Armed Services Committee. Mr. Johnson alludes to the statement in Secretary Matthews' letter to the President that matters had come to a head on October 4. This was nine days before Admiral Denfeld testified on Capitol Hill; it was, however, the day after the surreptitious release to the press of the confidential memorandum of Vice Admiral Bogan strongly criticizing Pentagon policies. This memorandum bore Admiral Denfeld's concurrence. In giving it his approval, he elected to become the spokesman not only for the dissentists within the Navy but also for the group of top admirals who had never fully accepted the unification Secretary Matthews was trying to enforce.

Clearly, in this light, the issue in the ouster was not Admiral Denfeld's testimony before Congress. There he was under obligation to speak his mind, and the disagreement he voiced was still within bounds of propriety. But the break had come earlier and the friction, according to Secretary Matthews, was so great that it was "utterly impossible for me, as Secretary of the Navy, to administer the Department of the Navy in the manner I believe vital to national security." This situation confronted the President with an either-or choice. If he had not assented to the removal of Admiral Denfeld, it would have meant that civilian control of this department of the armed forces had been passed to the military.

The one element of mystery remaining is how Admiral Denfeld, a mild-mannered man who himself had been criticized by many of the stronger Navy partisans, suddenly emerged as the leader of the internecine fight. One possible explanation is that he had not intended to imply oppositionism when he indorsed the Bogan memorandum and that he decided to cast his lot with the admirals only after he was, so to speak, in the soup. If that was the case, it would absolve him of the implication of disloyalty to Secretary Matthews after he had accepted reappointment.

Religion In Politics

New York is getting a pretty strong sample, in the present campaign, of what it means to have religion mixed with politics. Up for reelection, Mayor O'Dwyer, in an obvious bid for Catholic support, has made a savage attack on the Barden bill, a measure not before any New York body but before the House of Representatives in Washington. The same issue has been injected into the senatorial contest between Senator Dulles and former Governor Lehman, although in a less direct fashion. Mr. Lehman favors the Thomas bill for Federal aid to education, and Senator Dulles opposes it. Yet even in this case the religious issue does not arise directly, for the Thomas bill would leave the States free to follow policies of their own making as to the use of educational funds for transportation of parochial school children and for the purchase of nonreligious textbooks for use in sectarian schools.

Of course, the use to which educational funds shall be put in the States is unavoidably a political issue. Under the Supreme Court's opinions, the States are free to decide for themselves whether their funds shall be used for transportation and textbooks for the benefit of sectarian schools. Decisions on these issues will doubtless continue to encourage religious factionalism in the States, whether or not the Federal aid-to-education measure is passed. Nevertheless, the furor in New York ought to be ample warning against extending the admixture of religion and politics to the national domain. The way to keep the church and the state separate is to insist that each shall stand upon its own feet. Fortunately, the Thomas bill can be enacted without any encroachment upon this principle. It seems to us that the New York campaign has further emphasized the desirability of this bill as the only means by which Congress can buttress weak State educational systems without dragging religious issues into the arena of national politics.

AUTUMN ROOM

The under side of the plum
Is pearled in darkness,
And sheen of the wine velvet
Is dulled by the pressure of the stroking hand.
Two candles are lit and blaze like white stars
Revolving in the polar night.
The polished wood of the staircase
Strikes half-notes,
Black against the luster of the walls.
On the jade cushion the Siamese kitten
Curls in an Oriental pattern
Painted by a brush of ebon and ivory.

Atomic Propaganda

President Truman's appeal to Russia to review the Baruch proposals for atomic control was a fitting subject for the U. N. cornerstone laying. But it might well become a double-edged propaganda weapon.

The recent Kremlin line has been to glorify Soviet superiority in every way over the western world. Thus it might be expected that the Russian people will believe that their atomic bombs are bigger and more numerous than those of "decadent" America.

Distorted Russian propaganda is very likely then to portray the President's appeal as a frantic attempt to save America from these superior Russan bombs. It could well give the impression that the United States and Russia have changed sides in the atomic balance and that Truman is now merely seeking the same protection that he would not concede the Russians when they were without the protection of the bomb.

Of course, it would not be pointed out that the major Soviet objection to the Baruch proposals has all along been that there would be excessive intrusions upon national sovereignty—that same sovereignty which, in their more orthodox Marxist moments, the Russians so abhor.

The United States should waste little effort—save that that possesses propaganda value—toward the conclusion of any agreement that would have the effect in any way of reducing or circumscribing Soviet power or advantage. Past experience—Potsdam especially—has demonstrated that the Kremlin abides by only those agreements that will prove to its own benefit.

Instead of pursuing unrealistic goals, our Government would do well to consider atomic energy much as it did poison gas and bacteriology during the last war. Both of these mass weapons were vigorously stockpiled for any eventuality. But by tacit or concrete agreement they were kept from use. No military power will utilize a mass weapon when the risk of retaliation outweighs the advantage to be gained from its use. JOHN B. FERRIS.

Czech Uranium

Miss G. Manhal, in her letter of October 17, made an effort to back up Mr. Drew Pearson's allegations concerning a secret, Russian operation, using slave labor, at the Jachymov uranium mines in Czechoslovakia.

Jachymov is not a closed area, contrary to the assertions of both Mr. Pearson and Miss Manhal. Of course, permission must be obtained to go through the mines, just as no one may go through an industrial establishment or mine in the United States or anywhere else without permission. But the fact is that visitors have gone through the mines, some of them have taken pictures, and some of the pictures have been published in magazines of general circulation.

In conceding that Jachymov is a popular health resort, Miss Manhal then tries to move the geographical location of the mines. Radium is the source of the health cure in Jachymov—Mme. Curie isolated radium out of these same ores—and it seems obvious even without recourse to a map that the radium of the health cure and the uranium of the mines come from the same location.

There is no slave labor in the mines. I included the slander that there is slave labor in Czechoslovakia in the reference in my first letter to Mr. Pearson's use of "old, long-disproved stories." Conditions of work for the miners are much better than before World War II, and their health is correspondingly better. They may work underground for a short period only after which they must transfer to work above-ground. The conditions in the mines are well-known because the miners on their long vacations visit throughout the country. JAN VINAR.

Belief In The Bible

You recently published a letter from a correspondent (Rev. John O. Knott, October 25), who advocates considering the Bible a collection of Jewish legends of some literary merit, dubious authenticity, and slight historical value.

Equal prominence should be given to the fact that belief in the Bible as the infallible word of God has been the inspiration for many great achievements of lasting value in education, science, literature, medicine and other fields. In our time belief in the Bible as the infallible word of God made a useful scientist out of George Washington Carver. Disbelief in the Bible has made bums of plenty of promising material.

Disbelief is a negative, unproductive attitude. Faith is a flame that inspires, warms and lightens the path to unselfish achievement.

When a thing is inherently incapable of either proof or disproof, belief or disbelief is a matter of the will rather than of the intellect. Many of us blessed with high IQs and university educations find it pleasanter and more profitable to believe that the ass spoke to Balaam than that there is merit in the dilettante doubtings of the skeptical.

"Steel Stalemate

As a stockholder of the United States Steel Corp., sometime ago, I received a printed letter or statement from Chairman Irving S. Olds, dated October 1, 1949, in which he stated:

"The only pensions to which the chief executives of the United States Steel Corp. may become entitled upon retirement are under this contributory pension plan, which is applicable upon exactly the same basis to every employe receiving compensation in excess of $3000 a year."

I am in 100 percent agreement with your October 28 editorial against noncontributory pensions either by the officers or the employes of the steel company as well as Mr. Murray—but if the above statement from Mr. Olds is true, there are no noncontributory pensions of $50,000.

Bar Exclusion

One of the local papers reported that the "successful candidates (for the bar) were given a luncheon by the junior bar section of the District Bar Association at the Annapolis Hotel" Correctly it should have read "successful white candidates were given a luncheon . . ." I think it is significant that in the year 1949, an association of men, trained in reasoning and thinking, should have found that it was too great an effort to break bread with their fellow American Negro members.

Invoking Taft-Hartley

A real American puts his country before himself, friends or politics. Today we have a crisis facing us which can become deep rooted on account of politics only.

We have the Taft-Hartley Act that the President can invoke.

Pros And Cons On Transit Radio

I have read with much interest the stories of the public hearing regarding radios in buses, and I was surprised to note that there was no mention of the one fact which should condemn the whole project. I am wondering whether the riding public is aware that the bus radios are equipped with an auxiliary circuit tuned to an ultrasonic signal of 20 kilocycles by means of which an operator in the broadcasting station can increase the volume of the loudspeaker in the buses merely by throwing a switch. This will explain why it is that the music about which everybody argues can scarcely be heard, while the commercials practically blast the eardrums.
CLARKE C. MINTER.
Washington.

The radios on the transit company vehicles provide persons who don't have radios with a brief experience with a broadcast of news, correct time and music—and at times when there's a moment in which one can afford to listen. Transit operators may welcome the entertainment.

But the greatest value to the public is in the possibility of emergency broadcasts, especially as war is expected to come without warning.
E. B. ANDERSON.

When capitalism can compel passengers cars and buses to hear radio advertising then become unwilling parts of a money-making scheme for private gain, the "handwriting on the wall" will become visible to the most nearsighted.

This invasion is a phase in the push-button war for the minds of men. Because it is inescapable by all who can hear it goes beyond visual bids for attention. Isn't the real question being overlooked in this bus-streetcar-music snarl? Why should anyone be compelled' to listen to a station he never tunes in? German Past Still Haunts

By Marquis Childs

Integration With West

BONN, Germany—On a mountain top across the Rhine sit the Allied commissioners who are trying to direct the occupation of Germany. Here in Bonn, in what was once a museum, is the government that is struggling to create a democratic state out of west Germany.

Fittingly, it is a museum that houses Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and the members of his cabinet. For it is the grim past that haunts the new government and bedevils its relations with the Allies. Like an evil genie, it is constantly rising to plague the harrassed men who hurry back and forth across the Rhine in an effort to reach a reasonable plateau of understanding.

A recent episode illustrates the way in which the horrors of the past decade cast a sinister shadow over the present effort. While it has thus far been kept out of the news, Allied commissioners have been informed of a shocking new discovery at the Nazi concentration camp at Dachau. It is a huge mass grave, hitherto concealed, that is believed to contain more corpses than any other such mass burial ground.

One estimate is that remnants of 300,000 victims may have been dumped into the newly discovered Dachau grave. This discovery may throw more light on the disappearance of the German Jews—of whom only 45,000 survive in Germany—than anything yet to come to light.

CONCEALMENT of this vast entombment and its accidental discovery are somehow almost as shocking as the newest evidence of mass murder by the Nazis. A road was built across the grave and, according to my source of information, this was done at the direction of local German officials with the deliberate intention of concealment. Suspicion grew when the road began to settle. Then, when workers for the state railways were obtaining sand from a nearby pit, the corpses were exposed.

As the story was told to the commissioners, the local burgomeister insisted that these must be corpses from the Napoleonic war. But a hurried investigation brought the gruesome facts to light. The dimensions of the grave were reported to the commissioners to be 360 feet long by 60 feet wide and 18 feet deep. How many human beings were actually interred there will probably never be known.

The Allied commissioners were profoundly shocked at the report. They were fearful of inflaming public opinion in the Allied nations and therefore making any kind of working agreement more difficult to reach. For this reason, word of the discovery was not in the first instance made public. It will certainly tend to strengthen feelings, which are particularly acute among the French, that the German people show no remorse for their hideous crimes of the past; that, in fact, they now refuse to believe these things took place, insisting they are Allied propaganda against the German people.

THE ATTITUDE that prevailed after World War I is beginning to revive again. President Theodor Heuss of the new government, in a recent conversation with American Commissioner John J. McCloy, spoke of the sufferings of Germany under the Versailles Treaty. Astonished, McCloy asked Heuss if he was really serious in his reference to Versailles. Heuss replied that indeed he was serious.

In my opinion, American policy makers here take what is perhaps the only realistic view of the Adenauer government. It is far from perfect. It has its own museum-like quality. Its roots are not deep in German soil. Yet it is probably the best government obtainable in view of the failures and conflicts among the Allies and among the Americans themselves in the four years since the war ended.

Hope, therefore, lies in integrating the west German government with the countries of western Europe in some sort of a federation. The urgency of this integration in the immediate present weighs heavily on responsible Americans. A worse government, motivated by the hates and excesses of the past, might follow the failure of Chancellor Adenauer, who is credited by all three commissioners with deep sincerity in his desire to bring west Germany into the family of nations in a closer and more vital relation than ever existed before.

The past cannot be ignored or conveniently erased, as the Soviet Russians have done in their propaganda drive to woo the German people. But neither can it be permitted to obsess and dominate the present. To permit the past to dominate the present moment is to risk a repetition of the monstrous excesses and horrors that have been lived through since 1933.

"Senator X"

I've seen good editorials and poor ones in The Post. One of the worse—almost smelly—was that of October 29, entitled "Senator X."

What kind of a Chief of Staff have we if he can't remember how many divisions Russia had in the field at the end of World War II? MORE LIGHT.

Our Political Economy

By Ysabel and Robert Rennie

Freedom To Strike

LARGELY as a result of the paralyzing steel strike, the Federal Reserve index of industrial production for October is expected to drop 20 points, to the lowest level in three and a half years.

It has been two years since the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act. That law went onto the books after the steel, coal and railway tieups of 1946, a year when strikes cost the economy 113 million man-days of labor. Again in 1949 we face the question which no law has yet answered: What are the rights of labor when the public welfare is involved? How can the two be reconciled within the framework of a free society?

The Taft-Hartley Act empowers the President to take certain steps when he believes "national health or safety" to be imperiled. These include an elaborate ritual of fact-finding boards, injunctions and elections which could delay a strike for at least 80 days. It is a solution premised on the "cooling-off" theory, a doubtful proposition at best. Legal delay in labor disputes has more often led to heat than to coolness.

The injunction clause has been bitterly contested by labor. Unions have feared a return to the days before the Norris-LaGuardia Act, when court injunctions were a major weapon against labor.

INJUNCTIONS can delay major strikes, but even the Taft-Hartley Act does not pretend to stop them. The major issue therefore remains unresolved.

About a third of all union members belong to six big unions: Mine Workers, Steel Workers, Auto Workers, Teamsters, Carpenters and Machinists.

This is a giant concentration of labor power, and in great measure an answer to the concentration of industrial power which preceded it. The Norris-LaGuardia and Wagner Acts were labor's charters for industrial organization. Before the New Deal, labor was organized on craft lines. Then the Committee for Industrial Organization brought whole industries under single mass unions.

Labor learned what business had learned, that only the big are strong. It learned, also, to rely on government to make it stronger. But as the size of the protagonists has grown, disputes which, in the words of the Taft-Hartley Law, imperil "national health or safety" are becoming routine to the collective bargaining process.

It is easy to moralize and scold. Writers have accused both sides of being selfish. That is not, however, the real issue. Labor and management are behaving as they always have. What has changed are the dimensions of the struggle. When giants do battle, small men may be hurt.

LABOR hopes through political action to repeal the Taft-Hartley limitations on free collective bargaining. It is hard, however, to believe that labor will ever again be granted a free hand in disputes which affect public welfare.

Collective bargaining, to be effective, must entail the right to strike. Yet with strikes causing national paralysis, this is increasingly intolerable to society.

A nation-wide labor dispute has two evil effects. First, there is the dislocation from the strike itself. This is the more critical aspect, but it is not the more important. What is more significant is the increasing tendency for a major wage settlement to set an arbitrary, and perhaps a distortional, pattern for all industry.

There is no guarantee that a settlement reached through the exercise of sheer economic power will be a good one for the economy. In times of full employment and inflation, labor's strong bargaining position may force wage increases which add fuel to inflation. On the other hand, in times of widespread unemployment, industry's power can be used to beat down wages.

GROUND between the upper and nether millstones of organized power, it is not surprising that the unorganized individual turns more and more to the state for protection. At the same time unions, which had grown to consider government their protector, have discovered the unpleasant truth that what the sovereign grants, he can also take away.

As government assumes increasing responsibility for stabilizing the economy—a function which unions are urging upon it—it will inevitably enter the wage-price picture. A full employment policy with teeth entails a national wage policy. There is no avoiding it.

Whether we like it or not, the trend is not towards free collective bargaining, but away from it.

We have seen the same phenomenon in other countries. Even here, though we are not at the end of the road, we are moving in a direction which can only cause concern to all who believe in a free society. All-embracing government is not the beginning of justice for the individual, but its end.

Merle Miller To Speak at Book Event

Merle Miller will return to Washington, the scene of his latest novel, "The Sure Thing," when he appears as guest speaker at The Washington Post's Book and Author Luncheon on Tuesday, November 8, at 1 p. m., in the Presidential Room at the Statler Hotel.

Miller

Miller got the idea for "The Sure Thing," the story of a loyalty investigation in the State Department, while in Washington in 1947 seeking material for a book on the New Deal. At that time the President's loyalty program had just been announced.

The Washington scene is familiar to Miller, since during the war he spent some time here working on the staff of Yank Magazine. Prior to that he was a Washington correspondent for the Philadelphia Record.

Other authors who will be guest-speakers at the luncheon are: Frederick Gutheim, author of "The Potomac;" Alice Tisdale Hobart, "Oil for the Lamps of China," "The Cleft Rock," and Hartzell Spence, "One Foot in Heaven," "Happily Ever After."

Tickets for the luncheon are now on sale for $3.00 at local bookstores.

Central to Pick Award Nominees

Alumni nominations for certificates of distinction are to be selected at an open business meeting of the Central High School Alumni Association Thursday at 8 p. m.

The meeting is to be held in the school library. The certificates of distinction annually are awarded to six outstanding alumni. Also to be discussed at the meeting are plans for the forty-first annual reunion of the association, to be held early next year.

Future status of Central High School will be discussed at the session by Edward T. Dunlap, president of the Alumni Association.

Chorus Sings Bach Mass With Surety

The Mass in B Minor by Johann Sebastian Bach was sung in Washington Cathedral last night.

It was the third performance of this work by the Cathedral Choral Society under the direction of Paul Callaway. Two soloists, Ruth Diehl, soprano, and Clifford Harvuot, baritone, returned in solos they sang in earlier performances. Frances Lehnerts, contralto, and David Lloyd, tenor, made their Washington bows in the large work, though Miss Lehnerts was heard here last spring in solo recital at the National Gallery.

The orchestra, drawn from the National Symphony, was supplemented by Richard Dirksen, organist, and Daniel Pinkham playing the harpsichord. Lois Wann and Engelbert Brenner provided the important oboes d'amore, and provided them beautifully. The instrumental playing was excellent throughout.

Mighty Passages Increased

In his three years of conducting this titanic score, Callaway has made perceptible changes in his conception. There is an increased breadth in mighty passages of certain choruses, notably the Kyries, Confiteor and the Qui Tollis. Also Callaway is freer in the way he broadens final cadences at important points. He has added about 20 minutes to his total performance time.

The Cathedral Choral Society sings the music with greater surety as is natural with any group giving annual accounts of the same music. The impact with which they bring forth great utterances such as the Sanctus, the Gloria, and the "Et resurrexit" is exciting.

The beauty of their tone in quiet passages is even more moving. At this volume the acoustical problem posed by the building is not evident. It is possible that the best solution to size of chorus, location in the church, and tempos of performance has been found for the rapid coloratura sections of the Mass.

Albert Schweitzer says, "In Bach it is particularly important that the spirit be fulfilled rather than the letter." In Paul Callaway's reading, the spirit was constantly and faithfully put first.

Soloists Sing Well

The vocal soloists were of unusually high caliber. Miss Diehl has one of the perfect voices for Bach. Her knowledge of the Mass is impressive, for she voices its difficult phrases with easy authority. Frances Lehnerts sang numerous assignments with beautiful tone and style.

David Lloyd has become one of the country's outstanding concert tenors. His musicianship and voice made one regret the few sections for the tenor. Clifford Harvuot has increased both in voice and in style since his first singing here two years ago. He made the two bass solos all that they should be.

It is an encouraging thing to realize that the future of Washington's two largest choral societies is in the hands of Paul Callaway. When he conducts the united Washington and Cathedral Choral Societies in Handel's Messiah in December it should be a profoundly thrilling occasion.

Spread Urged Of Pastoral Ministries

A New York clergyman yesterday urged Washington ministers to expand their pastoral ministry because there "never was a time in the history of America when people needed a shepherd as they do today."

Speaking at a meeting of the Washington Ministerial Union at St. Luke's Lutheran Church, the Rev. Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, pastor of First Baptist Church, Syracuse, N. Y., declared that "as Protestants we have got to do a great deal better job than we have been doing in our pastoral ministry."

He urged the clergymen to "ring door bells" and "not just drop in for a coldly ecclesiastical call" on their church members. Ministers, he said, should visit all parishioners so that they will return to their pastors in times of crisis, rather than limiting themselves to calls on the sick and those in a crisis.

Although Dr. Dahlberg called for an expansion of the psychological services of the church, he declared that clergymen "can't resign all of their ministry to the psychologists and psychiatrists because we've got something to contribute that they do not have."

"In our appeal to the resources of the eternal, we have something to impart that psychiatrists cannot give," he said.

Dr. Dahlberg, chairman of the department of evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, urged the pastors to organize the lay people of the church to assist in evangelistic work.

PBA Accepting Judiciary Square Construction Bids

The Public Buildings Administration yesterday issued a call for bids on 10,000 square feet of office space in the Judiciary Square area which it needs for courtrooms, offices and chambers for the new judges recently authorized by Congress.

The PBA is also looking for 70,000 square feet of office space in Washington or nearby Maryland and Virginia for Housing and Home Finance Agency's personnel working on the new public housing and slum clearance programs. Units of at least 30,000 square feet each will be considered, PBA officials said.

Special forms for the proposals may be obtained at room 6306, General Services Building, 18th and F sts. nw. Bids will be accepted in room 1125 in the General Services Building until 3 p. m. Friday.

Girl to Receive Hecht Scholarship To Md. U. Today

A $300 scholarship in practical arts at the University of Maryland will be awarded at noon today to Miss Alice Shepherd, 4012 31st st., Mount Rainier, Md., by the Hecht Co.

The annual scholarship is given to a University of Maryland student in practical arts who completes certain writing requirements and also employment requirements at the Hecht Co. Silver Spring store.

Milton Shlesinger, operating manager of the Silver Spring store, will make the presentation and Miss Vienna Curtiss, professor of practical arts at the university, will take part in the program, which will be broadcast from Station WGAY, Silver Spring.

Talking Bird Breezes Here From India

Raffles

"Raffles" is actually two kinds of bird. He's the "that's-a-mighty-pretty-bird-you-got-there-lady" type, and he's the "ain't-he-a-bird-though?" type.

As for the foreign language, it's really English. But it's foreign to "Raffles," who is an iridescent, yellow-necked, orange-beaked Indian Myna bird allied to the starling, but not to the parrot.

At his press conference in a Wardman Park suite yesterday, "Raffles" whistled for, and at, the girls, kept asking about one named Mildred, "played dead," and sneezed when asked if he had a cold.

He was introduced by his owner, Mrs. Carveth Wells, who disclosed that she and her explorer-husband, now a radio commentator on the West Coast, adopted him on an expedition to the Malay jungles 3 years ago after another talking Myna bird they owned, also named "Raffles," died of pneumonia.

"Raffles" was giving everybody the bird with the well-known "wolf whistle" and an occasional "Ooohh, boy!" while Mrs. Wells told of a proposed jaunt to India. She and her husband will study economic conditions there, with an eye to finding a source of strategic materials for what she considers America's "poor situation" in that field.

Meanwhile, "Raffles" will continue his voice and language lessons, hoping to equal the record of his predecessor, who once whistled the complete "Star-Spangled Banner" with the San Francisco Symphony.

Just now, "Raffles" signs off at "the twilight's last gleaming."

President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

10:00 a. m.—Gov. Ernest Gruening of Alaska.

10:45—Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff.

11:00—Josh Lee, CAB member.

11:15—Judge Frank H. Myers of Washington Municipal Court.

11:30—Daniel P. Cleary, War Claims Commission member.

11:45—President William Green of AFL, with George Meany, secretary-treasurer.

12:00 noon—Hussein Ala, Ambassador of Iran.

12:15 p. m.—Secretary of Commerce Sawyer.

12:30—Undersecretary of State Webb.

1:00—Lunch

Instructor Rebuked by College Head

Dr. Paul Cooke, instructor in English at Miner Teachers College, yesterday was chided by President Eugene A. Clark, for going over his head to the Board of Education.

Dr. Cooke, president of Local 27 of the American Federation of Teachers, and active in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, appealed to the board to promote him to assistant professor of English.

He failed to receive a recent appointment which went to Charles Walker Thomas, teacher of English at Dunbar High School.

Before the board's meeting on complaints and appeals, Dr. Clark yesterday said that after an hour and a half interview "I was satisfied we had a better man in Thomas."

Turning to Dr. Cooke, Dr. Clarke said:

"If a teacher doesn't accept a decision whes made, I doubt very seriously he is the type of man we want to promote even with two Ph.D's."

Dr. Cooke, in a 14-page brief filed with the board, had listed his educational attainments as one reason why he should receive the promotion.

The English instructor also maintained that the board, in approving the Thomas appointment, had failed to follow its own policy of promoting teachers within the college.

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning said the board had no such policy, but gave equal treatment to all teachers within the school system.

Barnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent, reading from the record, said that in an examination for the job Dr. Cooke received the highest score in the orals, placed first in credit given for educational research, and received the maximum possible score for educational background.

He indicated that Dr. Cooke lost out because he had three and one-half years of college teaching experience as compared with 11½ years for Thomas.

The committee voted to sustain the Thomas appointment, and will bring its recommendation to the full board at Wednesday's meeting.

U. S. Workers May Get Off To Greet Shah

Federal and District agencies will be asked to let employes out of work early November 16 to see the Shah of Iran as he arrives in Washington.

But it may not be very early—as the Shah, His Imperial Majesty Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, is slated to reach Washington Airport about 4 p. m., and to arrive at the city reception stand in Post Square at 4:35 p. m.

Charles Stofberg, chairman of the citizens' welcoming committee, also announced after a morning conference in the District Building that the Shah wil lbe greeted at the airport by his host, President Truman, and other officials.

He will be greeted at Post Square by the District Commissioners, and given the key to the city. After the 10-minute ceremony, the President and his guest will be driven to Blair House.

Mohammed Goudavzi, First Secatary of the Iranian Embassy, attended the committee meeting to express thanks for the citizen reception plans.

Stofberg also announced these committee chairmanships: Edgar Morris, invitations and reception; Carter Barron, decorations; Frank LaFalce, program; Edward J. Kelly, construction; Walter Kern, flags; and Col. Waldron Leonard, music.

The committee's next meeting will be November 10.

Expelled Reporter Tells What He Saw In Russia

Starting Wednesday in The Post—an exclusive report on life in Russia by Joseph Newman, New York Herald Tribune correspondent just barred from Moscow after two years there.

While in Russia, Newman's typewriter was under strict censorship, but his eyes were wide open. In this exclusive series of 15 articles, he reveals the unadorned facts about:

The pitiful condition of the Soviet worker
The current purge of writers and scientists
The campaign against Jewish Zionists
Soviet press censorship (showing censored dispatches)
The production picture for the present 5-Year-Plan
Will war come? Where is Russia heading?

Newman's is the first authentic glimpse behind the Iron Curtain since before the war. Read it in The Post.

To Cross Andes

Bolivia Gets $16 Million Road Loan

The board of directors of the Export-Import Bank announced yesterday that it had authorized a credit to the Bolivian Government to finance two-thirds of the cost of completing the Cochabamba-Santa Cruz highway up to a maximum of 16 million dollars.

Construction of the highway was begun by the Bolivian Development Corp., an agency of the Bolivian government, in 1944 in accordance with the recommendations of the United States economic mission organized by the State Department at the request of the Bolovian government to prepare a program for the development of the Bolivian economy.

Following the report of this mission in 1942, the Export-Import Bank extended a credit of 15 million dollars to the Bolivian government of which 10 million dollars, along with funds supplied from Bolivian sources, were to be used to finance the construction of the Cochabamba-Santa Cruz highway.

The highway will cross 300 miles of previously unsurveyed territory and several main ranges of the Andes.

Under the terms of the credit the Bolivian Development Corp. will enter into contracts with a United States engineering firm and a United States construction firm to supervise and to execute the remaining construction work.

"Completion of the Cochabamba-Santa Cruz highway will provide the first land transportation link between the highland centers of population and economic activity and the underdeveloped but potentially important agricultural area of eastern Bolivia," Herbert E. Gaston, chairman of the bank's board, explained. "Completion of the hikhway will make possible the development of the Santa Cruz area as a source of supply of a major part of Bolivia's requirements of food and other garicultural poducts, which are now largely imported. The development should contribute substantially to an improvement of Bolivia's international payments position and should serve to relieve its extreme dependence on the production and export of tin."

Royall Davis, Soil Expert For U. S., Dies

Dr. Royall O. E. Davis, a soil expert with the Agriculture Department for 40 years, died of a heart attack Sunday at his home, 7130 Alaska ave. nw.

Born in Newberry, S. C., in 1880, Dr. Davis attended the University of North Carolina where he was awarded his doctorate in 1903.

He spent a year studying physical and electro-chemistry at the University of Liepzig and then became assistant professor of chemistry at the University of North Carolina.

In 1905 he married Birdie Pritchard, a schoolmate at the university.

Dr. Davis came to the Agriculture Department in 1909 as a soil physicist.

During World War I. he worked on the development of the Haber process by which nitrogen was converted into an explosive and fertilizer component.

After the war he continued in charge of soil physics for Agriculture and later engaged in nitrogen research at the Fixed Nitrogen Research Laboratory at American University. He became administrative assistant in the soils division, a post which he held at the time of his death.

During the last war, Dr. Davis was a leading agent in devising methods to lessen the explosive dangers of ammonium nitrate so that farmers could safely use it for fertilizer.

Dr. Davis was the author of more than 80 technical bulletins and scientific papers on soil, fertilizer and related topics.

Beside his wife he leaves three sisters, Mrs. Estelle McHugh, Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. W. H. Green, Thompson, Ga., and Mrs. W. H. Hand, Columbia, S. C.

A Masonic funeral will be held in Chapel Hill, N. C., Wednesday. Burial will be in that city.

One on the Aisle—

Fulbright Bill Gives Actors a Chance

By Richard L. Coe

NOT GENERALLY KNOWN is the fact that the Fulbright bill is proving helpful to drama students.

Seven Americans, including one Washingtonian, are now benefitting by this progressive-minded legislation prompted by the far-sighted young Senator from Arkansas.

James W. Butcher, of the Howard University teaching staff, is in England to "perfect his teaching." Such English centers as the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, the Central School of Speech Training and Dramatic Art and the hard-to-enter Old Vic Theater School are hosts to young men and women from a half-dozen States, chosen by highly qualified professional theater leaders.

A B. A. degree or its "academic equivalent" was the first requirement on their applications. If they were in college or universities, they obtained their initial forms from the Fulbright adviser on their staffs. They have to be highly recommended to apply and all applications are carefully sifted.

National Competition

The Institute of International Education, 2 West 45th st., N. Y., goes over these and then the applicants are interviewed by such people as Margaret Webster or Rosamund Gilder. In short, it's all done by national competition open to U. S. citizens of either sex, any age.

Getting places for drama students—or any other of the numerous categories admitted under the Fulbright law—in England is the job of Alan Pifer, a Harvard graduate who has his offices with the U. S. Education Committee at 55 Upper Brooks st., London, W. I.

Pifer combs England for his specialized openings and he's found schools, colleges and universities extremely helpful, though all British schools are now as crowded as our own. Getting into the Old Vic, even apart from a Fulbright allowance, simply as a moneyed American, is a hard job, for the rulers of that group recognize that the very thing foreigners hope to find at Old Vic would be dissipated by the presence of too many foreign students or instructors.

The Fulbright fellows are on two levels: students and teaching. The latter is also split into two groups: lecturer and researcher.

Considering the limtied opportunities for studying the classical flow of theater on a performance basis, study in England is a splendid chance. Howard's Professor Butcher, for instance, will be going to 20-odd theaters across from Land's End to John o' Groats for his studies.

The fortunes of war indeed are felt in the most unlooked for places. In my "Stars and Stripes" days, writing about the passage of the Fulbright bill I wondered if the dream could become the reality. That it has is a tribute to all concerned.

THE PALACE plots a "sneak preview" tonight at 8:30 . . . Surrounding same, both before and after, will be Alan Ladd as that whirling reporter in "Chicago Deadline."

THE RECTOR of "Lost Boundaries," at the Dupont, gives so convincing a performance that it can hardly be a surprise that he is in fact the rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Portsmouth, N. H., where the picture was made . . . Producer Louis de Rochemont, skilled in documentary, in creating the town of Keenham, decided on St. John's as the final scene and after he'd met the Rev. Robert H. Dunn, he asked him to play the role of Keenham's minister.

RUDY VALLEE in town with the new Mrs. Vallee for his Blue Room appearances at the Shoreham . . . Vallee's success in character roles in the movies doesn't seem to have affected his lure as a singing darling as the crush about him yesterday afternoon at the Shoreham was that impressive.

French Failing In Indo-China, India Reports

London, Oct. 31 (AP).—Diplomatic officials said today India has told Britain in a secret memorandum that France is trying to govern Indo-China against the will of the Indo-Chinese people—and is failing.

By the account of these informants:

The memorandum says independence-seeking Communist and Nationalist revolutionaries are holding the French prisoners in their own towns in that Far Eastern state.

The document was sent to Prime Minister Attlee and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin on the personal orders of Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

India made plain she will not recognize the French-sponsored regime in Indo-China headed by Bao Dai. She hopes also to dissuade Britain from doing so.

To reconquer territory now under control of the Indo-Chinese revolutionaries, India said, France would need two to three decades and "500,000 troops or more."

France was estimated to have 120,000 troops in Indo-China now.

The revolutionary coalition headed by Ho Chi Minh rules 80 percent of the country. It is a coalition of Communists—said to be in the minority—and fervent Nationalist, all skeptical of French promises of ultimate independence.

Scion Marries, Kills Story of Disinheritance

Paris, Oct. 31 (U.P.) — Robert Goelet, jr., 28-year-old heir to a large American fortune, tonight squelched reports that he had lost it by marrying Actress Lynn Merrick last week in Paris.

"Why, Papa even set me a telegram of congratulations. I guess it was just those New York gossipers that started it all," he said.

He added that his mother, the Duchess of Villarosa, was "very happy about the marriage," too.

Judge Limits Bars In Her Courtroom To Bar of Justice

That there is indeed "many a slip twixt the cup and the lip" was demonstrated in Municipal Court yesterday.

Pvt. Best

At the bar of justice was Frank H. Gallman, 39, of 4627 Central ave. ne., a bellhop at the Dodge Hotel, charged with keeping and selling whisky.

Intent on keeping Gallman from behind the bars was his lawyer, James K. Hughes.

Pvt. Bernard W. Best, a police plainclothesman, testified Gallman had sold him the liquor on October 30; and on the bench was Judge Nadine L. Gallagher.

Best in his testimony asserted that he could by taste alone tell bourbon from rye.

Hughes held out the bottled "evidence" to him.

"Have a drink," he offered. "Then tell us."

"I can't," Best said. "I'm on duty and regulations forbid drinking while on duty."

And to further tighten the bottle top, Judge Gallagher chimed in: "I don't want anyone drinking in my courtroom anyhow."

She took the case under advisement until Friday to determine if an actual sale took place or whether there was a question of entrapment.

Gallagher Blasts Dodgers for 'Cheap' Player Sales

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BIG TALK by the National Football League people about bringing the All-America Conference to its knees takes on a hollow ring against the background of those 55,000 empty seats that greeted the Redskins' appearance in the Polo Grounds, Sunday.

The unpopulated acres didn't make for good acoustics at a time when the NFL was shouting its predictions that the AAC would fold. The Redskins and Bulldogs played to only 3678 in the biggest city in the world, and Owner Ted Collins didn't net half enough to pay the $20,000 guarantee to the visiting club. Across the river in Yankee Stadium, the Yankees and Baltimore Colts of the AAC didn't draw well, either, but at least they had 11,494 in the park.

POVICH

There was, of course, the big NFL game in Los Angeles, where the Rams drew 86,000 with the Bears, but that didn't put anything in Collins' pocket. And the AAC had a fair crowd of its own at Cleveland, where the Browns and Forty-Niners played before 72,189.

Suffering almost as much as the two NFL clubs in New York are the Green Bay Packers, who could attract only 10,855 for their game with the Detroit Lions at Milwaukee. With the Redskins backsliding as a drawing card both at home and abroad, the NFL when it looks down its nose these days is apt to bring into view the NFL.

AN UNEXPECTED LIFT to the midseason college football slate is now shaping up, all of a sudden and quite happily as relief for what was becoming a dull state of affairs. The Army-Fordham game, of little significance at the start of the season, is taking on high importance, and West Point on Saturday will be the focal point of Eastern football.

For West Point it could be a happy episode, too, if the Cadets win. There has been continual and loud muttering against the soft-touch schedule, tailored to Earl Blaik's taste, that the Army has been playing. But now Fordham has popped up with an unbeaten team that could test Army, perhaps lick it, and what loomed as another Army push-over becomes a battle of two unbeaten clubs.

Ed Danowski, the Fordham coach, was struggling with a team of sophomores last year. Lafayette licked 'em, 54-13. Georgetown whomped 'em, 35-0, and Boston College did it, 33-7. His sophomores have now matured, apparently. They haven't scored less than 33 points in any game. True they haven't beaten much except Georgetown, but that 42-0 victory of last Saturday was impressive enough to send Army scouts scuttling back to the Point with a sackful of doleful intelligence.

THE LOCAL scenery bursts into new activity with George Washington U. colliding head-on against Jim Tatum's Maryland team that flattened South Carolina last Saturday, 44-7. Coach Bo Rowland of G. W. U. yesterday assured the Touchdown Club that it would be a breeze for Maryland, and impressed nobody by that tactic.

Leastwise he did not impress Tatum, who is never disarmed by Rowland's pregame humility and knows that Rowland's teams have been making a habit of winning fames they are not supposed to win. "He's always hoping the scoreboard will make a liar out of him," says Tatum of Rowland.

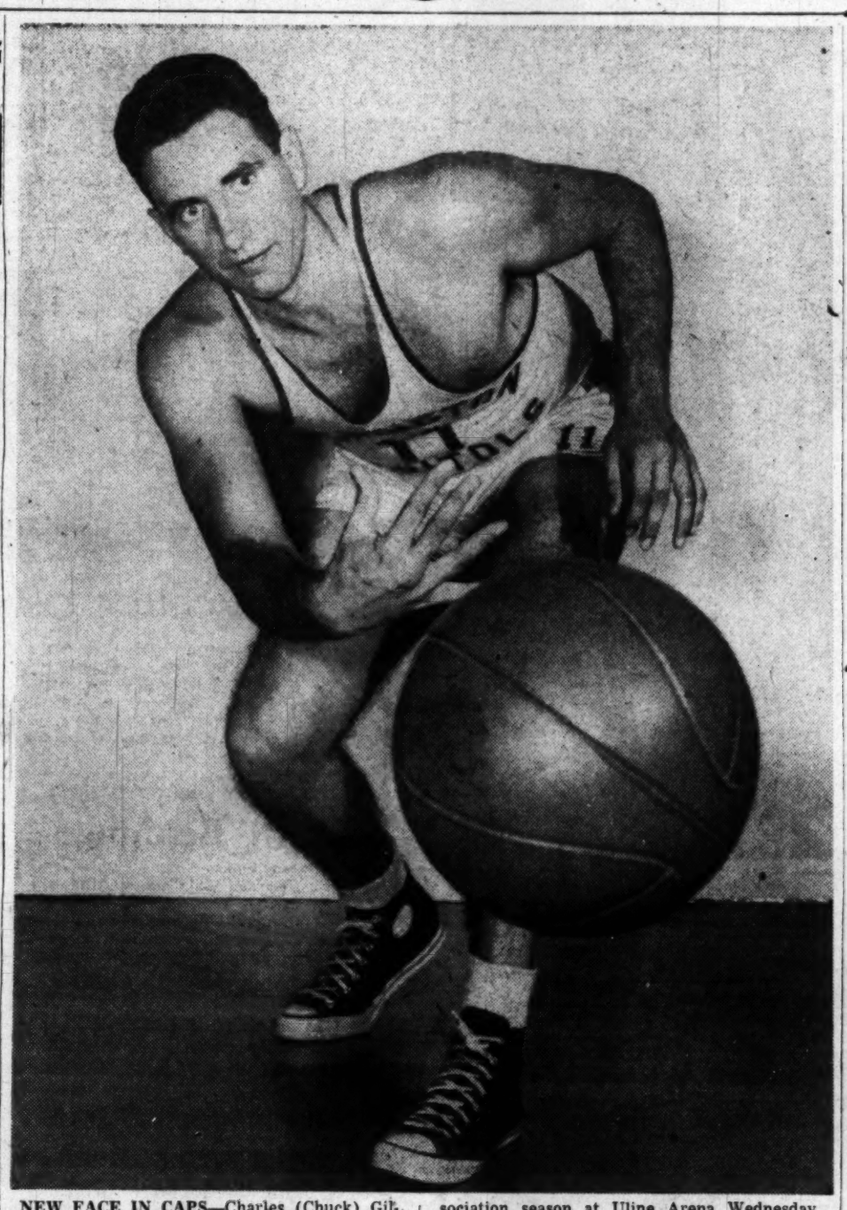
In his customarily cute approach to his big games, Rowland told the Touchdowners bluntly, "We ain't worried by the Maryland game. We don't point for the games we know we can't win. We'll show all you people how Tatum's split-T formation works, to its best advantage. In fact, our G. W. U. team ought to be very educational for you football fans.

"After we are through showing you how Tatum makes his split-T go, then the next week we'll show you how Duke clicks with its single-wing. The week after that, we'll show you the advantages of Georgetown's tight T."

ROWLAND ANNOUNCED that he would also expose one of Tatum's little secrets. "He was up here at the Touchdown Club a couple weeks ago explaining his defeat by Michigan State," said Rowland, "and you remember he said his Maryland team was licked by the second-best team in the country. Well, the fact is Tatum rates Maryland as No. 1."

Like the Army-Fordham game, Maryland vs. G. W. U. is taking on new importance after stacking up earlier in the season as a dreary affair that the Terrapins would dominate. Rowland's Colonials blew their first three games of the season, but then slapped down V. P. I., Washington and Lee and Lafayette in succession and impressively, too.

Rowland will have, in Andy Davis, the best forward passer on the field, and in stumpy little Al DuGoff he'll have the top ball carrier. About DuGoff, he is quite inconsolable despite the lad's game-winning breakaway runs this season. "He's too darn smart," says Rowland of DuGoff. "He's just beginning to mature as a great football player, and at 21 he's graduating on us."



NEW FACE IN CAPS—Charles (Chuck) Gilmur, 6-foot-4 forward, will make his first home appearance with Washington's Caps in the opening game of the National Basketball Association season at Uline Arena Wednesday night. The Caps meet Baltimore's Bullets. Gilmur came to the Caps in a trade with Chicago's Stags who got Kleggie Hermsen

Cubs' Boss Cites Big Cash Deals With Pirates

By Jerry Liska

Chicago, Oct. 31 (AP).—Football and baseball crossed wires at the Herald-American Quarterback Club meeting today to see these verbal sparks flying:

1. General Manager Jimmy Gallagher of the Chicago Cubs asserted the Brooklyn Dodgers have flooded the market, quite profitably, with players "not worth a quarter."

2. Athletic Director H. O. (Fritz) Crisler of Michigan denied a printed report there was friction in the Wolverine athletic department.

And 3. Crisler calculated that "maybe college athletics should go to a paid player basis, if that is to eliminate dishonesty and cheating" in athletic administration.

Gallagher's swipe at the Dodgers came as he attempted to explain the lowly state of the Cubs in the National League. Touching on player deals, Gallagher declared:

"Brooklyn does a great job of salesmanship. But the club hasn't sold a player worth a quarter. The Dodgers wheedled $680,000 from the Pittsburgh Pirates in deals which now leave Brooklyn with Preacher Roe, Bill Cox and Al Gionfriddo, while all Pittsburgh has left are Vic Lombardi and Stan Rojek."

The Cubs several weeks ago purchased two players from the Dodgers, shelling out "an undisclosed sum" which some estimate as high as $150,000. First Sacker Preston Ward came to the Bruins for a rumored $125,000, while a $25,000 tag was supposed to be on Relief Pitcher Paul Minner, acquired by Chicago in the same deal.

Gallagher also scornfully pointed out that the Dodgers recently offered Outfielder Myron McCormick for sale at $25,000. Then when takers failed to appear, asked waivers "for the purpose of unconditional release with a $1 price tag."

Crisler's comment on Michigan coaching friction referred to an item today by Tribune Sports Editor Arch Ward in his column. Ward quoted a Washington sports writer as saying: "There's friction at Michigan, where Athletic Director Fritz Crisler is the only non-Michigan man in the football coaching set-up.

Crisply retorted Crisler: "I have permanently retired from coaching. I know of no dissension at Michigan, unless it happened since I left Ann Arbor last weekend. If it came up, it came up Sunday. I haven't been back yet."

Crisler Dubious Of Amateurism

Fritz Crisler, who two years ago bestowed the Michigan coaching job on Benny Oosterbaan, was pessimistic in his views on pure amateurism in athletics in his talk to the Chicago Herald-American Quarterback Club yesterday.

"I am a follower of that philosophy against the school of thought which calls for outright proselyting of athletes," said Crisler, "But subsidy seems to be even the keynote of everything in Washington. Our politics and other forms of civic affairs are sometimes touched by corruption, and yet perfection is expected in the administration of athletics.

"Maybe we should go to the paid player basis in athletics, if that is the way to eliminate dishonesty and cheating. If our 'noble experiment' in athletics has failed, maybe we should go the other way.

"But it would have to be with our eyes wide open. We would be in direct competition with the professionals. There would have to be a ceiling on player subsidies, and if we do go that way, we would have the greatest centralization of athletic power in history. Institutions with money would corner all the athletes. Hundreds of small colleges would simply have to drop athletics."

In Wake of 14-14 Tie

Redskins Fire Mike Roussos, Will Cut Other 'Dead Wood'

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The first head fell yesterday as the Washington Redskins, routed by the mighty Philadelphia Eagles and tied by the lowly New York Bulldogs on successive weeks, began a purge of all their "deadwood."

Tackle Mike Roussos was the initial victim, his name going on the National Football League waiver list for what Owner George Marshall called a "most unsatisfactory effort against the Bulldogs and for some time past."

Roussos, a 250-pounder from Pittsburgh, has been with the Redskins for two years. His release, whether he is claimed by another club or not, leaves Washington's pros with only four tackles.

"You can expect further waivers," Marshall said yesterday, "as some of our other deadwood is uncovered. We might find ourselves short-handed, but at least we won't have to pay salaries to players who don't produce."

Contrary to expectations, Marshall was fairly calm over Sunday's 14-to-14 stalemate with the Bulldogs, a club which had suffered five straight beatings previously and was firmly entrenched in the Eastern Division basement.

"What more can I do right now?" Marshall asked anyone who cared to listen, at the moment he announced waivers on Roussos. "We will have a winning team here if I can do anything about it. But right now there's not much I can do . . ."

Marshall and Head Coach Billick Whelchel both expressed pleasure with the performance of Redskin rookies Sunday. They lauded Fullback Leon Cochan, who may have won an offensive starting berth, and such other newcomers as Linemen Bob Hendren, Len Szafarn, Ed Berrang and Laurie

Caps Release Ken Leslie

Player-Coach Bob Feerick last night reduced the Washington Caps' playing roster to 12 as Ken Leslie returned to his home in San Francisco, where he expects to play amateur basketball before returning to the Caps next season.

Leslie's departure leaves the Caps with 11 active players. Bones McKinney will remain sidelined for an injured left knee for several more weeks.

Feerick, Fred Scolari, Jack Nichols, John Norlander, Dick O'Keefe, Leo Katkaveck, Dick Schulz, Chuck Gilmur, John Mandic, Chuck Halbert and Chick Reiser will round out Washington's representation.

Either Norlander or O'Keefe and Gilmur will start at forwards for the Caps' opening game against the Baltimore Bullets Wednesday at Uline Arena, 8:30 o'clock. Halbert or Nichols will open at center, with Scolari and Reiser at the guard posts.

GW 53 Points Better Than Maryland?

FASTEN your seat belts, folks, for here's a jolting piece of news.

How does one get that way without violating the narcotics act? Very, very simple. Like this:

Davidson beat N. C. State, 19-13.

Maryland shaded N. C. State, 14-6.

Washington & Lee clubbed Davidson, 53-0, making Washington & Lee 51 points better than Maryland. Since G. W. trimmed W. & L. by 21 to 19, G. W. is 53 points better than Maryland.

Strictly on a hunch, however, we'll take Maryland and only 40 points.

BO ROWLAND substituted for Associate Justice Tom Clark at yesterday's weekly Touchdown Club luncheon and, as usual, the little G. W. humorist had the Monday quarterbacks clamoring for more.

Surrounded by members of the Washington Caps basketball team, honor guests yesterday, Rowland made a few pertinent observations about the "roundball" sport, as he called it.

"Only thing I know about basketball," he says, "is that the team that scores the most points wins. That's all I knew about it when I coached at Cornell, but I managed to beat four coaches

Pick-the-Winner

Unbeaten Virginia Collides With Penn

UNBEATEN VIRGINIA vs. once-beaten Pennsylvania at Philadelphia is one of the Nation's top collegiate games Saturday.

Virginia has won six in a row. Penn also was undefeated until Pitt nosed the Quakers out last week, 22-21, on a safety on the last play of the game.

This is one of the most interesting games in The Washington Post's Pick-The-Winners contest this week.

Each week the winner of the contest will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 26, and an all-expenses-paid trip to this game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week also will receive four tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. The Washington Post will select this game.

The contest each week will include 21 major college games. Each contestant will select the winner (or tie) of 20 of these games. On the twenty-first game, each contestant will give the "Probable Score."

CONTEST RULES

All entries must be in the hands of the Football Contest Editor not later than 9 p. m. Friday of each week. Entries should be left at the Service Counter in the lobby of The Washington Post Bldg., 1337 E St. N. W.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week shall be declared the winner. In case of ties, all persons sharing in the tie will receive duplicate awards.

The decisions of the judges will be final.

Entries submitted must be legible with the selections listed in the order they are announced in The Washington Post.

Entries may be handwritten or typewritten. However, carbon copies and mimeographed copies or copies made by any other duplicating machine will NOT be accepted. You may submit as many entries as you wish.

No employe of The Washington Post or member of his immediate family is eligible to participate in this contest.

No person will be eligible to win the weekly contest twice.

Area Coach of the Week

Barclay of W&L

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

GEORGE BARCLAY, of Washington and Lee, is the Washington Post's area coach of the week, but down at Lexington, Va., they're about ready to hail him as their coach of all time.

Barclay

In his first year as head coah of the Generals, Barclay is enjoying a popularity that very few, if any, of his predecessors experienced.

He's 39, but still one of the boys. He stepped into a uncomfortable situation this spring when he left Maryland as line coach to become W. & L.'s head coach. Art Lewis, his predecessor, resigned in a huff to become line coach at Mississippi State.

W. & L. people were mad over Lewis' move and became even angrier when Lewis tried to take several freshmen football players with him.

Football was at one of its lowest points, but Barclay, very quietly and efficiently, has given the Generals a real team to root for.

They started off the season by upending Furman, a two touchdown favorite. Then followed losses to Virginia, West Virginia and George Washington, but the Generals looked great losing and many feel they should have won all three.

Barclay wasn't mad at his players for their past performances. He told them "keep on playing the way you've been playing and you'll win."

Saturday they, proved it for him, walloping Davidson, a team rated practically as good as W. & L. by 53 to 0 before a homecoming crowd.

After the game, Sophomore Quarterback Gil Bocetti, who's destined to become one of W. & L.'s all-time greats, walked over to his coach and said:

"We thought you were kidding us when you said we were a pretty good football team. Heck, coach, you're just modest."

Pantos Enrolls At Longwood

Jimmy Pantos, all-high star in football, basketball and baseball for the last two years at Central High, enrolled in Longwood Preparatory School, Ashton, Md., yesterday.

Pantos failed three of four subjects this half at Central and was ineligible for sports participation again before December 2.

Pantos will play football for Longwood against Georgetown University Freshmen Saturday.

According to Longwood regulations, a boy may compete in scholastic athletics while his scholastic marks are being brought up.

Pantos claimed that classwork at Central "bored" him and his failure to attend classes while out of football with an injured shoulder made his failure automatic.

Longwood is undefeated in five games this year with only a 7-7 tie with a strong Bullis Prep team to mar their record. Pantos was named most valuable player on last year's All-High team

Amvets Leader Speaks Tonight At AU 'Kickoff'

Harold Russell, National Commander of the AMVETS Bucky Harris, manager of the Washington Nats, and high ranking officers from all the armed services will participate in "Kickoff Night" for American University's $225,000 War Memorial Athletic Center at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Russell, who lost both hands in the war and won two Academy Awards for his work in the picture "The Best Years Of Our Lives," will be the principal speaker.

Where to Buy Hoya Tickets

Tickets for Georgetown's homecoming game next Friday night against Villanova at Griffith Stadium may be purchased at the following places:

The Fairway, 1328 G st. nw; Georgetown Athletic Association, 37th and O sts. nw.; Mitchell's, 2806 14th st. nw., and the American Automobile Association, 17th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Williamson Puts Irish In 1st Place

By Paul D. Williamson

Notre Dame, with a 40-to-0 victory over Navy, bounces back to the top of the System's rating with an almost perfect percentage of 99.9.

Army, last week's leader, dropped to No. 2 after not being too impressive in its 40-14 success over the Keydets from Virginia Military Institute.

Oklahoma's unbeaten Sooners remained in the third slot while California and Baylor, also unbeaten, follow in that order.

Maryland, 44-7 winners over South Carolina, moved up 15 notches to No. 18, while North Carolina, trounced by Tennessee, slipped to fifty-first, one place above Georgetown.

Bunn Gains Decision Over Charlie Milan

Sonny Boy Bunn, 150, Washington, decisioned Charlie Milan, 145, Baltimore, in the featured 10-rounder last night at Turner's Arena.

Bunn provided most of the action in a dull fight. Milan fought a defensive action most of the time, tying Bunn up whenever possible. Bunn, however, opened a cut over Milan's left eye in the third round, one of the few to see much action.

Milan tried to make a fight of it in the last round but it was too late and too weak to draw much reaction from the fans.

In preliminary four-rounders, Walter Hamm, 129, Washington, ko'd Lee Herald, 134, Washington, 1:11 of the second. Jimmy O'Brien, 147, Alexandria, decisioned Warren Hudson, 150, Baltimore, Roland Randall, 165, Washington, knocked out Key Edwards, 162, Washington, 2:36 of the first round. Jimmy Canfield, 145, Baltimore and Jimmy Briscoe, 150, Washington, drew.

The crowd of 548 paid a gross of $976.55 for a net of $718.40.

Dear Folks:

Garden State closes with the Tuesday program and business should pick up considerably here as a result. A majority of the top-flight jockeys who have been performing in New Jersey will come down.

Jockey Robert J. Martin, leading rider at Laurel swings back in action after a layoff by illness. Jockey Bobbie Strange was around smiling this morning. Last Saturday he had his choice of riding several hot horses here or going to Garden State to perform on Sky Miracle in the Trenton Handicap. He finally decided to try the handicap and Sky Miracle won. Favorites have been far off the beam so far this meeting, batting only 20 percent. See you on the rail.

HAIR GETTING THIN? then GROOM IT WITH KREML
TO AVOID "SCALP SCUM" AND MAKE HAIR LOOK NEAT

There's nothing better than Kreml to neatly groom thinning hair or sparse locks. Kreml doesn't look the least bit greasy, sticky or gooey. No scummy, dirt-catching film shows through on the scalp. Kreml always keeps hair and scalp looking and feeling so clean. AND SO VERY IMPORTANT—Kreml removes dandruff flakes (more noticeable with sparse hair); it lubricates a dry scalp, giving it a delightful tingle. Change to Kreml today.

Wright's 67 Leads, Houghton Has 68

Pinehurst, N. C., Oct. 31 (AP).—Tommy Wright, veteran professional from Kingsport, Tenn., whipped par by five strokes today to post a 33-34—67 and lead the qualifiers in the North and South open golf tournament.

Wright's performance left him one stroke ahead of three rivals in one of the fastest qualifying fields the 47-year-old tournament has seen.

A stroke back of Wright with 68s were Lou Barbaro, Deal, N. J., and veteran professionals Willie Goggin of White Plains, N. Y., and Al Houghton of Landover, Md.

Fifty of the 118 who toured the No. 2 championship course of the Pinehurst Country Club qualified, with 75 the top score to make the grade, two under that of a year ago.

Today's low 50 join 62 players on the invited list in tomorrow's first round of the three-day, 72-hole test with $7500 up for grabs. Defending Champion Tony Penna of Cincinnati was among those who did not have to qualify today.

Thirteen players broke par and five others equalled regulation figures for the 6952-yard course.

Sixty nines were recorded by Jack Fleck, Davenport, Iowa; Eddie Foy, East Orange, N. J., and Doug Ford, Harrison, N. Y.

Fred Annon of old Greenwich, Conn., was alone at 70, with 1 under par 71's recorded by the low amateur William Markham of East Hampton, Conn., Ansel Snow of Blowing Rock, N. C., Junius J. Hebert of Oakmont, Pa.

who had written books about basketball."

In a more serious moment, Rowland bemoaned the loss of Jim Feula, his stellar tackle who broke his leg in the last 10 seconds of the GW-Lafayette mud-battle Friday evening.

IN SHORT: If history repeats, North Carolina should be a world-beater from here on in.

Where to Buy Tickets For Terps-Colonials

Tickets for the George Washton-Maryland game at College Park Saturday may be purchased at G. W. Athletic office, Richie Coliseum, Fairway Sports Shop, Mitchell's Sport Shop and Bethesda Sport Center.

In 1947 the Tar Heels lost to Texas and Wake Forest on successive Saturdays and then came back to plaster their other six foes . . . It probably won't happen this season, however, because the Chapel Hill crew has a November 12 session with Notre Dame

REDSKINS—From P. 16

Redskins Drop Mike Roussos

Nieml, and Backs Harry Dowda, Rob Goode and Pete Stout.

Guard John Badaczewski was mentioned for an outstanding performance, but he was one of the few veterans to get such mention. Most of them made mistakes which couldn't be excused in the rawest rookie.

The Pittsburgh Steelers come to town this weekend, trying to avenge Washington's 27-14 triumph in an earlier game. The Redskin management is still figuring ways of winning Eastern honors, most of them depending on victories in their last six games . . . With only two wins so far, along with three losses and a tie, their hopes of taking six straight might be called something less than bright . . . If there was one glaring miscue which accounted for the Bulldog deadlock, it was Hal Crisler's decision to lateral the ball after a 37-yard pass gain in the fourth period . . . It was already 14-14 when Crisler carried to the Bulldog 34 and attempted to flip the ball to Eddie Saenz . . . Halfback Jim Wade came up with the resulting fumble and Washington's last threat expired

Man Accused Of Receiving Stolen Goods

Charged with receiving stolen goods from a band of housebreakers in northern Virginia, William F. Kelly, 27, Chinquapin Village, Alexandria, was held for the grand jury yesterday. The thefts are said to have been going on for three years.

At a preliminary hearing in Civil and Police Court, Alexandria, Robert W. Poet, 719 King st., a barber, testified he gave Kelly, described as a roofer, $35 for a diamond ring on September 17. He also said he paid Kelly $20 for another ring, but "got scared of it and threw it in the river."

Poet went to police with the diamond ring a short time later, suspecting it was stolen. Its identification led to the arrest of three other men, two of them Kelly's brothers, and two women, who are suspected of 65 housebreakings in Alexandria alone since late 1946.

Already awaiting grand jury action are John N. Kelly, 23, a painter, and his wife, Rosa Irene, 21, whose address was listed as 819 5th st. nw. Held as a material witness is Margaret Caton, 18, 474 Massachusetts ave. nw., sister of Mrs. Kelly.

Also facting grand jury action is Obert C. Shanholtz, 19, 1168 Neal st. ne. Police said he implicated the Kelly brothers.

The other brother, James, 25 was sentenced in Arlington Circuit Court last week to five years in the State penitentiary for housebreaking.

Rickey-Shotton Meeting Put Off

Brooklyn, Oct. 31 (AP).—Brooklyn Dodger rooters will have to wait another week before knowing for sure whether Burt Shotton will return as manager next year.

Shotton, who recently reached his 65th birthday, was to have been the main figure tomorrow at a scheduled press conference called by President Branch Rickey. However, the conference was postponed today until November 8. Rickey is away on a business trip and cannot return before then.

Police Exams For Women To Be Given

Examinations to qualify women applicants for uniform jobs in the Metropolitan Police Department will be given in the near future by the Civil Service Commission, it was disclosed yesterday.

Exact time for applications and examinations will be announced in the next 10 days, the commission said.

However, Police Department officials said that though they want a list of women qualified to fill the remaining 73 authorized positions, plans for appointing them for actual duty are uncertain at present.

Seven Women Appointed

Early this year, when a shortage of male applicants for police jobs developed, department officials obtained authorization from the Commissioners to appoint 80 women.

Thus far, seven women have been appointed from Civil Service lists. All seven are now working in the Communications and Records Bureau, as clerks. Their appointments released seven men for outside duty.

Shortage Declines

The shortage of male applicants for police jobs has since diminished, department officials said, and men are now being appointed. But, they indicated, they want qualified women available for appointment if they are needed in the future.

These jobs, department officials pointed out, are not the same as police positions in the Women's Bureau, which require special qualifications.

The Beards Invade Turner's Wednesday

A special bout featuring two bearded wrestlers has been added to Wednesday night's mat show at Joe Turner's Arena. Headlining the show will be Celia Blevins of Oklahoma City and Ellen Olsen of Minneapolis.

The unshaven grapplers are Elmer (Zeke) Estep, hillbilly champion of Tennessee, and Marty Karadigan, big South American tussler.

Ike Defends Title

Philadelphia, Oct. 31 (AP).—Lightweight Champion Ike Williams of Trenton, N. J., has signed to defend his crown in a 15 round bout against Freddy Dawson of Chicago on November 28 at Convention Hall, Promoter Phil Glassman announced tonight.

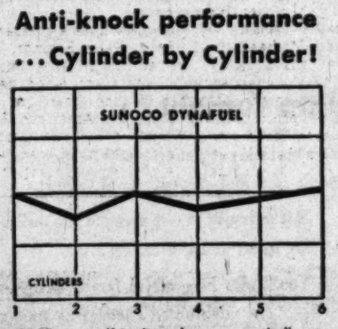
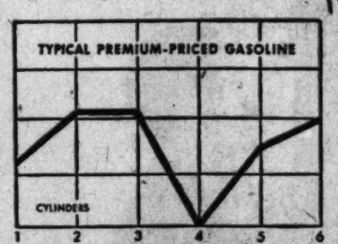
Sunoco Dynafuel proved superior to 7 leading premium-priced gasolines

. . . for smoother anti-knock performance in all cylinders

Anti-knock performance . . . Cylinder by Cylinder!



See for yourself in chart above . . . practically no variation of anti-knock power from cylinder to cylinder when Sunoco Dynafuel was tested. That's why you get smoother high-test power when you use Sunoco Dynafuel in your car's engine.



Here's how a typical premium-priced gasoline compared under same test. Great variation of anti-knock power in different cylinders is instantly apparent. In your car this means "underfed" cylinders . . . probable knocking in cylinders 1 and 4.

Dynafuel vs. Premium-priced Gasolines

Gentlemen:

We have examined and hereby certify to Report No. A-9 of your Research and Development Department covering the anti-knock distribution tests in which Sunoco Dynafuel was compared with seven (7) leading premium-priced gasolines.

These tests were made under our supervision, using samples of premium-priced gasolines purchased by us at retail service stations in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Boston, and Detroit.

Sunoco Dynafuel proved superior to all seven (7) premium-priced gasolines — in uniformity of anti-knock performance in all cylinders — as measured by the ASTM Standard Motor Method.

Very truly yours,
PITTSBURGH TESTING LABORATORY

"Think of it . . . Sunoco Dynafuel out-performs leading premium-priced gasolines—yet saves you up to 2¢ a gallon!

Certified tests prove Sunoco Dynafuel's superiority for delivering smoother anti-knock performance in all cylinders—not over ordinary or regular gasolines—but over 7 leading premium gasolines. And for additional proof: remember—more Detroit Automotive Engineers use Sunoco Dynafuel in their own cars than any other gasoline . . . 4 to 1 over the next nearest brand!

Swing in at the Sunoco Sign and begin enjoying new performance in your car . . . at a saving on every mile you drive.

Save up to 2¢ a gallon over other high-test gasolines

False Fire Alarms Top Halloween Hoodlumism

Delayed 3 Nights By Rain, Lid Blows Off With a Bang; Culprits Caught

Stoked by three nights of inactivity caused by rain, pranksters finally blew the lid off all over town last night in a Halloween which police and firemen will shudder to recall for a goodly spell.

Although an infinite variety of fiendish proclivities was displayed, pranksters generally preferred that old Halloween saw—the false alarm.

Police and firemen wasted a lot of energy as well as taxpayers' money responding to a series of alarms set off by unimaginative hoodlums. A number of times, however, police found what they were looking for—the culprits who set off the alarm.

Citizens of member bodies of the North Washington Council of Citizens Associations stood watch over fire boxes in their area. Late last night a representative of the council reported that only one false alarm was set off in the area, and the culprits were nabbed.

In the 5100 block of Emerson st., Edmonston, Md., Prince Georges County police arrested three youths believed to have set off several sticks of dynamite which shattered windows and scared residents over a wide area.

Up to late last night, 42 false alarms were set off. At the going rate of $75 per false alarm, these cost District taxpayers $3150.

Roll Pipes Down Hill

In Falls Church, the roisterers seemed to find amusement in rolling 12-foot-long water pipes down hill on a main street. One of the pipes slammed into a parked auto.

At 8:30 last night, Silver Spring police got a frantic call that there was a body hanging from the pole atop the Takoma Park Fire House at Carroll and Dennwood aves. Nobody, least of all the police who took the bait, was surprised to find that the body had turned into a pair of long flannel drawers.

Downtown things were relatively civilized. The few masked celebrants in evidence confined themselves largely to trick or treat under the watchful eyes of a goodly battery of beat cops.

One blond little beggar was the victim of poetic justice. She was all pleased with herself when she snagged a handsome young airman and saw him fish down in his pocket. But he came up with a few sticks of chewing gum.

She Wanted Money

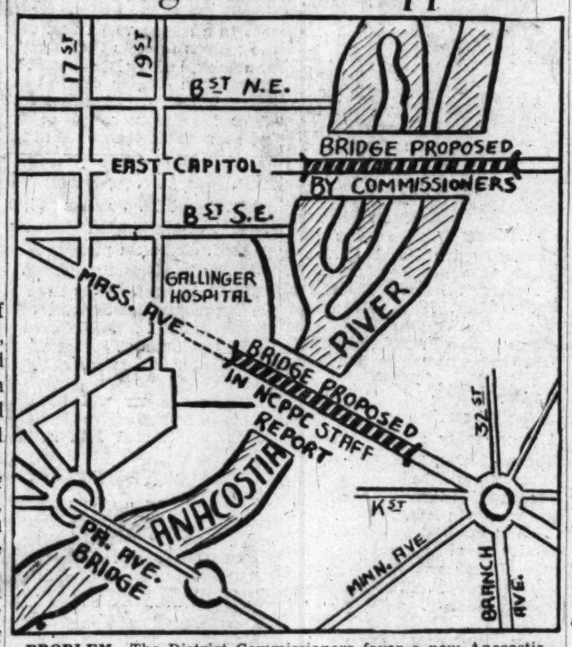
"Hey," she screamed in the midst of jeers from her accomplices, "I didn't want no chewing gum—I wanted money."

Rocks hurtling through windows, soaping autos and windows, ringing doorbells, upset construction barricades—all were present in abundance.

There were also some innocent Halloween goings-on. The D. C. Recreation Department sponsored 112 community celebrations. Greenbelt had its supervised rampage, the Alexandria Optimist Club had three parties going simultaneously last night, and numerous dances were held.

The added note: The Bureau of Standards advises victims of soapings to clean the stuff off as soon as possible because it may hurt the paint job. Hot water will do it before the soap hardens and glycerine helps after the soap hardens.

District Calls NCPPC Attack On Bridge Plan Unsupported



PROBLEM—The District Commissioners favor a new Anacostia River bridge at East Capitol st. A National Capital Park and Planning Commission report recommends a bridge at Massachusetts ave.

The District Engineer Commissioner yesterday charged a National Capital Park and Planning Commission staff member with making an unsupported attack on the District's plan for an East Capitol st. bridge.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young said, "The statement that three other bridges could be built for the cost of the East Capitol st. bridge has no basis. No up-to-date estimates have been made of either the East Capitol st. or the Massachusetts ave. bridge, and I do not know of any estimates whatever on the other bridges."

Young's blast came in response to a report by John Nolen, Jr., director of planning for the NCPPC, and expected to be decided upon at the commission's December meeting.

Nolen's report urged that a bridge be erected over the Anacostia River at Massachusetts ave., instead of East Capitol st. where, it was said, it would interrupt the comprehensive thoroughfare plan for the city.

Should other bridges over the Anacostia be needed later, the Nolen report recommended the proposed Lower Baltimore-Washington Parkway Bridge, near the end of M st. extended and Maryland ave. ne., and the proposed Fort Dodge Bridge near South Dakota ave. ne., entering the District at the northeast corner of the Arboretum.

"It has been intimated that the East Capitol st. location, and an as much as 12 million dollars and the Massachusetts ave. bridge as little as 6 million dollars," the Nolen report said. "With this saving of 6 million dollars, the other two bridges could be built, and if the cost were somewhat more, they could be justified by their additional functional value and convenience."

The District Commissioners last month released a report showing the need for a new bridge over the Anacostia an drecommending the East Capitol location, and an additional bridge across the Anacostia between the present spans at 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave.

Missing Boy Complicates Custody Suit

Child Waitress Left With Welfare Office Reported Vanished Baffling Authorities

The tangled habeas corpus suit in District Court over custody of 3-year-old Jonathon Little yesterday was highlighted by the baffling weekend disappearance of his 3-year-old foster brother from the Industrial Home School Annex.

In court, Mrs. Mary C. Miller, 26-year-old waitress of 6126 Parkwood rd., Landover, Md., continued her fight for return of her son, Jonathon, whom she again contended that Mrs. Geraldine Little, 42, of 1317 10th st. nw., has illegally held since shortly after the child's birth.

Charging fraud, Mrs. Miller said the child was listed at Gallinger Hospital by Mrs. Little as Mrs. Little's son, and has remained so on the records.

David Still Missing

As for David Gregory, Mrs. Little's child by a former marriage, he was still missing last night so far as police were concerned.

Mrs. Little left David and a daughter, Edith Hernandez, 15, with the Board of Public Welfare on October 4, a few days after Judge T. Alan Goldsborough ruled that she must give up Jonathon pending disposition of his proper custody.

Then Mrs. Little declared, "If I'm not a fit mother for one of them, I'm not a fit mother for all of them."

Following a baffling, day-long search, Detective Mark Grey of the Missing Persons Bureau told reporters that Mrs. Little and her husband, Floyd, "admitted that they knew where David is but would not reveal his whereabouts."

Earlier Miss Winifred Thompson, assistant superintendent of the Industrial Home School, said Cornelius Hernandez, Mrs. Little's former husband and father of Edith, visited young David at the school Sunday. She said the boy was missing at the 4 p. m. roll call.

Detective Grey disclosed later that Hernandez denied taking David with him.

Lawyer Declines

In the court room after the hearing was adjourned until this morning, Grey approached Jefferson Busby, Mrs. Little's attorney, and said: "We want the child." Busby said he could not comply.

Grey said he would seek a Juvenile Court summons authorizing him to produce the child, and would also discuss the matter with the district attorney's office.

Reporter Subpenaed

Miss Dorothea Andrews and Eugene Jones, reporter and photographer, respectively, on The Washington Post, were subpenaed to tell how they happened to be on the scene when the Littles deposited their two other children at Child Welfare Division headquarters on October 4.

Miss Andrews explained that Mrs. Little telephoned The Post city desk just before she left for the Welfare Board. Miss Andrews said she took the call and quoted Mrs. Little as saying: "I am going down to the Board of Public Welfare and, if you wish, you may come along and se ewhat happens."

Several times during Miss Andrews' testimony, Busby urged Judge Goldsborough to strike it as "immaterial" and not "germane" to the case.

The judge overruled Busby, commenting: "Apparently Mrs. Little was incensed with the court action (that Jonathon should be sent to welfare pending outcome of the custody case). And why she should take it out on the other two children, it seems to me, shows a mental condition on the part of Mrs. Little which is exceedingly interesting." He added that to "advertise" her action also seemed "most extraordinary."

Mr. and Mrs. Little are expected to take the stand today.

Safety Drive For Persons Over 60 Here Is Planned

Commissioners Aim To Reduce Traffic Deaths of Elderly During November

The District Commissioners yesterday proclaimed November "Elderly Pedestrian Safety Month" to highlight the drive of the Commissioner's Traffic Advisory Board to reduce the number of deaths of pedestrians over 60 years old.

A feature of the campaign will be an award of an orchid to the woman, or a new hat to the man, chosen each Friday as "the elderly pedestrian of the week." Traffic police will make the weekly selection at unannounced intersections.

While persons 60 to 80 years old constitute but 9 9/10ths of the District's population, they account for almost 44 percent of pedestrian traffic deaths here. Seventeen of the 39 pedestrians killed in traffic mishaps this year were over 60 years old.

Aim of the campaign will be to urge greater pedestrian caution by persons in this age group, Arthur J. Sundlun, board chairman, said.

All mediums of communication will be utilized, he said, including use of thousands of leaflets. These will be sent to persons receiving old age insurasce benefits and public assistance as well as those on the civil service retired list.

Driver Freed On Bond in Traffic Death

Verdicts of accidental death in two District traffic fatality cases were returned yesterday by coroner's juries in inquests at the District Morgue.

The first was in the death of Anton B. Schuler, 59, an upholsterer, of 1828 A st. se. He was struck at 9:40 p. m., Saturday, near 17th and A sts. ne., by an auto driven by Henry A. Scoggins, 22, of 1251 Penn st. ne. Schuler died the same day at 7:30 p. m., at Gallinger Hospital.

Scoggins was charged by police after the accident with negligent homicide and colliding with another vehicle. He was released in $1000 bond. Yesterday in Municipal Court, before the inquest, Judge Thomas D. Quinn continued the case, and the bond, until November 8.

The second inquest was in the death, also Saturday, of Wesley A. Mount, 20, of Bristol, Pa., a predental student at Howard University. He and a companion student at Howard, Jimmy Towns, were struck at 12:10 p. m. Saturday at 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw. by an auto driven by Harry Hill, 42, of 2240 Virginia ave. nw. Mount died several hours later at Freedmen's Hospital. Towns was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts and bruises and released.

Hill was charged with failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian and released in $25 collateral. His case also is scheduled in Municipal Court, November 8.

Opera Guild to Hold Auditions Saturday

Auditions for places in the choral group of the Washington Opera Guild will take place at a meeting at 7:30 p. m., Saturday, at the Guild headquarters at 1719 19th st. nw., it was announced yesterday by Miss Dorothy Remington, director.

The choral group, she said, particularly needs altos and bassos, but singers in other ranges are welcome to try out. It is expected, Miss Remington said, to enlarge the choral group from its present 75 members to a possible 150 before a concert, or series of concerts, are presented.

GPO Worker Charged With Shooting Wife

A Government Printing Office employe asked his estranged wife to read a verse from the Book of Psalms yesterday, then shot her three times after first kissing and embracing her.

Seriously wounded was Mrs. Lordis V. Henderson, 31, of 1416 Half st. sw. Her husband, George T. Henderson, 42, was charged with assault with intent to kill at the Fourth Precinct Station.

Police said the husband told them he stopped his wife when she returned to the house for clothes after a disagreement last Thursday.

Police quoted Henderson as saying he "asked his wife to read the 109th verse of Psalms," which police presumed to be the 109th Psalm since there is no such verse. The 109th Psalm begins:

"Hold not thy peace O God of my praise; For the mouth of the wicked and the mouth of the deceitful are opened against me; they have spoken against me with a lying tongue."

Detective Sergt. Clarence Winemiller, who questioned Henderson, said Henderson called his wife's sister, Mrs. Marion Smith of 706 21st st. ne., after the shooting saying, "I've killed Lordis, I'm sure she's dead."

Mrs. Henderson was reported to be in critical condition at Gallinger Hospital.

Silver Spring Man Gets 30 Days For Wet Driving

A Silver Spring man, appearing in Bethesda Police Court yesterday in an assault case against his brother, wound up with a 30-day jail sentence in lieu of a $100 fine for drunken driving.

The man, William D. Lomax, 29, of Chestnut Ridge, was sentenced by Judge James R. Miller after his mother, Mrs. William E. Lomax, testified the brothers had been "drinking and riding around all day", before William was stabbed by his 23-year-old brother, Thomas.

William's case was heard after the jurist ordered a bench warrant issued against him. Then he ordered a summons for the mother when she, at first, refused to repeat her testimony in his case. William admitted under oath that he was driving.

Thomas also was given a 30-day sentence for the stabbing which occurred last Saturday night at the Lomax home.

Elevator Mechanic Crushed

A mechanic was killed in the shaft of an elevator at the Longfellow Bldg., 1201 Connecticut ave. nw., yesterday when a descending 3600-pound counterweight struck him in the face.

He was Harry H. Stewart, 56-year-old senior elevator mechanic with the Public Buildings Administration, of 7-A Parkway, Greenbelt, Md.

Police and other employes gave the following version of the accident, which occurred in No. 3 elevator shaft about 2:45 p. m.:

Stewart, making routine adjustments, told the elevator operator, Lula Brown, 35, of 2301 H st. nw., to take the lift to the top (eleventh) floor at full speed, to test it.

Stewart was standing on a rear ledge on the basement level of the shaft. When the elevator rose the counterweight descended, as it normally does, apparently hitting Stewart squarely in the face.

Another employe, John Stanley, 49, of 307 I st. ne., said he heard a gasping scream—"Like an 'oh!'" Stanley was the first to discover the body.

Dr. James Burns, of Emergency Hospital, pronounced Stewart dead on the scene at 3:09 p. m.

Cirminello Quads Reach 5th Milestone

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

The Cirminello quadruplets—the only set of four-of-a-kind in the Washington area—are out in the big world now, as befits their ripe old age of 5 years, as of today.

At least they're out in the big world from 9 to 11:30 a. m. Monday through Friday, when they attend kindergarten at the brand-new Forest Grove Elementary School in Silver Spring, Md.

The quads—Eileen, Kathleen Maureen and Michael, the lone boy—are the children of Joseph Cirminello, Securities & Exchange Commission analyst, and Mrs. Cirminello, now of 10,416 Inwood ave., Silver Spring.

The Cirminello family moved from their former home at Arlington, Va., to Silver Spring about two months ago, mostly because of Maryland's public kindergarten system.

Yesterday, a Halloween party for the two kindergarten classes at the school became a birthday party for the foursome when a big cake with five candles appeared at the auditorium. Sixty-four classmates helped to demolish it.

When the quads started kindergarten in September, Mrs. Cirminello suggested splitting her four-of-a-kind into two pairs, to make them less dependent on one another. Miss Ella Copes, principal of the school, agreed.

Michael and Kathleen are in Miss Elizabeth Buch's class, and Maureen and Eileen are in Mrs. Ora Poole's class.

The quads have come a long way since November 1, 1944, when they were so tiny their father could hold each one in his hand. Michael, huskiest of the four, weighs 37½ pounds and measures 42½ inches in height; with the same height, Maureen weighs 35½ pounds. Eileen and Kathleen, each standing at 41½ inches, weigh 34 and 33 pounds, respectively.

C. M. Woolley

Ex-Executive Returns Here After 13 Years

CLARENCE E. WOOLLEY

Nearly 13 years ago, Clarence M. Woolley came to town to leave some little cards on which were printed three letters: "P. P. C."

They meant "paying parting call"—for Woolley, then chairman of the board of the American Radiator Co., was retiring after 15 years as a member of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, an important post with the Federal Reserve System.

Yesterday Woolley, now 86 but looking 20 years younger, was back in Washington to pay some more calls on his many friends here. There were no printed cards this time, only verbal bits of auld lang syne.

Woolley now lives a pleasant retired life in Palm Springs, Calif. He retired from the business world 11 years ago when he was chairman of the board of what had become the American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corp. He also was a director of many other major American corporations.

Appeals Court Backs Numbers Charge Arrest

District police were upheld by the United States Court of Appeals yesterday in a 1948 numbers arrest of a man with a marked quarter in his pocket.

The court issue revolved on the legality of the arrest, made without a warrant on the evidence of a policeman who had placed bets himself. The appeals court said it had "no doubt of the legality of the arrest and search."

The man involved was Bernard Newyahr, arrested September 9, 1948, at 804 K st. nw. He gave his address as 901 New York ave. nw. The court said the case hinged on the circumstances known to Pvt. Samuel E. Wallace, then of the District Vice Squad.

Police knew a numbers game was being conducted and Wallace was sent there in plain clothes. He saw three or four men go to Louise Newyahr, Newyahr's wife, and figured they were placing bets. Wallace saw one write a note and give it to her so he wrote a note, too, asking her to put a quarter on number 962 and signing it "Sam."

She accepted the money, the court recounted, and then Newyahr appeared, talked with his wife, came to Wallace and questioned him.

As Newyahr turned away from Wallace, three uniformed police entered. They arrested Mrs. Newyahr and Hyman Sussman, who had been sitting at the same booth. Walace pointed to Newyahr and he, too, was arrested. When searched, the marked quarter which Wallace had given Mrs. Newyahr was found in Newyahr's pocket.

The court ruled unanimously there was "strong support" for Wallace's testimony that he did not want Newyahr to get away and that he knew "he had something to do about it."

Woman Seized As Gambler After Warning

A 37-year-old Mt. Rainier woman, who last summer was one of a number of persons suspected of gambling and warned to get out of town or suffer the consequences, yesterday was arrested on a charge of bookmaking.

She is Mrs. Marguerite Trautman, of 3201 Perry st., Mt. Rainier, identified by Mayor Herbert W. Reichelt as the first person to be arrested in his cleanup drive announced last summer on gambling in the town.

Mrs. Trautman was arrested yesterday in her home by a raiding party of Mt. Rainier police led by their chief, John W. Wise, a former detective sergeant from Washington, and Prince Georges County Detective Earl J. Huber.

Before the raid, police said they sent a woman to the house with marked money. The raiding party found the marked money, a racing slip, some telephones, an adding machine, radios, scratch sheets, horse tickets and numbers slips on the premises, Wise said.

Mrs. Trautman, whose bond was set yesterday at $1000, will face a hearing in Hyattsville Trial Magistrate Court November 14.

Horace Eugene (Mike) Caranfa, 40, a former Metropolitan Police homicide squad detective, died yesterday of a heart ailment at his home, 624 S. 20th st., Arlington. He had been ill for nine weeks.

Mr. Caranfa

Born in Philadelphia, he came here with his family as a boy, and attended Eastern High School. He worked as a teletype operator at the Washington Terminal Co., before joining the Police Department on September 1, 1934.

Until 1938, he was in the traffic division, then became a clerk in the homicide squad. In 1940, he was made a precinct detective, at No. 1, and in 1943 a detective sergeant in the homicide squad. During his service, he received nine commendations, including three, with other homicide detectives, for solution of important murder cases.

Surviving Mr. Caranfa are his wife, Mary; a son, Horace Eugene, jr.; two brothers, Henry A. and John M. Caranfa, and two sisters, Mrs. Diana Malatesta and Mrs. Eva Rodgers.

Funeral of Carl F. Jackson, Transport Man, on Wednesday

Funeral services for Carl F. Jackson, assistant general manager of the American Trucking Associations, Inc., will take place at 11 a. m., Wednesday, at the Fort Myer chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Jackson

Mr. Jackson, 49, died Saturday at his home, 17 W. Woodbine st., Chevy Chase, Md. He had been an official of the American Trucking Associations since 1934. In addition to being assistant general manager, he was director of the organization's traffic department, and was agent for the National Motor Freight Classification.

Born at Strongsville, Ohio, May 9, 1900, Mr. Jackson interrupted studies at Western Reserve University, at Cleveland, to enter military service in World War I.

On his return, he became connected with a bank at Akron, Ohio, until 1925, when he became a division manager of operations and distribution for the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., at Akron. In 1930, he entered the trucking industry as vice president, secretary and part-owner of an interstate carrier.

While connected with this organization, he was active on the trucking industry's Code committee under the NRA, and in 1934, entered full-time service of the American Trucking Associations. He headed the staff that laid groundwork for the first National Motor Freight Classification, and for eight years was chairman of the National Classification board. He relinquished that post in 1944, but continued as agent. He also served as secretary of the National Traffic Committee of American Trucking Associations.

Surviving Mr. Jackson are his wife, the former Mildred C. Moore, originally of Akron, Ohio, and two daughters, Mrs. Patricia Joy Lanzillotti, of Berkeley, Calif., and Mrs. Carol H. Maudlin, of Washington.

Mrs. George E. Fleming Dies

Mrs. Hadassah L. Fleming, 78, a Washington resident for 60 years and widow of George E. Fleming, former vice president of the Union Trust Co., died at her home yesterday after a long illness.

A native of Lock Haven, Pa., Mrs. Fleming lived at 3201 Idaho ave. nw.

Mrs. Fleming was a member of the Twentieth Century Club and the Washington Club, and was active in Red Cross work during World War II.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. William Burke, jr., of the Idaho ave. address; Mrs. Frances F. Winslow, Summit, N. J., and Miss Phebe B. Fleming, New Brunswick, N. J.; two sons, John L. Fleming, 1630 44th st. nw., and Carroll H. Fleming, Orchard Park, N. Y., and a brother, Robert H. Lesher, Kingman, Ariz.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today at St. Alban's Church, Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mrs. Beryle Chynoweth

Word has been received here of the death in Portsmouth, England, of Mrs. Beryle Fancey Chynoweth, 26, British war bride of Lieut. John Chynoweth, USA, of this city. She died on October 21.

Mrs. Chynoweth was visiting her family in Portsmouth at the time of her death.

H. J. Kamerow Dies at 61; Insurance Man

Harry J. Kamerow, 61, agent for the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., died yesterday at his home, 1224 Underwood st. nw., after a short illness.

Mr. Kamerow

A resident of Washington for 41 years, Mr. Kamerow had been in the life insurance business since 1929 and with the Acacia company since 1933. Before entering insurance work, he was employed by the Hecht Co. as a buyer in the shoe department.

He was a member of B'nai Israel Congregation. He was also a member of the William Montgomery Honor Club of Acacia, the D. C. Life Underwriters Association and the Benjamin Franklin Lodge, FAAM.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. today at the Danzansky Funeral Home, 3501 14th st. nw. Interment will be in B'nai Israel Congregation Cemetery, St. Barnabas rd., Oxon Hill, Md.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Helen Blumstein, two sons, Joseph and William, and a daughter, Betty, all of the Underwood st. address.

Miss Minnie Delano

Funeral services were held yesterday for Miss Minnie Delano, retired employe of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., at the Hysong funeral home, 1300 N st. nw. Burial was in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Miss Delano, who died on Friday, was the daughter of the late William and Anna Delano of Baltimore, and had lived in Washington for 50 years. She lived with her sister Miss Bent Delano at 2755 Macomb st. nw., until her sister's death in 1945.

Mrs. Selma Preinkert, 92, Dies; Church Charter Member

Mrs. Selma S. M. Preinkert, 92, sole surviving charter member of Grace Lutheran Church, 16th and Varnum sts. nw., died yesterday at her home, 1436 Chapin st. nw., after a two-week illness.

Mrs. Preinkert, who came to the United States from Germany in 1875 in a sailing vessel that took two months to cross the Atlantic, was the wife of the late John F. C. Preinkert, a division chief at the Patent Office, who died in 1908.

Her husband was one of the founders and first president of the Grace Lutheran Church. Mrs. Preinkert was the oldest living member of the church.

She is survived by three daughters, Miss Alvina M. Preinkert, Agriculture Department employe; Miss Alma Preinkert, registar at the University of Maryland and president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. H. S. Heine, Air Force employe, and two grandchildren.

The funeral will be Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. from the residence. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Pearl M. Johnson

Mrs. Pearl M. Johnson, 74, a resident of Washington since her girlhood, died from pneumonia at Waverley Sanitarium yesterday.

Mrs. Johnson formerly lived at the Broadmoor Apartments, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw. She was the widow of George C. Johnson, who was manager of the Barbar & Ross hardware and structural steel firm.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Wednesday in the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw.

William Hensley

Funeral services for William (Jack) Hensley, 79, who retired in 1923 after 32 years as a machinist at the Navy Yard, will take place at 1 p.m., Wednesday, at the Chambers chapel, 14th and Chapin sts. nw.

Mr. Hensley died Sunday at his home at 1232 Crittenden st. nw. A native of Washington, he attended Buchanan school here, and went to work in the Navy Yard as a youth. He was known then as an athlete and amateur boxer.

Surviving him are two sisters, Mrs. Jesse W. Hodges, with whom he lived, and Mrs. Lulu Robertson. Their mother was the late Mrs. Martha Robrecht, widely known as a worker for charity here before her death in 1929. Mr. Hensley will be buried at Congressional Cemetery.

Don't you hear voices?

That family you read about in the paper, with father in the hospital and mother sick at home, with a ten-year-old trying to take care of the other three kids...

Or the lonely old man who was sitting on the park bench when you passed by...

Or the crippled child looking wistfully out the window at the other children playing...

None of them has called to you for help. But don't you hear their voices?

The dollars you give through the Community Chest are used to banish fear from worried hearts ... to heal the sick ... to build neglected children into good citizens.

Listen to those voices—and give all that you possibly can.

Everybody benefits... Everybody gives

It Was Love at First Sight When Veep and Jane Hadley Met at Cliffords' Party

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

ON NOVEMBER 18, when Vice President Barkley and Mrs. Carleton Hadley marry, they will have known each other exactly 4 months and 10 days. They met July 8 when Mrs. Clark Clifford, with whom Mrs. Hadley was staying, was hostess at a party on the Presidential launch Margie.

In true story-book fashion, the Vice President took one look at Jane Hadley, fell hard—and permanently. It was obvious that they hit it off immediately, but knowing Mr. Barkley's gregariousness and general gallantry to the fair sex, no one paid too much attention.

But bright and early the next morning the Vice President telephoned Marni Clifford, asked all about her house guest, wanted to plan parties in her honor. Three days later he gave a luncheon for her at the Senate and followed it up with a cocktail party at his apartment the following afternoon.

When Mrs. Hadley returned to St. Louis, flattered but somewhat overcome by all the attention, she wrote to Mrs. Clifford, asking her to do the impossible and "write me every single thing he does and says!"

As time progressed and the Vice President managed a succession of visits, Jane Hadley wrote "For some strange reason I don't feel any difference in age," then, a final admission "I'm just crazy about him!"

Then Mrs. Hadley made an admission indicative of real character—"I wish in a way he wasn't Vice President. I'd love to live in Paducah—that's the kind of life I'd love to live."

JANE HADLEY
. . . "I'm crazy about him"

Educated Abroad

ELIZABETH JANE RUCKER was born in Keytesville, Mo., 38 years ago. Her grandfather, William J. Rucker, was a Congressman whom Mr. Barkley had known at the beginning of his career. Her mother and father were separated. Her mother, though now an invalid, is still a brilliant pianist, gave music lessons and at one time was accompanist to Opera Star Helen Traubel.

When Janie was quite young the family moved to Sedalia, Mo. She was sent to school in Switzerland and in Italy, and as natural result speaks such perfect French and Italian that, after her husband's death, she taught in the Language Department of Washington University.

As a young girl Jane not only became a passionate musician but she developed a tremendous interest in Lawrence of Arabia. She owns everything he wrote, knows more about his strange, withdrawn personality than almost anyone else.

Really intellectually inclined, when LIFE magazine published a list of 100 books made up by St. John's University, as the basis of culture and broad knowledge, Janie amazed everyone by reading them all.

Her hobby is collecting phonograph records. She has a remarkable collection and some years ago, before Maggie Teyte became well known, Mrs. Hadley had bought every available Teyte record. She spends all her money on books, records, has pretty but very few clothes and gives in to a sole luxury—she'll buy several very expensive hats, put them in her closet, and never wear them.

Daughters Thrilled

HER HUSBAND, Carleton Hadley, who was best man at the Clark Cliffords' wedding, was 10 years older. He died suddenly from a heart attack five years ago. Janie Hadley immediately went to work at Washington University and left only because she was offered double the salary by the Wabash Railroad. She is secretary to Joseph McClain, who holds down her husband's former job.

The two Hadley daughters, Ann, 17, and Jane, 15, are simply thrilled at the prospect of their mother's remarriage. Ann, who is Marni Clifford's god-daughter, is a student at the Newcomb College, the feminine part of Tulane University, where, by the way, Mr. Barkley's younger daughter, Mrs. Douglas MacArthur II, was once a student.

Mrs. Hadley has taken an active part in St. Louis civic life, working for the Opera Guild and for the symphony orchestra. Though surrounded with Democrats, she's had some decided Republican leanings and at one time was an ardent Willkie booster.

There's a story going the rounds in St. Louis about Mrs. Hadley and the milkman. The milkman was a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat and though Janie Hadley tried hard to convert him, he refused to budge an inch. So the morning after a furious political debate, the milkman found a note stuck in an empty milk bottle, it read "No Willkie—No Millkie!"

The Vice President, friends say, thought a great deal about the great difference in their ages. But since Mrs. Hadley is mature, has always preferred older people, he decided it made little difference. Anyway, no matter what age it blossoms, love is a wonderful thing and so all power to the United States' most popular of all Vice Presidents—and to his bride-to-be, Jane Hadley.

He Won't 'Trail Along'

OUR NEWLY accredited Ambassador to Denmark, Mrs. John Anderson, since her swearing-in last Friday, has been busy getting her briefing at the State Department.

None of her three sisters or her brother attended the ceremony and her two children were not taken from school. However, they sent the corsage of two giant gardenias which pretty Eugenia Anderson wore. Mr. Anderson's three sisters did attend, and afterward, the new Ambassador admitted she was disappointed they hadn't brought along her children!

Mr. Anderson, whose father invented the process which puffs up cereals, is a construction artist—that is to say he often works with materials rather than paint, somewhat in the manner that Alexander Calder has familiarized. A mature, serious man, he takes his wife's new position with equanimity and while it was first under discussion said, in effect, "I'm not going to trail along. I'll do what is necessary according to protocol and continue to do my own work."

In their absence the Anderson farm will be managed by his brothers who live nearby and head their father's research laboratories which now concentrate on electronics and manufacture complicated precision instruments.

Tea, Reception Given to Honor Visiting Artists

Art lovers of Washington attended two parties yesterday, one a tea at the Corcoran Art Gallery, and the other a reception at 9 p. m. at the Georgetown home of Mrs. McCook Knox. The two occasions honored Sculptor Oronzio Maldarelli and Mrs. Maldarelli of New York and Painter Franklin C. Watkins and Mrs. Watkins of Philadelphia. The artists are here for the judging of the Corcoran Gallery of Art's fourth annual American exhibition by artists of the District of Columbia and vicinity.

Nearly 1600 paintings have been entered in the show and about 100 pieces of sculpture. Mr. Watkins is judge of the paintings, and Mr. Maldarelli is judge of sculpture and ceramics. Yesterday's tea at the Art Gallery was held from 4 to 6 in the members' room. On the reception committee were the Director and Mrs. Hermann W. Williams, the Assistant Director and Mrs. John Leeper, Charles E. Buckley, keeper of the Clark Collection, and Miss Eleanor Swenson, assistant curator of painting.

Among the ladies who took turns presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Heath C. Moorman, Mrs. George C. McGhee, Mrs. David E. Finley, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Orme Wilson and Miss Anne Dudley Flannery.

At nine o'clock prominent figures of Washington's art world attended the buffet supper given by Mrs. Knox. Fall flowers and candlelight decorated her charming house on N st., and the two judges and their wives assisted in receiving.

The show will open November 19. There will be a private viewing for members of the Art Gallery and their guests on that day at a large reception held from 8:30 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. The following day, November 20, the show will be open to the public.

St. John's Church to Hold Bazaar, Book Fair

The annual bazaar and book fair of historic old St. John's Church on Lafayette Square will be held on Armistice Day, November 11, from 10 to 6 at the Parish House, 819 16th st. Christmas shoppers will have a wide selection of gifts from which to choose. All the necessary wrappings will be available, as well as home-cooked foods, needlework, stocking toys and grab-bag surprises.

As a special attraction for the book fair, George Howe will autograph his book, "Call It Treason," for which he received the Christopher Award. All the organizations of the church will participate in the bazaar, and refreshments will be served throughout the day.

Mrs. Detlow Marthinson, chairman for the bazaar, is assisted by Mrs. Warren Stephenson, Mrs. Glenn Williams, Mrs. Donald Bingham, Mrs. Harry Nichol, Mrs. Horace Peaslee, Mrs. Lawrence Hoes, Miss Alida Haynes, Mrs. David White, Mrs. John Henderson, Mrs. Byron Boswell, Miss Amy Parkens, Miss Nancy Chappelear, Mrs. William MacDougall, Miss Charlotte Armstrong, Paul Davis and M. J. Tawney.

President of Parent-Teacher Group Asks How To Cope With Disgruntled Member Who Floats Unfounded Charges Against Child to Hurt Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am proud to be the president of our local Parent-Teacher group, although since holding this office I find I do get talked about by some members who don't approve of my way of doing things.

I was prepared for some unfavorable comment, but an incident last week was the last straw. We have one member who just doesn't agree on anything and she thrives on gossip, and when she found that her talk didn't bother me, she turned her attack on my child, who is in the third grade.

The woman went so far as to call my child's teacher with false charges of misconduct, reports that I found to be false after checking and double-checking. Fortunately the teachers understood the situation and didn't believe the tale in the first place, but the woman has done a thorough job of gossiping to the children in the neighborhood, and the story got bigger as they passed it along.

Playmates Also Abuse Child Now

ALL THIS commotion has had a bad effect on my child, who comes home crying about mistreatment from playmates since the woman's accusations got around. I know the children will forget in time, but what will this troublemaker do next? I just couldn't bear to have my child hurt again; and I have thought of resigning for the child's sake; but, of course, that is just what the troublemaker wants me to do.

How do you handle a person like her? I am confident you can come up with the answer, because I have all the confidence in the world in your judgment. So please advise me, and please answer soon, for this matter mustn't be allowed to go on any longer. R. C.

All Club Workers Know This Picture

DEAR R. C.: Any reader who has ever taken part in women's club work will recognize familiar territory in this picture you paint, and will think at once, "Oh, I know her," as they scan today's version of Mrs. Gossip peddling her poison against the new president.

Almost without exception it seems that women's organizations hatch and harbor the species, either as a lone firebrand if the group is small, or more often as ringleader of more like her, ready to coagulate into an obstructionist minority with a new line of attack against each administration—even against office holders whom said species voted for.

Why the dirty opposition? Well, obviously the aim of the chronic soreheads is to stay in the limelight in each regime and do their bit to make the president pay through the nose for her season of glory, because they unconsciously begrudge her the "honors" due her position. But, of course, they always profess that "it's the good of the club" they're working for.

Use Legal Means to Curb Offender

WHAT THE Mrs. Gossip type of woman can't bear is watching a sister member enter upon and enjoy (note I said enjoy) an office that stands for achievement, public approbation, etc. And the reasons will be found in Mrs. G's own personal history, related to the fact that she unconsciously rates herself a rejected personality, thus smarts enviously on seeing any woman associate become a feted, accepted figure. Being insatiably hungry for attention herself, she tries figuratively to massacre the woman who puts her in the shade.

So much for what makes these unhappy creatures tick. And now about your distress. From what you say, your child's emotional health is jeopardized by the woman's hostile discourse, and since you anticipate recurrent attacks unless she is curbed, I feel you have just cause to take legal action to shut her up. Do this quietly, letting your husband and the family lawyer act on the child's behalf, thus treating it as a family matter and sparing the club a cat-fight,—for which intelligent members will commend you.

Also, since the child is disturbed (and to strengthen your legal hand), go over the story with your family doctor (if he has a feeling for children), or with a reputable psychologist, in order to discover how much injury the child has suffered, and to get good guidance in helping him safely weather the nasty commotion. M. H.

Auxiliary Hears Mrs. Chesham Tell of Salvation Army Services

By Genevieve Reynolds

MEMBERS OF THE SALVATION ARMY AUXILIARY of Washington yesterday heard Mrs. (Lieutenant Commissioner) Albert Chesham, director, Salvation Army Women's Activities for the Southern States and the District of Columbia, describe the services of the organization.

Speaking at the fall meeting and tea, she told how the auxiliary assists unmarried mothers. She reminded her audience that unmarried mothers can be found in all strata of society. For example, she pointed out that in one college town 30 percent of those who enter the Salvation Army's Hospital are university students.

Mrs. Chesham said that the Salvation Army provides Fresh Air Camps for needy mothers and children, visits prisoners and aids them in getting jobs, when possible, after their release.

Prior to the tea, the auxiliary, which was organized about two years ago by Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, formally adopted a constitution and by-laws. Membership is open to any woman interested in the Salvation Army's program.

Also the auxiliary voted as its official name The Salvation Army Auxiliary of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. E. Hilton Jackson, chairman of the organization committee, presented the new constitution and by-laws for passage.

Mrs. Wallace N. Streeter, auxiliary president, announced that the organization's annual rummage sale will be held Friday and Saturday, November 4 and 5, at 910 S st.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, and Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. In charge of tea table arrangements were Mrs. Arthur Crawford and Mrs. T. Stanley Holland.

To Honor National Officers

TWO TOP officers of Pilot International—Miss Susan Beyer, president, and Miss Wilda Richardson—will be guests of honor when the Pilot Club of Washington holds its regular meeting today 6:15 p. m., at the Burlington Hotel.

Miss Beyer of Albuquerque, N. Mex., is a member of the Pilot Club in that city. Miss Richardson is in charge of the Pilot Club's office in Macon, Ga.

Arriving in town yesterday they conferred with Miss Helen Hoffman, international convention chairman.

Plans were formulated to hold the organization's convention here July 24-30, 1950. Delegates from over 250 clubs in the United States, Canada, Mexico, France, Hawaii and England are expected to attend.

Advises Manka Rubinstein:

If You'd Look Young at 70, Cultivate Good Health and Beauty Habits Now

By Peggy Preston

IT can be done—a woman of 70 can look a blooming 45.

Yesterday we met a woman who is proof of the fact. She is Manka Rubinstein, sister of the cosmetic queen, Helena. Manka, her black hair glistening and strong, her skin vibrant and healthy, calmly dropped the information that she is practicaly 70—68 to be exact. And she doesn't look a day over a normal 45!

Immediately, we demanded the secret. How's it done? What do we have to do to achieve a like miracle—like looking 16, for instance, right now?

Manka gave us a good scolding.

"No, no!" she admonished. "You make the same mistake of so many women. You want to accomplish in a minute what takes years of effort. Good grooming and the preservation of beauty is a habit, carefully and religiously cultivated—it is like learning to brush one's teeth daily—as basic as that."

But it should be only a habit, not a fetish, she cautioned. Only a foolish woman is overly concerned with how she looks. "Yet to look young is often to feel and 'think' young. It can transform a woman's spirit, keep her alert and active long after the accepted age decline."

Then, Manka (who is here to personally conduct the beauty course this week at Woodward & Lothrop's) relented, and let us in on a few rules and regulations for the preservation of a youthful appearance.

First—Good Health

First on the agenda—good health.

"Without that you have nothing," said Manka. "And the trick is to keep it once you have it. Proper diet and exercise habits, followed throughout a lifetime, are essential if you would look youthful at 70."

Good posture is another essential. When the figure is permitted to relax into odd, careless positions, the entire structure gets out of tune.

Even a very "plain" woman can be lovely if she possesses a firm, straight figure, healthy, glowing skin and hair. Proper cosmetics can enhance her face, and at times give her the impression of owning real beauty.

Manka suggests that girls under 25 need only follow the rules of skin cleanliness. Their cosmetics aides should be simple. Lipstick, a little powder, and a good cleansing cream will suffice.

Watch Contours

But once past 25, they should begin to watch the contour of their faces. It is then that the little expression lines begin forming, and by the middle 30s, the chin muscles have lost their tone. Exercise, faithfully followed, can prevent these, the most telling and disfiguring signs of age in a woman's face.

Manka Rubinstein has followed all these rules herself, down through the years. And added a few of her own. "Each woman has an individual beauty problem. She must learn a few tricks which will point up her own special type, if she would be really effective," she points out.

A true brunette, with blue black hair, brown eyes and clear, creamy skin, Manka uses brilliant colors to create a dramatic contrast. Her lipstick and nail polish is dark red. Her favorite jewels are emeralds and rubies which she has set in huge gold mountings.

Throughout this week she, and a staff of assistances, are conducting a series of classes at a staff of assistants are condensed course, including diet, exercise, skin and hair care, is being offered daily from 10 a. m. to 12 noon; and from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m.

Luncheon Groups At Mayflower Show

Fashioned-minded people attending yesterday's weekly fashion show in the Mayflower Lounge included Mrs. C. J. Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherrod, Mr. and Mrs. Burks Summers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rediker, Mrs. George R. Holmes, Mrs. Alma Fenn and Mrs. Magnien McArdle.

Mrs. Mack had as her luncheon guests Mrs. John L. Dougherty, Mrs. Peter Drury, Mrs. Fred Britten, Mrs. Herbert Blunck and Mrs. Jennings Randolph. Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard lunched with Mrs. Clarence Westbrook, and Mrs. Emil Hurja shared a table with Mme. Gregar Bendz, wife of the Swedish Agricultural Attache. The latter has just returned from Europe where she visited her daughter, Ino, recent bride of Jean d'Marel of Paris.

Honor guests at Bab Lincoln's table, who appeared on her broadcast on station WMAL last evening, were Mrs. Marguerite Glover of New York, Mrs. H. Welles March, and Mrs. Constantine de Stackelberg.

Black Pearls On Display Here

Black pearls, one of the rarest of the cultured variety, are used in a handsome necklace which is on display this week at Castleberg's.

The remarkable color of these pearls which gives them a black, iridescent glow is a rare occurrence in the grown pearl. It greatly enhances their value and makes them one of the most desirable of all gems.

St. John's' Club to Hold Fashion Show

A fashion show will be the feature of the regular monthly meeting of the Mothers' Club of St. John's College, to be held Friday, November 4, at 1:30 p. m. in the school auditorium.

The show has been arranged by Mrs. Raymond Marx, program chairman, and Mrs. Francis Fannon, entertainment chairman. Fashions will be presented by Woodward & Lothrop's.

Mrs. George G. Nalley and Mrs. Helen N. Libby, cochairmen of the annual St. John's Saber party to take place Friday, November 18, will give a report of final plans for the event. Mrs. Emil Press is hospitality chairman.

Brocades and Velvets For 'Symphony Nights'

EVENING clothes are capturing the fashion spotlight as the Washington "season" gets under way. The National Symphony concerts, forthcoming debutante balls and holiday gatherings are causing attention to focus on the kind of costume that women like best to wear—luxurious satins, sequin-sprinkled crepes and ermine-trimmed velvets. Tomorrow night's first concert of the B series by the Symphony at Constitution Hall will be the occasion for another turn-out of formal fashions. Pictured here are two gowns, which in line and fabric tells a part of the evening style story for 1949-50. Made by Nicky, a local designer, they were shown with her collection recently at the Raleigh Hotel.

The Far Eastern influence in current modes is reflected in the dinner gown at right. Its jacket of Chinese design tops a sheathe-like strapless dress of black velvet.

BEAUTY MEMO . . .

Sh-h-h-h girls, it's true that most of us aim to please our men—in almost everything except fashion. Take the new short bob. Men definitely prefer long, gleaming tresses. If you have a short bob in spite of the man in your life, take extra care of your hair so that he will admire your shining coiffure in spite of himself. Washing hair more frequently with cream shampoos, brushing it vigorously every day can have beneficial results.

How to Meet Young Couples

My husband and I have just been married and moved to Washington to live. We are university graduates, in our middle 20's, and have a very limited income. Can you suggest ways in which we can meet other young couples. R.E.M.

Each month the District of Columbia Recreation Department issues a leaflet called "Do You Know" which lists many activities in which interested persons may participate. Just to give you an idea as to the breadth of activities covered, the October leaflet lists fencing instruction, classes in piloting and small boat handling, card collectors, club meetings, free concerts by a chamber music society, art gallery talks, open house at United States Naval Observatory, mothers' club, bowling, square dancing, and so forth. Many of these activities are free.

"Do You Know" is posted on the bulletin boards at all public libaries. I suggest you visit a nearby library and look it over. You and your husband are certain to find activities in which you are interested, and by participating in these activities you will meet folks of like interests. With that start, friendships are bound to develop.

Because of the great demand for the leaflet, the Recreation Department is able to send it only to groups where a number of persons will use each copy. However, the office of the Recreation Center has said that they will be glad to give information to individuals about specific activities if they will call HObart 8132.

Another excellent way to meet young couples is to attend the church of your choice. At the close of the services mention to the pastor that you are interested in activities where you will meet people. He is a most unusual pastor if he won't follow that cue with specific invitations to join the young people's group in his church. In that connection, I'd like to say that the best way to get to know people quickly and feel you "belong" in a church is to do some real work in the organization.

I am contemplating buying either an oversized bed or twin Hollywood beds and pushing them together to make one bed.

I would like to know the proper way to make a bed of this kind. Can one buy oversized covers to fit such a bed or is it customary to make each bed separately in the case of twin beds? I would rather make it as one bed if possible. J. H. K.

It is possible to buy oversized sheets and blankets to make twin beds as one bed, but they have to be bought on special order. One mill will make fine percale sheets 3 yards wide for about $16 a sheet. Extra-wide blankets cost about twice as much as those made regulation size.

I am told that in Hollywood so many extra-sized beds are in use that stores carry large sheets in regular stock. However, the demand in Washington for such merchandise is so small that they are obtainable only on special order. If you are interested, you can order extra-size sheets and blankets through bedding sections of the department stores.

The side tables by our couch are of white oak. We are furnishing our apartment with dark mahogany pieces tinted slightly red and would like to have the side tables match the other pieces in color. Please advise me how to remove the present light finish on the side tables and paint them in dark mahogany. N. F.

Using a commercial paint and varnish remover, take off the present finish down to the raw wood. When the finish is gone, sand the surface smooth and wipe away all dust with a cloth dampened with turpentine.

For the finish you can either apply a mahogany varnish stain or a mahogany oil stain followed by clear shellac or varnish. Since you wish to match these pieces to the mahogany you already have, probably the easiest way to do it is to use a mahogany oil stain. The oil stain you rub on with a cloth, continuing to apply it until you have the color you wish. It would be a good idea to make the first application on an under part of the table so you can get a general idea of how much stain it will take to achieve the color you wish. By rubbing the stain on with a cloth you can apply it more evenly than would be possible by brushing it on. Continue rubbing to smooth the stain completely while wet thus avoiding streaks.

When the piece is stained, let dry and give it one coat of shellac so that the stain will not smear when the varnish is applied. If you like a satin finish, complete the job by applying two coats of the dull drying varnish which dries with a soft gleam.

Set the blouse to soak for 20 to 30 minutes in a solution of sodium perborate and water. Use four tablespoons of perborate to a pint of lukewarm water. When the soaking period is over wash in mild soap and lukewarm water and rinse three times. Repeat if all yellow is not removed the first time.

I have recently moved to this city and have been unable to locate a place that sells my brand of cosmetics. Could you please tell me if there is one in this city? H. G. W.

If you will look in the yellow pages of the telephone book under "cosmetics" you will find six stores which sell the brand of cosmetics mentioned in your letter.

To E. K. J. and E. D., Arlington; L. B., Washington; M. H. B., Washington; B. ., Alexandria; M. S., Washington; E. B. W., Arlington; E. D. T., Washington: If you would care to send me your complete address, I will be glad to send the information for which you asked by direct mail.

To E. W. B. and E. K. J., who have asked where they can buy adaptors for converting oil lamps to electric: These can be purchased at a shop on F st. which sells all sorts of lamp equipment. If they do not have the size or quantity of adaptors you wish in stock, they will be glad to order them for you. They can be reached by calling Executive 0943.

I wish to thank E. M. M., Alexandria; L. J. P., Arlington; S E, Washington, and G. K. B., Arlington, who have sent in information to B. M. about "clothes that grow." The information has been sent to B. M.

Attention N. L. K.: If you will send us your complete name and address, we have two letters to forward to you in which you may be interested.

R. G. K. would like to have a recipe for Brown Sugar pie. I have been making this brown sugar pie for many years. If she would like to try it, here it is:

Cover a baking dish with pie dough, then cover that with butter, fill with plenty of brown sugar, sprinkle with a little water, then cover lightly with cinnamon and a few drops of butter. It does not take long to bake. I hope she likes this pie. H. V. M.

PETUNIA!

Your Moonlight on the Lake;
I'll take the simple beauty
Of a luscious sizzling steak!

And if your family likes lots of gravy, Petunia, put a can of slightly diluted mushroom soup in the bottom of the broiling pan while the steak cooks. Tastes delicious!

Add Turnip for Flavor

A small white turnip, peeled and diced, gives a tangy flavor to an ordinary soup. Add a bouquet of herbs to the soup, too; you can make it by tieing a bay leaf, a celery top, a sprig of parsley, and one of thyme together. Remove the "bouquet" before serving.

Science Tackles the Unhappy Marriage

Pre-Nuptial Counseling Saves Many Matches

This is the second in a series of six articles on marriage problems.

By Gerald W. Johnson

PARENTS who seek the advice of a modern marriage counselor for their children are merely following the correct procedure of doctors who refuse to treat members of their own families for serious ailments.

The parents' reason is identical with the doctors' reason—to avoid the danger that judgment may be warped by emotional involvement.

In dealing with Junior, the professional counselor has one great advantage over Dad, and over Mom, too. This is the counselor's clear understanding that the average person will do fairly well as a husband or as a wife. Dad and Mom may be people of strong common sense and yet have a weak spot here. In fact, they would be more—or less—than human if they did not feel that in the matter of a spouse Junior and Sis require something extra special.

The counselor cherishes no such illusion. He know that normal human beings, under normal circumstances, can get along together quite happily.

Should Be Widely Versed

THE counselor's definition of the word "normal" is not quite that of the average layman. If he is highly competent, he is well versed in psychology and sociology; and he cannot be a good psychologist without having given much study to some of the biological sciences.

His knowledge of the nervous system in particular, should be comparable to that of a good physician's.

Laymen frequently think of "average" and "normal" as meaning the same thing; but a social scientist knows that a truly well-adjusted personality is above average. Nearly everyone has some knobs and angles that do not quite fit into the scheme of things.

Many scientists cut out the "nearly" and say flatly that everyone has some points that don't quite fit; for if one were perfectly adjusted, he would be perfectly happy, which just doesn't happen in this world.

So when Junior springs the age-old line about his girl being "different," and Dad throws up his hands and howls, the marriage counselor starts with the theory that Dad is probably right and probably wrong.

That is to say, Dad is right in believing that the girl is not perceptibly different from most of the others in her high school class, and wrong in assuming that is a reason why Junior should not marry her.

Average Is Best Bet

ON the contrary, it is a good reason for marrying her, because the average girl will do. It is the girl (or boy) who really is different that should be viewed with foreboding.

Because marked variations from the ordinary human type frequently have a dangerous basis. Exquisite beauty sometimes shows up in young people with a marked tubercular tendency. Genius not infrequently springs from a family with a bad history of epilepsy or insanity.

The sickly and the moody are bad bets in the marriage gamble, but you can put your money on the plain, ordinary boy and girl with a reasonable chance that they will pay off.

The chance is greatly increased if Junior and Sis are told beforehand what to expect. That is where the marriage counselor comes in. At the moment it may seem to be a complete waste of effort, for young people in love are not conspicuous for their calm judgment.

They may listen to the expert with the private opinion that he is an old Dryasdust who has forgotten what it is to be alive and young. But in time to come they will remember what he said and begin to see some sense in it, and it is the time to come that is critical.

It is a rare marriage indeed that isn't fine for a few weeks, or a few months, or maybe a few years, advice or no advice.

On the Preventive Side

BUT the bride and groom who have been told in advance that the time will come when things are not so fine, who have been given sound advice about what to do then, are not taken by surprise when difficulties appear.

Nothing shatters one's ability to get along in the world more completely than the feeling that one has made the most awful mistake ever committed by a human being, an error unparalleled in its magnitude. Then if one remembers having been told by an expert that it isn't unique at all, that something of the kind happens to practically everybody, it doesn't seem half as bad.

Perhaps one will presently begin to see a touch of the comic in it, and when that happens the danger point is passed.

This is the preventive side of the marriage counselor's work, which, like preventive medicine, is supremely important and yet makes little demand upon the ingenuity and resourcefulness of the practitioner.

That part of it you can learn from books, for the advice proper to young people contemplating marriage is pretty well standardized, and varies little from case to case.

But when the marriage has already taken place, the situation is as different as it is when the man is already sick before the doctor is called in.

Intelligent people know that they really ought to see the doctor before their aches and pains become serious, but who does it?

The marriage counselor ought to be consulted before the wedding, but his hardest and most interesting work comes when he is called in later.

Tomorrow: When Suspicion Follows the Honeymoon.

Jaranillas to Be Feted

In honor of Justice and Mrs. Delfin Jaranilla of the Philippines a cocktail party will be given Saturday from 5 to 7 by the Philippine Counselor and Mrs. Gamboa. Miss Emma Jaranilla, daughter of Justice and Mrs. Jaranilla will also attend.

The honor guests have just completed a three-month tour of the United States and Europe, and are returning soon to Manila.

Billy Tea Club Hosts at Dance

Many Australian and State Department officials attended the Halloween party and square dance of the Billy Tea Club, an organization of folks from "down under," held last night at Normandy Farm.

Among the Billy Tea members and their friends at the party were Nelson Johnson, former United States Ambassador to Australia and Mrs. Johnson; General John A. Chapman, head of the Australian Military Mission and Mrs. Chapman, with their daughter, Miss Betty Chapman, who was squired by Capt. A. J. Eisenhauer.

Canada was represented by Brig. Gen. H. A. Taber of the Canadian Military Mission and Mrs. Taber, and the State Department by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Spiker, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boyce, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Powell and Miss Helen Wessell. Also guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McCallum, of Victoria, Australia. Mr. McCallum is the chief librarian of Victoria and is in Washington under the auspices of the Carnegie service.

Others at the party were Australian Trade Commissioner J. U. Garside and Mrs. Garside, Capt. J. C. Morrow, Australian Naval Attache and Mrs. Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Davis, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McNicol, Wing Comdr. and Mrs. Swift and Wing Comdr. and Mrs. W. E. Townsend.

Swart-Butler Betrothal Announced in Philippines

Announcement was made recently in Manila, the Philippines, of the engagement of Mrs. Virginia Swart, daughter of Mrs. Temple Richardson Schwab of Warrenton and Washington, to Frederick McN. Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Butler of Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Mrs. Swart has just returned to Manila from a vacation trip to the States. She is a native of Warrenton, Va., and she is a member of the staff of the American Embassy in Manila. For the past four years she has resided in the Far East, coming to Manila in 1947 from Tokyo, where she spent two years.

Mr. Butler was graduated from the University of Iowa. During the war he served as a lieutenant commander with the U. S. Navy in the Pacific. For almost two years he has been a resident of Manila as manager of the Lawrence Warehouse Co. He is a member of the Army and Navy and Manila clubs.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Amussen—Duke

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Diane Duke to Robert Martin Amussen. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Charles R. Marshall and T. W. D. Duke of New York. Her fiance is the son of Mrs. Theodore S. Amussen and the late Mr. Amussen of Washington.

Miss Duke was graduated from the Brearley School and attended Swarthmore College. She made her debut in 1947. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Alice P. Dexter and the late Rene Carrillo de Albornoz of New York, and of Mrs. T. Wiley Duke and the late Mr. Duke of Richmond, Va.

Mr. Amussen was graduated from the Landon School in Washington. He attended Georgetown University and was graduated from Swarthmore College. He served with the United States Navy in the Pacific during the war, and is now with the Edison Electric Institute.

The wedding is planned for January.

Sanborn—Nielsen

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Sanborn announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jean Sanborn, to Frederick William Nielsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude D. Nielsen of Hyattsville, Md. The wedding will take place the latter part of January at St. Ann's Catholic Church.

The bride-elect was graduated from St. Patrick's Academy and is now with the Department of Justice. Mr. Nielsen was graduated from McKinley High School and served in the Army Air Force for two and a half years.

Fassett—Merwin

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hartwell Fassett of Alexandria announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjorie Ann Fassett, to Alvah Monroe Merwin, 3d, son of Alvah Monroe Merwin 3d, son of Mount Pocono, Pa. The announcement was made at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Fassett in celebration of their twenty-eighth wedding anniversary.

The bride-elect was graduated from Syracuse University and is a member of Sigma Kappa Sorority. Mr. Merwin also attended Syracuse University, graduating from the College of Business Administration. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Keith to Ride 5 Virginia Hunters In Madison Square Garden Horse Show

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 31.—Miss Ellie Wood Keith, of Charlottesville, one of the country's leading equestriennes, left here today for New York to compete in the National Horse Show, which opens tomorrow at Madison Square Garden.

As in former years, Miss Keith will be a real threat in the hunter division and will battle some of the best men for top jumping honors during each of the eight days' performances of the National. At last year's show she humbled men competitors by winning the championship on Mrs. E. Cooper Person's Adventure.

This year Miss Keith will pilot five hunters. Three are from the Llongallan Farm stables of Mrs. Person at Upperville — Adventure Safety Call and Carry Me Back. Miss Kirk will also ride Substitution, owned by Mrs. John T. Maloney, of Warrenton, and Baby Seal, frequently shown on the Virginia circuit for the past two seasons, now the property of Mrs. Parker Poh, of Lexington, Ky.

Son Born to Manns

Col. Woodward Berkeley Mann, USAF, and Mrs. Mann announce the birth of a son, Woodward Berkeley Mann 2d, on October 22 at Columbia Hospital. Mrs. Mann is the former Miss Wilma Kathleen Johnson of Dallas, Tex. The baby's paternal grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Woodward Mann of Kansas City, Mo.

D. C. Gas Net Off Sharply In 12 Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Gas Light Co. in an interim report to stockholders showed consolidated net income of $1,113,604 for the 12 months ended September 30, compared with $1,696,541 a year ago.

After deducting preferred stock dividends, net was equal to $1.10 a common share for the latest 12-month period as compared with $2.46 a common share in the previous 12 months.

President Everett J. Boothby pointed out that the decline in net earnings is the effect of steadily rising costs of operation "accentuated by less than normal sales of gas for house heating during the unusually mild weather of last winter."

A company plea for higher gas rates has been heard by the District Public Utilities Commission, but the PUC decision has not yet been announced.

For September, the gas firm reported a seasonal loss of $113,739 for District of Columbia operations compared with a deficit of $113,611 in the same 1948 month.

For the first nine months, net income for the D. C. operations totaled $820,388, a decline of $56,615.

The interim report also points out that 16,000 new dwelling units will be served with gas during the current year.

DEEP RED: Pennsylvania Railroad for September showed a loss of $2,721,739, which put it $1,573,635 in the red for the first nine months this year. This compared with a net income of $7,201,540 in September, 1948, and $20,441,156 for the nine months last year. This year's tumble was attributed to the coal strike, along with a sharp decline in rail traffic and increased costs as a result of the 40-hour week for nonoperating employes which became effective September 1.

RIGHTS TRADED: Over-the-counter trading has started in "rights" of Government Employes Corp., newly organized auto finance affiliate of Government Employes Insurance Co. (Geico). As announced previously, 30,000 shares of the auto finance firm will be issued. Geico shareholders of record October 25 were given warrants entitling them to purchase one share of the new firm's stock at $10 for every five Geico shares. The rights yesterday were bid 3¾ and asked 4½.

ODD LOTS: Board Chairman Frank W. Abrams of Standard Oil Co. (N. J.) last night received the gold Oscar-of-Industry for his company's 1948 annual report which was judged best of all industry in the Financial World survey finals . . . Steel operations this week are estimated at 8.8 per cent of rated capacity, the fifth week of the CIO steelworkers' strike . . . Travelers Insurance Co. shareholders approved a 100 percent stock dividend. This will double the firm's captalizaton from 20 million dollars to 40 million dollars. A transfer from surplus will pay the dividend . . . In addition to Second National Bank, Yule Savings Clubs will be reopened by a number of other local banks including Hamilton National (in two branches), National Bank of Washington, Washington Loan & Trust Co., The City Bank, National Savings & Trust Co. and Bank of Commerce & Savings.

PROMOTIONS: Koppers Co. announced appointment of new managers for its production and research departments. Vice President Fred Denig was named head of the production department, and Dr. G. Frank D'Alelio was appointed vice president and manager of the research department, the position formerly held by Denig. The firm said the changes were made necessary by the resignation, due to ill health, of Vice President Hugh C. Inton, who headed the production department.

NEW RECORD: United Air Lines reported its traffic for the three months ended September 30 set a new record. Net income for the quarter totaled $2,886,328, equal to $1.34 a common share. This compared with net of $782,681 or 33 cents a share in the same 1948 period. For the first nine months of the year, United's net income was $2,710,574 or $1.16 a share, against a net loss of $238,834 in the like period last year.

EARNINGS: Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. reported net income of $34,766,292 for the fiscal year ended July 31, compared with $54,735,660 for the previous 12 months. Other earnings statements:

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Cotton futures closed firm today at gains of 45 cents to $1.15 a bale. The market broke out of a narrow tradin range in late dealings as a leading spot firm bought about 25,000 bales of futures in various deliveries, including 4000 bales each in the new crop October, December and March positions. Traders attributed this buying to covering for mill account.

Third-Quarter Earnings Gain For First Time in 12 Months

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Profits earned by the Nation's industry turned around and headed higher in the third quarter of this year. It was the first upward movement since the peak of earnings was reached in the third quarter of 1948, a banner year that surpassed even the fabulous 1929.

The earnings of automobile companies jacked up the profit curve and offset a severe drop in oil company profits which suffered by comparison with their phenominally high rate of a year ago.

A compilation by the Associated Press showed net profits of 314 companies amounted to $1,003,644,061 in the third quarter of this year, an increase of 4.3 percent over earnings of $962,102,819 in the second quarter of 1949.

The third quarter total, however, was 4.1 percent lower than profits in the third quarter of 1948 amounting to $1,046,983,291.

Profits had been lower in each quarter since the third quarter a year ago until the upturn in the July-September period this year. That movement coincides with the general economic trend throughout the Nation and is a reflection of better times that became evident shortly after mid-year.

Two automobile companies—Chrysler and General Motors—reported profits some 98 million dollars higher than a year ago, while 22 oil companies earned about 97 million dollars less than they did in the third quarter of 1948.

The 21 companies in the steel group had profits 9 percent lower than a year ago and 11 percent under the second quarter of this year.

The 20 companies in the chemical group, whose total earnings were only slightly less than companies in the steel group, showed an advance of 9 percent over the year before and a rise of 14 percent from quarter to quarter.

Out of the 24 major groups, these seven increased their earnings over a year ago: automobiles, utilities, chemicals, air transport and aircraft, brewers and distillers, food products and bakers and confectioners, and drug, cosmetic and soap manufacturers.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 31 (AP).—Wheat dropped toward the close on the Board of Trade today with selling concentrated in the nearby deliveries. The rest of the grain market ended with only minor price changes.

In lard, however, a good deal of liquidating pressure developed. All contracts suffered fair-sized losses, but held above their seasonal lows. Loose lard was offered at 39 a hundred pounds at the close, lowest since 1941.

Wheat ended unchanged to 2 cents lower, corn was unchanged to ¼ lower, oats were ¼ lower to ½ higher, rye was unchanged to ½ lower, soybeans were unchanged to ½ higher and lard was 20 to 28 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Pittsburgh Steel Defers Preferred Dividends

Pittsburgh Steel Co. deferred action on preferred stock dividends until the November meeting. No reason was given, but it was assumed deferment was due to conditions brought about by the steel strike. The preferred "A," which is in arrears, received $1.25 a share in September and $2.50 each in June and March. The 5½ per cent first series prior preferred has been receiving $1.37½ a share at quarterly intervals since arrears were cleared in December, 1947.

Father, Son Convicted in 'Club' Raid

A father and son were convicted in Arlington Police Court yesterday of collaborating in an illegal whisky sale, as the result of a raid on a "private club" managed by the father.

John Hicks, jr., 25, of 4914 Lee hwy., was found convicted of aiding and abetting the sale, following a four-hour hearing before Judge Hugh Reid.

The senior Hicks also was convicted of illegal possession of whisky and operating a club without an Arlington business license.

Judge Reid deferred imposition of sentence until 1:30 p. m. today.

M. K. Bryant, Virginia ABC investigator, and Russell Runyon, Arlington detective, testified they sent an informant into the Century Club, 4903 Lee hwy., on October 1 to buy half pint of whisky. They reported the sale was made by Hicks, jr., but that his father provided change for a marked $5 bill.

Bryant and Runyon said they raided the establishment immediatel yafterward, and confiscated whisky and beer, but admitted they were unable to find the marked bill. Both defendants denied participating in the sale.

Wholesale Shoe Prices Hiked 10 to 18c a Pair

St. Louis, Oct. 31 (AP).—The International Shoe Co. announced today increases in wholesale shoe prices averaging from 10 to 18 cents a pair. The increases are effective tomorrow.

The increase on men's and boys' shoes averaged 18 cents and that of women's and juveniles' shoes about 10 cents, the company statement said.

The company reduced prices from 15 to 20 cents a pair last April. The increase was necessary, the statement said, because of higher hide and leather costs.

Will Add 500 to Payroll

Cleveland, Oct. 31 (AP).—General Motors Corp. said today it will add 500 workers to 1000 already on the job at 119 switching locomotive plant here. The announcement came from C. R. Osborn, general manager of GMC's electromotive division.

7 Indicted As Numbers Operators

The indictments were among 31 returned by the grand jury in District Court.

Accused of lottery operation and possession of numbers slips as the result of police investigations were defendants listed as:

William H. Small, 32, of 98 Fenton st. ne.; Theresa M. Coleman, 31, of 98 Fenton st. ne.; Emma Cobb, 46, of 89 Fenton ct. nw.; James Matthews, 39, of 14 G st. nw.; Jerome King, 26, of 416 I st. ne.; Floyd Banks, 48, of 42 I st. nw., and Frederick Myers, 41, of 1109 O st. nw.

William A. Bronson, 37, of 403 M st. nw., was indicted on a charge of second-degree murder in the death of Mrs. Anna C. Williams, 50, his mother-in-law. He also was charged with assault with intent to kill his wife, Eunice, 28.

Police quoted Bronson as saying the women had been nagging him about business and other affairs.

William F. Tydings, sr., 52, of Bowie, Md., was accused of assault with intent to kill his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elnore R. Aull, 5430 Carolina pl. nw. According to police, he beat Mrs. Aull when she intervened in an argument Tydings was having with his wife.

Charged with taking immoral liberties with little girls were three men described as Leroy D. Naylor, 28, of 521 23d pl. ne.; William F. Webster, 49, of 641 A st. se., and Joseph J. Kos, 62, of 315 21st st. nw.

Court Clarifies Anacostia River Land Ownership

The question of who owns certain land, part of it under water, along the Anacostia River near South Capitol st. was clarified yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals.

The land extends from S st. to T st. and from Water st. to the river's "line of maximum depth." The Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp. owns the land and filled in a part along the water's edge.

The District Court held that riparian rights, including the right to make fills and build wharves, belonged to the firm. The Federal Government appealed this ruling. The court ruled yesterday that these fill and wharf rights did not affect the Government's navigation rights. The court declared, therefore, fill and wharf rights could be taken by the Government provided this is not done arbitrarily. The Appeals Court also said the District Court should fix the high water mark of 1794, an issue in the lower court trial of the case.

Cardozo Plan On Overcrowding To Be Heard

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning will present his recommendations for providing relief for the overcrowded Negro Cardozo High School at Wednesday's 2:30 p. m. meeting of the Board of Education.

Before the board now are two suggestions for giving additional space to the students attending the school on a triple shift plan. They are to transfer to the white Central High School and dispersal of students now attending Central to other senior and junior high schools, and use of the Wilson Teachers College building and transfer of Wilson students to Central.

Today beginning at 2:15 p. m. the board's committees on personnel, finance, student activities and athletics will hold meetings.

John E. Malloy Retires; Helped Build Canal

John E. Malloy, 70, of 4527 Illinois ave. nw., who helped build the Panama Canal and has been a civilian employe at Fort Myer for 30 years, retired yesterday.

More than 100 fellow employes attended a party in Malloy's honor at the Fort Myer carpenter shop yesterday. Malloy, who has a total of 38 years in service, was superintendent of construction and maintenance at the Fort.

Born in Washington, Malloy was educated in public schools and at Gonzaga High School.

New Parking Lot Rules In Effect

New regulations dealing with parking lots in the District of Columbia went into effect yesterday.

Principally designed as an aid in police work, the new regulations require parking-lot operators to notify police when any automobile remains in a lot over 72 continuous hours. The notification procedure need not be followed for cars stored on a weekly or monthly basis, however.

The new rules also require that hours of operation, time when an operator will be on the premises, and hourly and daily rates charged must be posted at locations clearly visible from every entrance into parking

Wilbur Finch Quits Peace Endowment

Wilbur S. Finch, member of the Washington office of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace for 28 years, yesterday resigned and made plans for reentering local law practice or private business.

Finch

Finch, who joined the organization in 1914 as a clerk, became head of the local staff last February. Since then the group has decided to consolidate the Washington office with the New York headquarters and sell the buildings now occupied at 700-708 Jackson pl. nw.

During his employment with the endowment, Finch attended Georgetown University and National Law School and was admitted to the local bar in October, 1921. From 1925 to 1932, he engaged in law practice here, specializing in international legal matters.

Upon return to the organization, he became its legal and research assistant in international law and later administrative assistant, aiding his brother, George A. Finch, then endowment secretary and since retired.

Finch has been active in civic life here, particularly in the drive for District suffrage. He has been president of the Burroughs Citizens Association, Federation of Citizens Association, District Suffrage Association, and the Central Suffrage Conference.

He now plans a few months' rest at his home, 1818 Newton st. ne., before resuming either law or business.

Dads Are Doing Their Share

Sometimes, when we hear or read about fathers who have shown real interest in helping raise their children, we wonder whether they aren't the exceptions. It's hard for some people to imagine that very many fathers are willing to help feed, wash, dress, exercise, tuck in and otherwise supervise their young children.

A study recently made of 85 fathers in and around New York City shows that dads are doing their share. Seventy-seven of them reported specific details of the way they played their roles as dads. They didn't all say that they enjoyed the routines in which they helped Junior or Junior Miss, but, like them or not, they carried through. One interesting finding was that these fathers came from all walks of life. Some were laborers, some college professors, some businessmen.

There were a number of other interesting facts coming out of this study of fathers that I'll report later. It presents some striking evidence to refute those alarmists who feel that the American male is becoming less and less important as a parent.

What's the Verdict?

JURY TO SCENE

Q. In a criminal prosecution growing out of a hit-and-run case, the prosecutor moved that the jury be taken to the scene of the crime, and the defense opposed the motion. The judge ruled that the jury be taken to the scene. Later, the testimony having been different from that which he expected, the prosecutor asked that the jurors be instructed not to consider what they saw at the site as evidence but as simply a means "of better understanding what the witnesses described." The judge ruled against the prosecutor on this point.

A. When a physical thing or place is pertinent to the understanding of a trial, it is reasonable for a jury to see the thing or place. In the interest of speedy trial, few juries are taken from the courtroom, but it is within the judge's discretion to send it elsewhere if he believes to do so would expedite understanding. So the first ruling was correct. The prosecutor's second request was that the judge tell the jury to do the impossible. Having viewed the scene of the crime, they must of necessity fit what they saw to what they were told. The judge properly ruled that they might do so. A minority U. S. view is that the prosecutor's request should be granted.—F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

His Own Opinion

Each person has or ought to have . . . opinions of his own . . .
And if he tells them he will learn . . . That he is not alone . . .
For many folks will sympathize . . . And many will agree . . .
And anyway the common right . . . To think and speak is free . . .
There are some governments that tell . . . Their subjects what to say . . . But that is not the way it is . . . Inside the U. S. A. . . .
Indeed there is no subject on . . . The population rolls . . .
Except the government itself . . . According to the polls . . . And so each citizen may smile . . . Or he may weep and moan . . . For he has every right to have . . . Opinions of his own.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

This Is What Comes of 'Hitting the Bottle'

Mrs. E. N. Clarke of 309 Marva hwy., Silver Spring, Md., writes: "How come Donald Duck delivered milk in Monday's comics, and again in Tuesday's? We're still getting deliveries on alternate days."

I can't explain it, Mrs. Clarke, because our apartment house also gets its milk deliveries every other day—which means that practically every tenant has an imposing array of empties outside his door.

I think it's a plot to make sure nobody comes home tipsy late at night. One false step and crash! Everybody in the development knows what time you got in.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Pretty black female cat, dandy pet for somebody." (Warfield 6311.)

"Cats by the dozen, all sizes, colors and sexes. Will deliver one or a dozen." (Lincoln 3-8686.)

"Pretty tabby-marked male kitten; companionable pet." (Trinidad 6433.)

"Beautiful white half-spitz; 7 weeks old, very playful and intelligent." (Hudson 8924 after 5 p. m.)

Two-year-old part Dalmatian and beautiful 6-week old male puppy, mostly spitz." (Randolph 3059 after 6 p. m.)

REVALUED POUND

Mrs. E. A. Arneson of 5808 Dewey st., Cheverly, Md., noted that her grocer advertised leg of lamb at 59 cents per pound last weekend. So off she went to the store.

"About 6 pounds, please," she ordered. The butcher brought the meat out of the icebox, slung it on the scales, and said, "Five and a quarter." Mourns Mrs. Arneson:

"It wasn't until I got home that I discovered that I was talking pounds and he was talking dollars."

YE SAME OLDE STUFF

It's bad enough to be accused of running items that date back to Joe Miller. But now Mrs. Berta C. Wadley of 3215 N. Albemarle st., Arlington, Va., dates me back to the year 1400.

She points out that my concern with women who leave lipstick stains on glassware is not exactly original. It seems that some 550 years ago a chap named Chaucer wrote:

"Hire over-lippe wyped she so clene, That in hir coppe ther was no ferthing sene Of grece, whan she dronken hadde hir draughte."

Mrs. Wadley's translation is: "She wiped her upper lip so clean that no bit of grease was seen on her cup when she had finished her drink."

Vagrant thought: If they'd print my stuff as it's originally set, before the proofs are corrected, I could be a Chaucer, too.

ADD SIGNS

Driving through Baltimore, Mrs. Paul Seibel of 205 Race ave., Lancaster, Pa., spotted a sign which read:

"Air Conditioned Imperial Crabs."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Why does the Philip Morris Company persist in using the radio commercial, "No other cigarette can make that statement," when it's perfectly obvious that no cigarette can make any statement?

Ethel H. Ross
53 R st. ne.

Dear Ethel:

Just an advertising copywriter's way of putting the thought into forceful language. I can forgive them things like this much more readily than their reckless use of the words "sensational," "exciting," "perfect," "unique," "magnificent," "fascinating," "stunning," and "amazing."

Bill.

YOUR CHANCE TO VOTE

First returns on the suggestion "Throw out the Give-Away items" indicate that I have a lively controversy on my hands.

To give everybody a chance to be heard, we'll keep the polls open until Election Day, November 8 (this coming Tuesday).

If you want to have the Give-Away items continued, or eliminated, be sure you mail your "vote" on or before that date.

KID STUFF

The current edition of the Falkland Times carries this exchange:

Teacher: Why don't you like our school?

SMALL FRY

Marilyn Cato is back from a fishing trip with her 4-year-old daughter, and tells this story:

"We were awakened at dawn by the kerplunk and kerplash of fish leaping in the lake. My daughter and I hurried to the lake's shore, complete with fishing pole and great expectations.

"I dug for half an hour, trying to find some worms and was finally rewarded with one small, anemic-looking worm.

"By that time, the fish had gone elsewhere, and after watching in silence for a while, my daughter finally asked:

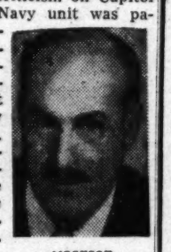
Watchdog Naval Unit Saves Cash

By Drew Pearson

While certain admirals were attracting the national spotlight with broadsides of criticism on Capitol Hill, another Navy unit was patriotically retrieving thousands of dollars for the taxpayers without attracting any attention at all.



Pearson

This unspectacular nose-to-the-grindstone outfit was the Pittsburgh office of the supervising inspector of naval material. With headaches instead of headlines for a reward, this watchdog unit went through Navy contracts looking for bugs. As a result, enough bugs were combed out of the Navy's contract with the Canonsburg Steel & Iron Co. to reverse the company's claim for $1,346,306. Instead of paying Canonsburg, the Navy collected $574,157.

In another case, the admirals had gloated over purchasing $1,131,188 worth of material from the Cooper-Bessemer Corp. at the bargain scrap price of $63,251. The watchdog unit discovered, however, that this wasn't such a bargain after all. For, believe it or not, the Navy had bought its own material, already paid for by the Navy.

But, thanks again to the watchdog unit, Westinghouse Electric Corp. was ordered to shell out an additional $18,724 for equipment that it had bought from the Navy for 2 per cent of the original cost.

The Navy unit also cracked down on the company owned by Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg and famed dinner hostess to President Truman. The Mesta Machine Co. had tried to charge the Navy $36,000 for maintaining a Navy plant, but the watchdog unit took exception to a few items, including 100 percent for overhead, and cut the bill down to $22,400.

When the Bureau of Yards and Docks tried to give away a Navy building erected on the property of the National Tube Co., the watchdog unit stepped in and finally sold the building for $24,800.

Another company, the Elliott Co., tried to buy a Navy office building for $38,100. Just as the contract was about to be signed, the watchdog unit moved in with its inspectors and adding machines. As a result of a more careful appraisal, Elliott Co. had to pay $60,725.

Note—The man in charge of the Navy unit which is doing such a good job of saving the taxpayers' money is Capt. M. C. Barrett. His chief assistants are Comdrs. P. Page and J. K. Kennedy.

Big Tax Loophole

Congressman Walter Lynch of New York bluntly informed the big life insurance companies at a closed-door session of a Ways and Means Subcommittee last week that the gravy train they have been riding for the last three years has reached the end of the line. A loophole in the tax laws, enabling the companies to escape billions of dollars of income taxes, is going to be closed.

Furthermore, Lynch warned the insurance executives that they might as well quit protesting about paying up retroactive taxes.

"These obligations due the Government are going to be collected one way or another—and I mean retroactively," Lynch served notice at a closed-door meeting. "The honeymoon is over."

He offered the insurance tycoons either of two alternatives:

1. A "stopgap" bill, pending revision of the tax laws, requiring the companies to pay taxes on all above 92 percent of their income from investments for the years 1948 and 1949. (Under a tax law formula written in 1942, tax exemptions on investment income have amounted to 100 percent in the last three years.)

2. If the companies don't want to make retroactive payments for two years under this bill—already introduced by Ways and Means Chairman Bob Doughton of North Carolina—Lynch proposed that they pay up for all three years (1947, 1948 and 1949) under a so-called "average valuation" formula.

This would amount to an across-the-board lowering of tax deductions for all insurance firms, without regard to surpluses in reserve funds.

However, the insurance execs, led by A. J. McAndless of Lincoln National, Fort Wayne, Ind., vigorously objected to both proposals. They were in no position to make retroactive payments of any kind, they insisted, since the money that normally would go toward the tax payup already had been distributed as dividends.

"Well, make up your minds," replied Lynch. "You may as well realize that you can't ride free any longer."
